Cutback under attack No last month's rent for Durham welfare recipients

DURHAM - A regional councillor's claims that cutting services to welfare recipients could increase crime and put more people on the street are "alarmist" and "irresponsible," his peers charge.

Pickering's Maurice Brenner failed to win the support of fellow councillors Wednesday in his bid to reverse a proposal to quit paying last month's rent to eligible welfare recipients.

Axing that policy will realize a savings of about $2.1 million, $825,000 of which would be picked up by the region, the remainder by the province.

Commissioner of social services Garry Cubitt said it would be difficult to tighten the policy any further because it's offered to those eligible just once every two years.

He points to a start-up policy, which provides up to a maximum of $791 once a year to those trying to re-establish themselves in the community, as an alternative. It's aimed at, but not restricted to, people living in shelters and poor accommodation.

Mr. Cubitt is "hopeful" a high vacancy rate may make the rental market more competitive. He suggests some landlords will be willing to rent a unit without the payment of last month's rent or they may accept it over an extended period of time.

Before making its decision, council heard from several supporters of the policy, including the Social Development Council of Ajax-Pickering's Valerie Reid.

Rescinding the policy would hurt people "whose economic outlook is already bleak," she argued. "You would be increasing their economic hardship even more."

The Ontario Taxpayers Coalition's Pickering chapter coordinator Janice Frampton urged councillors to consider "revamping" the region's administration instead of cutting services "so more people can receive services for less money."

Chairman Gary Herrema told her region officials are "on the same side" and suggested she address provincial ministries.

Sewers get go-ahead for Pickering Beach

By KEITH GILLIGAN
 Staff Reporter

AJAX - Sanitary sewers will be installed in the Pickering Beach area.

Durham regional council on Wednesday approved spending $300,000 to install sewers along Seabreeze Rd. from Poplar Ave. to about Mayor Cres. and along Poplar, from Seabreeze north to Beachview St.

Durham's director of engineering Ken Thompson reports installing the sewers will take six to eight weeks to complete.

Susan Dulny, the Ajax Wards 3, 4 and 5 regional councillor, says the project will go to tender shortly and work should begin in late summer.

"It's time to clean up that area," Mrs. Dulny says.

Homes in the neighborhood, most of which have septic tanks, could be connected to the sanitary sewers.

"It's mainly an environmental matter and septic tanks pollute the groundwater," Mrs. Dulny notes.

The region has indicated there should only be one septic tank per acre of land. "We have four per acre there and that's unacceptable," she says.

The installation of sanitary and storm sewers and improvement of roads in the Pickering Beach area has been a controversial issue, with residents lobbying council for and against the work.

(The region is responsible for installing sanitary sewers, while the town installs storm sewers and does road work.)

A building freeze was imposed on the area in 1974 until storm and sanitary sewers are installed.

Ajax council hasn't decided if it will install storm sewers and do the road work for the project. Funding for the work would be included in the 1992 budget, which hasn't been finalized.

Ajax works director Frank Hull says funding for road work will be allocated when council hammers out a budget April 11.

However, $500,000 will be included in the works department budget, but won't be allocated until after the April 11 meeting, Mr. Hull says.

A report will be presented to council's budget advisory committee (BAC) after April 11 on how much installing sewers will cost landowners in the Pickering Beach area.

After the Pickering Beach report presented to BAC, council will determine where to spend the unallocated $500,000.

Last year, the town commissioned a report by the consulting firm of Totten Sims Hubicki on how much the project would cost and what each landowner would have to pay to hook up to sanitary sewers. The consultant's report laid out an 11-year plan to install sewers and complete road work. The project approved on Wednesday is the first phase of the 11-year plan.

A four-year budget forecast, covering 1993 to 1996, prepared by the region has money available for Pickering Beach sanitary sewer work, Mr. Thompson says.

However, regional council could change the forecast and spend the money elsewhere.

It's also possible the work planned for an 11-year period could be completed more quickly, he notes.

