Graffiti paints Pickering

Parents should tell kids it's a crime: police

By Kristen Calis
kcalis@durhamregion.com

PICKERING — After many moves and finally ending up back in her hometown, Linda Cook was shocked to see the large amount of vandalism and graffiti in Pickering's Bay Ridges neighbourhood.

"There has to be something we can do," she said. "I don't want to be victimized in this community. I don't want to be afraid to walk through the community I grew up in."

Ms. Cook brought up vandalism at Mayor Dave Ryan's Ward 2 Town Hall meeting last week, an issue Ward 2 Regional Councillor Bill McLean has been tackling for the past couple of months.

"It's like a cancer going through the neighbourhood," he said.

Coun. McLean has received about a dozen complaints regarding graffiti in the past couple of months. Even when walking down the street, residents approach him with their concerns. When showing homes in otherwise safe and clean neighbourhoods, prospective buyers will simply say they're not interested if they spot graffiti.

"They don't look at this as an annoyance," he said. "They look at it as a safety concern."

Police are aware of the increase in graffiti, said Durham Regional Police spokesman Sergeant Paul McCurbin. DRPS asks that people wash the graffiti off immediately to help stop it from continuing.

"It takes away from the beauty of the community, but it almost gives approval for more mischief to be added," he said.

Police do ask that graffiti be reported and left as is if it seems worthy for the police to investigate. For example, if there was graffiti on a small business targeting the owner, the police should be called. DRPS should also be called if a resident has just seen someone commit the crime and can identify the culprit. This may help the police track them down immediately.

Coun. McLean's involvement began about three months ago when anti-Semitic graffiti was reported at David Farr Memorial Park. But the swastika on its own is not considered by the Criminal Code of Canada to be anti-Semitic, Sgt. McCurbin said. The symbol used as an emblem of the Nazi party was originally an ancient symbol for good luck or peace, and drawing it is not a crime according to the Code, he explained. The Code does consider promoting genocide a hate crime, for example. DRPS' main concern is keeping the mischief from taking place period.

At the meeting, residents asked if the graffiti is gang related. Mayor Ryan suggested most graffiti in Pickering is basically kids "trying

Search warrant yields huge pot crop in Pickering

PICKERING — Charges have been laid against a Toronto man following the dismantling of a large marijuana grow operation in a Pickering residence.

Officers with Durham's Drug Enforcement Unit found more than 900 plants growing in a Valley Farm Road residence when they executed a search warrant Wednesday, police said. A man found on the property was arrested.

Cops seized drugs valued at $900,000 and removed an estimated $50,000 worth of growing equipment, police said. They also uncovered evidence that a hydro bypass had been installed.

Samuel Van Nguyen, 38, of Kennebel Crescent in Toronto, is charged with production of a controlled substance, possession for the purpose of trafficking and theft of a telecommunication device.

to be cool." Sgt. McCurbin said most gang members don't participate in graffiti for fear of getting caught.

"We have identified gangs in the Durham Region but we're not going to promote them by putting them in the paper," he said.

Coun. McLean said Veridian has hired a contractor to clean the graffiti immediately off its utility boxes, where much of it takes place. And the community has to send the message that graffiti is not acceptable in Pickering, starting with the parents, he said.

"They have to know these kids are up to it and they have to take responsibility to educate them," he said.

Sgt. McCurbin agreed, adding it's important to tell kids it is a crime.

"It may not be today, it may not be tomorrow, but they will face mischief charges," he said.

Those charged with mischief can face a fine or jail time. If anyone sees someone in the act, call police at 905-579-1520.

ASK KATHERINE

Can you please tell me the correct way to dispose of used household batteries? I seem to remember reading that some brands of batteries were now safe to dispose of with the regular garbage, because those brands are now free of mercury. Can somebody clarify?

Alkaline batteries may not be toxic; they do contain potassium hydroxide which is corrosive. We accept regular alkaline batteries along with the rechargeable batteries in the Household Hazardous Waste (HHW) program where they are separated and recycled accordingly. All batteries collected in the HHW Program are recycled.

Many manufacturers' websites that refer to battery disposal in landfill are adhering to U.S. regulations but the Canadian Transportation of Dangerous Goods regulation includes dry batteries containing potassium hydroxide and therefore alkaline batteries. Simply put, batteries require special handling for recycling and safe disposal. The best place for them is the Region's Household Hazardous Waste Program.

Hi Katherine, I have a question regarding the disposal of old (wet) paint and dried paint in their original containers. Can I put these in my Blue Box?