"If the town wants to compress the time, we could sit down with and discuss it with the town. It's not out of the question to squeeze the time."

As for the work approved Wednesday, Mr. Thompson says the region will try to coordinate its efforts with the town's.

Mr. Hull says if the town decides not to go ahead with the storm sewers and road work, the region could still proceed with its project.

"They could do it, but it would cost them more to do it alone. It cuts costs to do a joint venture."

If the region did the work, the road would have to be reconstructed.

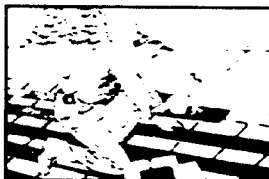

Mrs. Dulny says sanitary sewers are "going in regardless" of what the town decides.

Early registration a must for free pre-natal courses

DURHAM - Expectant parents interested in taking the region's free pre-natal courses are being advised to register as soon as they learn the stork will be visiting.

That's because the number of courses regularly offered by the department of health services will be reduced beginning in July due to provincial funding cuts.

"A lot of people will be disappointed after July," says Betty Ann Manuel, regional supervisor for reproductive and infant health. "We're urging mothers to register as soon as they learn they're pregnant."

The course has been restructured to accommodate those cuts, and registrants must now take the first part in order to take the second, a move designed to avoid overlap in lessons.

Women in their first 20 weeks of pregnancy and their support person can register for part one, made up of four sessions. Making healthy lifestyle choices, exercises, growth of a baby, choices in infant feeding, infant safety, and prevention of early labor will be discussed.

The second part of the course, a series of three classes, highlights labor and birth, the role of a support person, relaxation exercises, caesarean and early birth, mother and infant care, becoming a parent, and community resources.

The number of registrants is limited and will be accepted on a first-come, first-served basis. There's a $10 fee for materials.

Although a post-partum session that regularly accompanies that course has been cancelled, Information Babyville will still be offered at no charge. That eight-week course discusses adaptation to parenting, infant feeding, introducing solids, dental hygiene, developmental issues, and balancing personal needs with that of a baby and partner.

The department offers a separate six-week course for women expecting multiple births. About four series are offered annually, depending on the number of registrants.

Still being offered is Single Mother and Infant Learning Experience (SMILE), designed for pregnant teens.

To register for pre-natal courses, call 686-2740 or 723-8521. To register for Information Babyville, call 683-4660.

Herrema slams Brenner

Politician takes offence to 'grandstanding'

DURHAM - An enraged regional chairman tore a strip off a Pickering councillor for circulating a letter addressed to him before he had a chance to read it.

"I take great offence at this," Gary Herrema hollered when a letter from the Ontario Human Rights Commission was passed out to councillors and reporters during a meeting Wednesday.

"It's not stamped 'received by the chairman's office.' I want to know who circulated this," he said.

Maurice Brenner quickly admitted responsibility, saying he had photocopies made during the meeting because councillors had a right to see the letter since its author asked that copies be sent to them.

The letter wasn't sent to him directly, Mr. Brenner said, but he received a copy from a social services agency which notified the commission of Durham's proposed policy reversal of providing last month's rent to eligible welfare recipients.

That agency, which he refused to name, received a fax of the letter, dated Tuesday, around 9:20 Wednesday morning, he said. The commission assured him the letter was first faxed to Mr. Herrema, he added.

The letter arrived on the chairman's desk that same morning but, before council met at 10 a.m., Mr. Herrema met with mayors and didn't see it.

Mr. Brenner defended his actions, saying the letter was relevant to a motion being considered by councillors at that moment.

In the letter, chief commissioner Catherine Frazee expressed "concern" about the region's proposed cut and suggested "in times of restraint, it is of even greater importance that the rights of vulnerable members of society be affirmed and protected."

Newcastle mayor Diane Hamre questioned who prompted the letter, which she called "blackmail" sent to "intimidate us...Whoever's responsible for this fiasco hasn't made any brownie points."