Bring your wet paint, oil or latex, in its original container, to a Household Hazardous Waste (HHW) Depot for proper disposal. The Region has four depots located in Oshawa, Scugog, Brock and Pickering. The Region also offers a special program that encourages other residents to reuse these materials. This program operates out of the Region's Waste Disposal Site in Oshawa only. The Paint Reuse Centre offers residents good re-useable paints and stains at "no charge". As for the empty cans with dried paint, please remove the lid and place the container and lid in your Blue Box and set it out for collection on your regular recycling collection day.

Student discount just doesn't add up

Oshawa Councillor Tito-Dante Marimpietri's heart might be in the right place in pushing for a tuition discount for Oshawa residents at Durham's post-secondary institutions.

But the notion, intended to attract more Oshawans to Durham College and the University of Ontario Institute of Technology, doesn't get a passing grade upon serious reflection.

It has many flaws.

First, Durham College and UOIT are regional institutions that receive provincial funding and attract students from across the province and country. Why should Oshawa residents get a hometown discount when the schools have received funding from the Region, the Province and, in some cases, from Ottawa?

If you're going to extend a discount to Oshawa residents, why not also offer it to Whitby, Clarington, Ajax, Pickering, Scugog, Uxbridge and Brock citizens, too? It would soon become extremely unworkable and unaffordable if followed through.

Post-secondary institutions across Ontario are already struggling to pay the bills and stay out of the red. In fact, Durham College just passed a budget with a $3.5-million deficit. It is hardly in a position to cover less income from tuition fees when it will need to go to the Province for a funding boost.

The councillor's plan doesn't include any buy-in from the City of Oshawa. If you're going to ask the college and university to take a financial hit, shouldn't you be willing to pony up some money from the City? Without putting your money where your mouth is, the idea comes across as pie-in-the-sky.

It doesn't have any serious interest from the schools themselves, which already have a very healthy contingent of Durham students in attendance and need cash from wherever they can find it.

No doubt the councillor is only trying to find a way to make it more affordable for his young constituents to go to school close to home. But there are better ways to help locals get a higher education near their homes. How about City of Oshawa scholarships or bursaries of a modest nature students could use at UOIT or DC? Maybe Coun. Marimpietri could head up a committee and look for local support to get such a program going. That way, the schools wouldn't take a hit and the City could offer a constructive solution for the councillor's idea.

Pickering's graffiti is not art

Parents have to keep an eye on their kids

Kristen Calis

Grffiti is sometimes referred to as public art, usually when the 'artists' are asked by a municipality to display their work in public places. But other times, and most times, it's seen as unsightly vandalism, especially with the random scrawls that have been plaguing Pickering's neighbourhoods.

There's nothing worse than walking down the street in a nice neighbourhood only to find nonsense written on a wall, bus stop or utility box.

What does that tell visitors? It says 'we don't care about our neighbourhoods.'

And that's hardly the case with Pickering. The City has worked hard to be recognized as a leader in sustainability and was awarded with a sustainable planning award last month. It also received top ratings at the Communities in Bloom competition last year. Then inconsiderate individuals come along and put up their words of (usually) non-wisdom for the tourists or prospective homebuyers to see.

As someone who lives in Toronto, graffiti is common and doesn't look out of place. But in Pickering, it just doesn't fit. This is a good thing in a way. It's nice that Pickering is a tidy enough place that 'Wade luv's Jessica' or nasty commentaries about someone's mother stand out. But if the graffiti problem continues to grow and is not addressed immediately, it will slowly turn into a Toronto where residents walk by vandalism without blinking an eye.

Ward 2 Regional Councillor Bill McLean has been dealing with numerous complaints about the issue for the past couple of months and has gotten Veridian to hire a contractor to clean up the graffiti on its boxes immediately. He describes it as cancerous, moving through Pickering's neighbourhoods. If neighbourhoods are riddled with graffiti, it will look acceptable, and others will follow the trend.

A common belief with graffiti is that gangs are running all over the City, marking their territory. Although this isn't usually the case, since members don't normally vandalize using the name of the gang in fear of getting caught, it is a common conception and this too can keep people from wanting to take up residency in Pickering. Vandalism costs the City money. In fact, it cost about $100,000 last year in staff time and cleaning costs and the amount of graffiti has increased this year. Hopefully the adults who know their kids are painting the town - literally - aren't the same ones complaining about continuously rising property taxes.

Grffiti only takes a couple of seconds to commit, so it's really difficult for the police to attack the problem. For the police to combat it, they need help from the community. It's important that parents keep an eye out for their kids carrying telling items such as spray cans and permanent markers. Tell them it's a criminal offence and that they can face community service, fines or even jail time. Eyes on the Street - the City's program to combat vandalism and graffiti - is a tool that should be utilized after graffiti is put up. To report vandalism in your neighbourhood call Pickering's customer care department at 1-877-420-4666.

But if a resident sees someone committing the crime, try to get a description and give the police a call at 905-579-1520. They are aware of the situation and want to see Pickering's neighbourhoods remain healthy and clean.

Kristen Calis' column appears every third Friday. E-mail kcalis@durhamregion.com.

Crown seeks 14 years for 'monstrous' assaults

Ex-teacher guilty of molesting boys

By Jeff Mitchell
jmittell@durhamregion.com

OSHAWA — Convicted sex offender Jeremy Pike ought to receive a substantial penitentiary term for his "monstrous" assaults on young children, a prosecutor told a judge Monday.

Crown counsel Kent Saliwonchuk urged Justice Mary Teresa Devlin to sentence Mr. Pike, a former grade school teacher, to 14 years, arguing the stiff sentence is warranted for the abuse he perpetrated on several young boys.

"It's my position that Mr. Pike represents a danger to society," Mr. Saliwonchuk said during an ongoing sentencing hearing for the 35-year-old Mr. Pike, who pleaded guilty in May to eight counts of sexual interference as well as making and possessing child pornography.

During his submissions in an Oshawa courtroom the prosecutor pointed to what he characterized as Mr. Pike's lack of insight into his offences, including a letter Mr. Pike wrote to the court in which he called the assaults on young boys "mistakes."

"This is not a mistake," Mr. Saliwonchuk said. "You don't set up a video camera and get 13 hours of yourself having sex with children and call it a mistake.

"This is monstrous."

Mr. Pike was a Grade 5 teacher at Glen Street Public School in south Oshawa in July 2005 when he was arrested for sexually assaulting two young brothers whose parents he had befriended.

A police search of the man's Bowmanville home turned up DVDs that depict Mr. Pike committing sex acts on young boys who appear to be asleep.

Five of the victims were identified; others in the videos were not and Mr. Pike has refused to help Durham police identify them, Mr. Saliwonchuk said.

Other items gathered at Mr. Pike's home, including pictures of him posing with young boys while camping or in his capacity as a cruise ship recreation director, are evidence of a lifetime of predatory behaviour toward children, the Crown said.

Following his arrest Mr. Pike was dismissed by the Durham school board. The Ontario College of Teachers has scheduled a hearing July 8 to have his teaching licence revoked, court heard.

No allegations of sexual abuse have come from children Mr. Pike taught.

Justice Devlin reserved her ruling on a sentence.

Congratulations for public school students

DURHAM — The success of some Durham public school students isn't going under the radar at the board table.

Education director Martyn Beckett congratulated various students for the awards they'd won during his recent good news report to the Durham District School Board.

At T.R. McEwen Public School in Oshawa, Zachary Langille won the grand prize in the A&E essay contest, 'Lives That Make A Difference'. The Grade 8 student wrote an essay on Eva Olsson, an author and Holocaust survivor. He won $5,000 for the essay.

Henry Street High School won the Senior Gold Award in the National Geographic's Canadian Environment Awards, The Green Team Challenge 2008. Henry Street won the high school portion of the awards and received $2,500. It's also featured in Canadian Geographic magazine.

Students and staff from Frenchman's Bay, William Dunbar and Westcreek public schools in Pickering were also acknowledged for their participation in the Destination Imagination global finals in Knoxville, Tennessee. Their results included a 10th place out of 78 for the Folktale Scientists team of Grade 4 students from Frenchman's Bay.

This weekend take the family fishing

DURHAM — This weekend is Ontario Family Fishing Weekend.

The Central Lake Ontario Conservation Area is inviting people to visit local conservation areas to enjoy some fishing. From 12:01 a.m. Friday, July 4, to 11:59 p.m. Sunday, July 6, Canadian residents will be allowed to fish in Ontario without a licence, though all other regulations, fees and limits will apply.

"Creeks within CLOCA's jurisdiction provide many great angling opportunities for a variety of fish species, such as brown trout, rainbow trout, brook trout, smallmouth bass, panfish and many others," said Gord Geissberger, CLOCA's community outreach co-ordinator. "Family Fishing Weekend is a great time to take a break, pack a picnic lunch along with your fishing rod and discover your local conservation area."

The following local conservation areas will be open from dawn until dusk with fishing opportunities: Heber Down in Whitby; Enniskillen in Clarington; Lynde Shores in Whitby; and Oshawa Valleylands in Oshawa.

In Pickering, the Urban Fishing Festival is being held from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday, July 5 at Progress Park on Frenchman's Bay, off Front Street. Among the groups involved are the Toronto and Region Conservation Authority, the City of Pickering, and the Pickering Rod and Gun Club.