Mr. Herrema said it's common practice for him to read a letter before sending copies to councillors.

He believes Mr. Brenner prompted the letter and was "trying to do some grandstanding."

Mr. Brenner said he wasn't concerned that colleagues criticized his actions because he has a "clear conscience."

It's good to see General Motors and the Canadian Auto Workers put their overtime dispute behind them. Now they can face whatever comes out of Detroit side by side, if not exactly arm in arm, instead of letting it fall on them while they're still face to face, with daggers drawn.

On Wednesday, the workers conceded more flexibility to GM in setting overtime, in the understanding that George Peapples, head of GM Canada, will use the deal to prove that management and workers in Oshawa can get along, and that the local assembly plants will meet their quotas, if they get the cars to build.

And that's the nub: if they get the cars to build.

GM's head office in Detroit hasn't said which assembly plants it intends to shut down in its efforts to match demand with production. But with the demonstration by local workers that they are willing to co-operate, a major albatross around the neck of GM Canada has been removed.

Now we can hope Oshawa's advantages carry the day. The three assembly plants close together, the quality of the local product, and the billions GM has thrown into Oshawa while upgrading its plants over the last few years are all positive factors.

Another encouraging aspect of Wednesday's vote is the improved turnout: it went from an abysmally apathetic 24 per cent of the Oshawa workers at the first vote, to a slightly more enthusiastic 42 per cent for the second. That in itself is a sign that the workers are taking the threat of job loss more seriously.

The fact that the number of negative votes actually declined (using CAW percentage estimates) in the second vote, despite the almost doubling of the number of voters, indicates both that the hard-core anti-concession militants are fewer than was thought, and that the majority of GM workers are capable of seeing the long view.

All in all, it was an encouraging week for both GM Canada workers and management, and for the rest of us who depend on a healthy local auto industry, and who can only sit on the sidelines and bite our fingernails while events carry us forward to an uncertain future.

There is still a black cloud hanging over Detroit, and it may still blow east and dump its load on Oshawa. But this week, at least, there was a ray of sunshine.

The coffee's always on

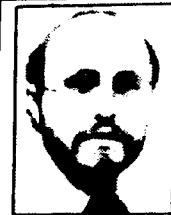

As the April 17 deadline approaches for kids to enter the News Advertiser's writing contest on why you're proud to be Canadian, my mind got to wondering why someone should be proud to be a resident of Ajax or Pickering. Well, if not proud, at least pleased as punch.

Here, with apologies to Mr. Letterman, are the top 10 reasons why it's great to be in A and P.

(9) It's geographically mystifying. Picture the puzzled look on that same stranger's face when you explain that, no, Pickering Village is not part of Pickering. It's in Ajax. "Looking for Pickering Beach, pal? It's also in Ajax, which, of course, got its name from a popular household cleanser." Imagine the blank stare from a student about to transfer here when she learns Pickering High School is not in Pickering; it's in Ajax. Relish the glee if that student's a jock who's just found out he can play on Pickering

News editor's notes

BLAKE PURDY

High's top-notch football team even if he's flunked a few years and should by now be finishing his Masters Degree.

(8) It's always sunny, indoors and out. Even people who hang out in malls can get tans, thanks to the bright skylights at the Pickering Town Centre.

(7) It's intoxicating. No need to drink to get a glow-on here. Just move near the Pickering nuke plant.

(6) It has ancient ruins. Even though Ajax is a relatively young community, it appears to have oodles of history, what with the mothballed Verona Mall bringing to mind the Roman ruins.

(5) It's macho. Our two major hockey teams at least have tough names -- Pickering Panthers, Ajax Axemen. So what if the Panthers play more like pussycats and the Axemen have axed their former emblem, which looked an awful lot like that Jason character from those Friday the 13th horror movies? What's more, the Panthers and the Axemen never go on strike like their NHL counterparts, a pity though that may be.

(4) Our politicians are so playful. Attend a Pickering council meeting to watch your tax dollars at work, to see sandbox politics at their best, to view a sort-of ad version of Romper Room. Or mayor Wayne Arthurs can control the shenanigans of the silly six he rules here in Wayne's World.

(3) It's a commuter's adventure. We're on the map of every radio station's eye in the sky. "Westbound traffic into the city is moving along fine until you get to Whites Road." Sick transit not so glorious.

(2) It's oh so sweet. More donut shops per capita than anywhere in the free world. A traffic cop's paradise, nirvana for donut lovers like me. The coffee's always on.

And, finally, the number-one reason why it's great to be in A and P.

(1) It's home, gosh darn it.

Tories' economic policies questioned

To the editor,

I was interested to read a letter in the News Advertiser on March 18 in which Mr. Mugan chides Mr. Wiseman for remarks he made about the recent federal budget.

In a country where the top 20 per cent of families take a whopping 40 per cent of the income and the bottom 20 per cent get by on only six per cent, it's high time someone raised some questions about the federal Tories' economic policies.

What about the Tory GST? Every consumer is well aware of the havoc it has created. Among other things, it's a highly regressive tax taking a higher proportion of the income of lower and middle income Canadians than it nets from richer citizens.

As a small businessperson, I'm well aware of the hardships created by the high interest policies pursued by the Tories until their recent deathbed conversion. Not only has this approach not significantly reduced the dollar amount of the deficit, but it has directed a considerable amount of revenue from all taxpayers to those persons (and banks and insurance companies) lucky enough to have money to buy government bonds.

Wasn't it this Tory budget which announced the end to the universal family allowance program, killed the co-operative housing program and dashed hopes for the promised national day care scheme? And with this, greatly reduced the chances for many families to have a decent home, achieve personal development and growth and have the opportunity to contribute to the economic development of our land?

What's next? Is it an assault on our medicare system as many of the Tory Party faithful have urged? By failing to restore federal transfer payments to the provincial level in this budget, the Tories have threatened our hospitals (and education and other social services). It's more likely they'll achieve through the backdoor what they fear to introduce through the front.

Didn't the federal government used to collect more in direct taxes from companies than from individuals? By 1988, taxes from individuals accounted for 55.5 per cent of federal revenues while direct corporate taxation amounted to just 10.5 per cent. That's Tory tax policy for you.

Mr. Mugan repeats the old, trite phrases about some being pulled down by the tax system. It's not really a matter of a group, which has been given much by our society, being pulled down. It's a matter of fairness, Mr. Mugan!

By the way, wasn't it this Tory budget that ended a legal advocacy program thus saving a relatively small amount of money but making it virtually impossible for disadvantaged persons to take the government to court if it broke its own laws? What's the lesson in this Mr. Mugan? If you don't like what we do, keep quiet?

So, Mr. Wiseman, if you sense there's anything askew with federal economic policy, speak up and we'll thank you for it. The rest of us will take a closer look. Hopefully, it won't be with the malice of name-calling and in the hackneyed framework Mr. Mugan uses.

Water quality argument 'a red herring'

To the editor,

Regarding the letter from Sherrill Willard; What happened to election cries?

It would seem Ms. Willard will not end her misleading scare tactics with regard to the water treatment plant. Ms. Willard asks, in her letter, how $8 million can be found for Pickering Beach sewers when the region couldn't find about the same amount for "a safe water plant location."

Ms. Willard and the Ajax Save The Waterfront Committee continue to hang their collective hats on the theory that, moving the water plant would change the water that will be drawn into the facility.

Regardless of the location of the facility the intake pipe will still be in Lake Ontario at a more distant and deeper location than the current pipe. All current surveys indicate that this will provide the plant with a higher quality raw water to begin the treatment process.

I believe that it's time for the Ajax Save The Waterfront Committee to be honest with the public, the Region of Durham and the province of Ontario and state their true objection to the expansion — not in my back yard. The quality of the water is, so long as the water is being drawn from Lake Ontario, a red herring and Ms. Willard and this committee are playing politics.