For more information, call Wil Wegman at 905-713-7730.

Powder remains a mystery

Too little of an amount to determine actual substance

PICKERING — The strange powder sent to the City of Pickering a couple of weeks ago remains a mystery.

The white powder that shut down City Hall for half a day and evening had a number of ramifications on the City, including an estimated $20,000-to-$25,000 loss and a number of people placed in quarantine. The powder, sent in an envelope with three parking tickets, was opened by two clerks.

Team-1 Environmental Services, Pickering's haz-mat team, was on the scene to test the powder. But chief administrative officer Tom Quinn explained all that could be determined was the fact that it was not anthrax and it was not toxic.

"Because of the limited amount of material that was there it was very hard to do the test," he said. Team-1 first tested for protein, which would have indicated anthrax, and it came up negative. Tested to see if something would grow in a culture form for bacteria, which would have shown anything toxic, that had a negative result as well.

Both revealed the substance was not hazardous, but whether it was a material such as baby powder could not be determined.

Humane Society wants cats kept under wraps

Refuses to allow adoptions to owners who allow felines to roam

By Jillian Follert
jfollert@durhamregion.com

DURHAM — Ruby Richards has seen things no animal lover ever should.

Cats that have been hit by cars, beaten, strangled, poisoned, ripped apart by dogs.

As manager of the Durham Region Humane Society, she is on the front line when animals come through the doors clinging to life and is there to watch as staff pour time, money and love into nursing them back to health.

That's why she is so passionate about the policy that says cats won't be placed with adoptive owners who will allow them to roam freely outside.

"We're not going to save these rescued animals, only to have someone turn around and let them outside, where they could be hurt again," she said. "A lot of people don't grasp it when we explain it or they get irritated. They say they've had outdoor cats who've been fine. That may be, but it doesn't make it OK."

It's a policy that left Jennifer Bouma stunned.

Last week, the Whitby resident took her two young children to the Humane Society of Durham Region and picked out a kitten to take home.

When it came time to fill out the adoption papers she indicated her family would be allowing the cat to run freely on their large rural property -- and her application was promptly refused.

"I was shocked they would deny someone who is a cat lover and who is willing to provide a home for an animal that needs one," Ms. Bouma said. "My three-year-old was crying, because she wanted to take home the kitty. It wasn't fair to the cat either. It was purring and ready to go home with us."

She told Humane Society staff she would be willing to change her mind and keep the cat indoors but was still denied.

Ms. Richards said it's a matter of safety for the cats -- and the letter of the law.

Oshawa, Whitby, Clarington, Ajax and Pickering all have bylaws prohibiting both dogs and cats from roaming freely.

In Scugog and Uxbridge, there are rules for dogs but cats aren't mentioned.

"People seem to accept the fact they can't let dogs run around but they don't think the same way for cats," said Kathy Duncan, manager of animal services for the City of Oshawa. "Cats can still go outside but it should be in a cattery or on a harness."

It's a belief that is also held by the Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (OSPCA).

Christa Chadwick, director of Animal Care for the OSPCA, said the first response is to educate potential pet owners about the risks to outdoor cats -- a tactic that works most of the time.

"Most people, when they hear the statistics and information, change their minds about wanting to let the cat out," she said. On average, Ms. Chadwick said outdoor cats have a lifespan of five years, compared with 12 to 20 years for their indoor counterparts.

Consider a better world, create a better room

If you're thinking of redecorating, think green

Today many homeowners are choosing to create spaces made entirely from environmentally friendly materials. The choices are many and varied, as most home décor manufacturers now offer eco-friendly products to meet the need of this growing trend. From energy efficient windows to engineered flooring, consumers can "go green" and still create spectacular spaces.

Your floor is always a good place to start since it's the second largest surface in any room. Possibilities are endless but you may want to think twice about a floor that has to be glued or stapled down. Re-use isn't an option with these floors: once the floor is pulled up, the next stop is the local landfill.

Specially engineered hard-surface floors in hardwood and cork are strong environmental choices. These floors stand up well and endure beautifully for decades. Perhaps their biggest strength is an efficient use of natural resources during production. Take TORLYS Hardwood for example. This floor - made by TORLYS Smart Floors (torlys.com) of Mississauga, Ontario - complements great looks with engineering so precise that it uses up to 30 times fewer trees than conventional solid hardwood. And, because TORLYS Hardwood is made with the Uniclic joint, every floor can be easily disassembled and moved to another room, or donated to a Habitat for Humanity ReStore. For more information, visit torlys.com.