I find it an interesting coincidence that your paper received this letter so well timed to the announcement of Mr. Parish's candidacy for the recently vacated Ward 3 council seat. I do recall Mr. Parish and Ms. Willard during the election campaign last fall being opposed to the water plant and both affiliated with PACT and The Ajax Save The Waterfront Committee.

Isn't it about time that we got a little honesty from the groups that propose to speak on our behalf. Particularly unelected groups such as The Ajax Save The Waterfront Committee.

Bob Jeffery,
Ajax

Artist drawn by lakefront's beauty

Marc Kasiban spends almost every Sunday at the end of Liverpool Rd., sketching the surroundings which have drawn him here again and again over the past four years. photo by A.J. Groen

By CHERYL DOYLE
Student Reporter

PICKERING - The sun glistens off the water. Mallards, swans and Canada Geese move gracefully. Parents and children take a moment to feed wildlife. Others walk, jog or ride bikes.

An artist paints and sketches it all — at the foot of Liverpool Rd. on the shore of Lake Ontario.

Pickering resident Marc Kasiban is drawn here almost every Sunday. It "just fascinates me...there's a lot of things to see." He spends much of his time just observing people enjoying the area.

He's been observing for a long time. Five paintings and roughly 100 sketches are the result of nearly four years of Sundays.

On a recent week-long vacation from work, Mr. Kasiban was at his favorite spot almost every day. His 14-year-old son Mark, who learned "a little" from him, joined him and did some sketches of his own.

Mr. Kasiban, now 43, also started young. As a small kid, he "just liked to draw."

Although he's had no formal training outside a couple of classes in college, where he studied architecture, he has been selling his paintings for about two years.

Mr. Kasiban is currently working on a "simple" watercolor of a Trumpeter Swan, which will take about 10 hours to finish. A more complicated piece will take 20 to 24 hours.

A framed watercolor will sell for between $250 and $400, depending on the size.

Though he may use one of his sketches for a painting, they're not for sale. "It's something just for me."

Time stands still when Mr. Kasiban visits his favorite spot where he's reminded that the best things in life are free. He doesn't have to pay to get into his little piece of Heaven here on earth.

Mr. Kasiban will keep returning to his spot at the end of Liverpool Rd. And, he encourages others to drop by the area. "It's a simple place for everybody to relax and enjoy."

Separate board passes safe school environment policy

DURHAM - Verbal threats, physical assault, harassment and weapons won't be tolerated at Catholic schools.

And to ensure their absence, Durham Region Roman Catholic Separate School Board trustees have passed a safe school environment policy as preventive medicine.

"There are some serious problems at schools in Toronto," board chair Tom Oldman said. "We want to ensure those problems don't make their way here, particularly in the schools to the west."

He says he hasn't seen an increase in violence or harassment at Durham schools.

The aim of the policy is to provide a workplace in which staff and students can carry out their duties in a "safe and supportive environment."

Each school must follow the policy, which will be sent home to parents at the beginning of the school year. All incidents of violence, assault, harassment and use of weapons must be reported to a superintendent and the director will inform trustees of related data each year.

An occupational health and safety policy, now in the works, will advocate safe buildings and equipment and promote a general awareness of health and safety legislation among all employees.

The policy has had a first reading and must have two more before it's passed. It's in keeping with the Occupational Health and Safety Act which says school boards must have a health and safety policy.

Prizes for proud young Canadians

AJAX - Why are you proud to be a Canadian?

The News Advertiser and the Ajax Kinsmen and Kinette Clubs want town youngsters to answer that question.

The clubs are running a contest in which Ajax students can write an essay, poem or story on Why You are Proud to be a Canadian.

The contest is being held in conjunction with the two service clubs' Proud to be Canadian campaign.

There are five categories for kids of various ages — junior kindergarten (JK) to Grade 1, Grades 2 to 4, Grades 5 and 6, Grades 7 and 8, and Grade 9 and up.

For the JK to Grade 1 category, entries can be up to 50 words. The limit for Grades 2 to 4 and Grades 5 and 6 is 100 words. There's a 250-word maximum for Grades 7 and up.

All submissions should be dropped off or mailed to the News Advertiser, c/o Proud to be Canadian Contest, 130 Commercial Ave., Ajax, Ontario, L1S 2H5.

The deadline is Friday, April 17 and the winners will be announced in the Wednesday, April 22 edition.

Prizes, which have yet to be determined, will be awarded to the winners.

For more information, call the News Advertiser at 683-5110.

Lawn and garden upkeep easy, thanks to Durham Property Maintenance

The longer days and brighter sun of early spring easily lure most people out of their houses on the weekends.

Those who venture into their backyards quickly become aware of the effects of winter on the lawn and gardens. Debris and old leaves have taken up residence under the shrubbery; weeds are already beginning to crowd the walkways and gardens; and the grass is in need of some fertilizer.

Suddenly, the visions of baseball and bike riding are replaced by the thought of the hours of work needed just to make the grounds presentable and to get the grass growing again. (And the lawn mower is still buried in the back of the storage area somewhere.)

For many people, the very idea of spring cleanup brings back fond memories of winter hibernation.

There is a way to have a nice lawn without investing a lot of time and physical energy. Durham Property Maintenance has the solution. With highly trained experts and top quality equipment, Durham Property Maintenance can help you have a beautiful, healthy lawn and the time to enjoy it at your leisure.

Owner Carlo Allion has developed two lawn maintenance programs designed to meet the needs of his customers.

The standard program offers a weekly service which includes removing any debris, lawn cutting, edge trimming and bagging all clippings in clear 100% recyclable bags.

Durham Property Maintenance owner Carlo Allion has all his equipment ready for yard clean-ups.

The deluxe program includes the same services as the standard program with some additional ones to improve the condition of your grass based on an individual analysis of your lawn. If an examination indicates that aerating the lawn is necessary, it is done in the spring to allow air, moisture and nutrients to reach the roots of the grass.

A four-step fertilizer program meets the specific needs of the lawn over the course of the season.

In the spring the fertilizer has a high nitrogen content to stimulate growth. The second fertilizer application follows in early summer and the third in late summer. The fall fertilizer is designed to aid root development and increase the plant's ability to withstand cold temperatures. The fall clean-up prepares the lawn for the winter by removing leaves and other debris.

Customers on the maintenance programs can also take advantage of some additional services, including trimming and pruning, and expert grass seeding for bare areas.

Many of the clients who rely on Durham Property Maintenance are senior citizens who want to live in a house without having to worry about the upkeep of the grounds. Some of them are physically unable to do the chores themselves.

Mr. Allion offers a 10% discount to seniors and he is always willing to help out with odd jobs around the house.

The service is also attractive to younger people, often professionals, who lead extremely busy lives. For them, as for most people, leisure time is at a premium and must be used to the best advantage.

How do you prefer to spend your weekends? If golf clubs, a fishing pole, a lawn chair and a picnic basket are among your favorite spring accessories, leave your grass catcher in the shed and let Durham Property Maintenance free up some of your time.

Your lawn will thank you for it.

Ajax peewees close, but no trophies at London event

AJAX - The Ajax-Village minor peewee 'A' hockey team was ousted in the semi-finals at the recent London Hockey Tournament.

After posting a preliminary-round record of a win, tie and a loss, Ajax earned a spot in the semi-finals against the Oshawa Little NHL Bruins.

In an exciting contest, Ajax dropped a 4-2 decision to Oshawa. Craig Kidney and Harley Scott scored with assists going to Rob Jones, Dwayne Hunte and Erik Bradstock.

Ajax earned a 1-1 draw in its first game of the tourney against host London. Kidney was the marksmen, assisted by Jones and Trevor Munro.

Next, the Ajax peewees came out flying against Brantford, handing them a 6-0 shellacking. Almost every player picked up a point in the contest, with shutout goaltending by Kevin Bedarf.

Ajax dropped the third game of the tourney 3-1. Phil Monders scored, assisted by Andrew Jervis and Adam Smith. Bedarf was a stand-out in net, earning most valuable player honors.

COMPUTERS OF THE 90s

Computer review

If compact is what you're after, try Tiny Series

By Glen Konorowski

One of the biggest drawbacks to many personal computers has to be their physical size. Some of these beasts range from six inches high to almost two feet wide.

A computer company that has done something about the physical size of computers is Juko Electronics. If you're not familiar with the name, that's not surprising. It is relatively new to the Canadian market.

Juko has developed a pair of computers that take up virtually no space on your desk. The two units are called the Tiny and the Tiny Pro.

The Tiny is your basic two-floppy drive computer with no hard drive. The Tiny Pro is the larger unit with a single floppy drive and hard disc drive.

The Tiny Pro I tested is only about 11 inches wide and about three inches tall. I liked the size as I have a small desk and it fits well on it, without taking up much space.

The paper white monitor is also of a compact size. The screen is just 9 inches. The monitor is a VGA, providing superior clarity. All the letters and graphics on the screen were exceptionally clear.

The Tiny Pro I had was equipped with a 1 MG (Mega Bit) RAM (Random Access Memory).

Those of you who require more memory can go up to a 2 or 4 MB unit. If you are using it for games and letter writing, the standard memory should be fine.

The CPU (Central Processing Unit) on the Tiny Pro is either a 286 or 386, with the standard being the 286. The standard 286 is fine for most everyday applications. If you plan to do more complicated things on the computer, like using Windows with Word Perfect or PageMaker then the 386 is best.

The 386 CPU is also better when the optional 100MB hard disc drive (HDD) is used on the system. Today's memory hungry programs use a lot of space on your system, so I would opt for the larger 100MB HDD. It is something you may hate paying for now, but down the road you will be glad you did.

By virtue of its size, the Tiny Pro only comes with one double sided double density Floppy Disc Drive or 1.44MB. So if you have any of the 5 1/4 inch discs, have someone with a dual drive system switch them over to the smaller format.

All Juko Computers come with a full-sized mouse. This mouse is a full three-button unit, which is good for all mouse driven programs in use today.

For me, personally, quality starts in the keyboard. The Juko's smaller 81 keyboard - not the regular 101 most of today's PCs have - has a nice feel to it. If you're not doing accounting you won't miss the extra keys. Of the seven years I have been using the computer I have never once used the numbered keypad.

If bigger isn't always better for you, give the Juko a try. It just might solve your space problem.

Progress continues in computer technology

Talking computers have found their way to university language laboratories.

Mechanical tutors teach students grammar in foreign languages. One program shows computer-controlled film clips of French or Russian speakers. These on-screen speakers are shopping or going apartment hunting and pause to ask the students questions.

Students respond by typing in an answer and receive a correct or incorrect response from the computers.

The business world has already seen many exciting changes made through computer technology, but even more changes are on the way.

Computers are becoming more user-friendly, are developing their own voices, will understand speech, become much smaller, produce full-color moving graphics and complete more than one task at a time. For example, if you are writing a letter on the screen, your computer can be doing another task off the screen.

1991: IBM gains in manufacturing

IBM of Canada Ltd. reports sizeable profits in manufacturing and development for 1991, even though the corporation's marketing and service profit was minimal.

Changes in the way manufacturing and development exports are accounted for, combined with higher manufacturing activity led to a 37 percent increase in total revenue, the company reports.

Included in the 1991 total revenue were exports of $3.91 billion, compared with 1990 exports of $1.84 billion. A little more than one-third of IBM employees across Canada are employed in manufacturing and development.