Modern technology makes it possible to install floors that create beautiful spaces and still have a greatly reduced impact on the environment. In today's world, using fewer natural resources in production and ease of re-use are benefits worth thinking about.

Company expansion to create jobs in Pickering

RecoverCorp grows for third time since 2000

By Kristen Calis
kcalis@durhamregion.com

PICKERING — The expansion of RecoverCorp Inc. will bring new jobs to the community, says the Pickering-based company's executive vice-president.

"We're creating 35 to 50 new jobs in the next 12 months," Lyle Roda said.

The collections agency made PROFIT magazine's PROFIT 100 list of Canada's Fastest Growing Companies in June, and a couple of weeks later, it unveiled the expansion of its new 1,600-square-foot call centre. It's the third time RecoverCorp has been expanded since it opened in 2000.

The Profit 100 list also marks the fourth time the company has been recognized by PROFIT magazine. Last year it made the top 100 list and it made the top 50 list of new (within five years old) businesses twice. Mayor Dave Ryan welcomed the expansion at the ceremony.

"They City of Pickering is actively working with corporate partners like RecoverCorp to create a more dynamic and compelling commercial environment," he said. "I congratulate RecoverCorp for earning this nationwide recognition, which, in turn, helps to strengthen Pickering's burgeoning reputation as a preferred place to do business."

RecoverCorp started up in Pickering and plans to stay within the city, even when it outgrows its current space, Mr. Roda said. The company located in Pickering because it was inexpensive compared to Toronto and Durham's growing population was a draw for labour. Being named by PROFIT for four years, Mr. Roda said it demonstrates a positive example for the Durham business community.

"We're showing at least local Durham companies can grow," he said.

And "although the City's not going to get rich off RecoverCorp," it does benefit the local labour force and will help keep the local economy going.

RecoverCorp is not just looking for call centre employees, but people to work in all areas, such as finance and internet technology.

"We're not just known as a collection agency anymore," he said, adding 60 per cent of the business is third party collections and 40 per cent is all other types of contact management, such as outsourcing.

Visit the company online at www.recovercorp.com.

Teachers' union quick to make a deal

Collective agreement ratified with the Province

DURHAM — Months before their contract expires, the Province and Ontario Secondary School Teacher's Federation (OSSTF) have reached a deal.

More than 200 OSSTF teachers, including a few in Durham Region, who work in provincial schools that serve deaf, blind or visually impaired, deaf and blind, and incarcerated adults are affected by the new collective agreement reached on June 26. The current contract doesn't expire until Aug. 31.

"I think there was very much a willingness on the part of the government to address some of the issues that historically had been of concern for the staff in the schools because they're just so unique dealing with these students," said Ken Coran, OSSTF president.

Some of the students have multi-disabilities, he said.

Usually bargaining is a long process with threats of, or actual labour disruptions, he said. This set of employees is in a unique scenario when dealing with collective agreements, negotiating directly with the Province instead of through a school board, Mr. Coran said. The new agreement includes the allocation of additional staff as well as a clear definition of how staff will be assigned. Local concerns were also addressed.

"The more we can address those and clearly address those the better," Mr. Coran said.

Councillor wants tuition breaks for local students

UOIT, Durham College concerned about revenue impact

By Jillian Follert
jfollert@durhamregion.com

DURHAM — An Oshawa councillor says he thinks tuition discounts at Durham College and UOIT might be just the incentive needed to make more local kids stay home to get their education.

Councillor Tito-Dante Marimpietri introduced a notice of motion at the last council meeting of the summer, asking that Durham College and UOIT consider offering a price break to all native-born Oshawa citizens and those who have lived in the city for at least 13 months.

Coun. Marimpietri said the idea occurred to him several years ago when he was attending university in Montreal and discovered students who had lived in Quebec for 11 months or more were eligible for discounted tuition.

UOIT president Ron Bordessa said it's tough to comment on the proposal until he knows whether council supports it.

But he is concerned about how an initiative like this would be funded, as the motion is clear the City wouldn't be subsidizing the discounts.

"There would be a lot of foregone revenue there," he said. "The question would be, could we offer the same level of service with less money coming in from tuition?"

Dr. Bordessa said UOIT offers scholarships and bursaries -- many of which are paid for through philanthropic donations -- but doesn't have any tuition discounts because of the potential revenue loss.

Some schools offer roll-backs to seniors and mature students, but Dr. Bordessa couldn't think of any Ontario institutions that offer price breaks based on place of residence.

Also concerned was Durham College president Don Lovisa, who echoed Dr. Bordessa's comments about the financial impact.

"Tuition represents a significant part of our total revenue. We would have to be concerned about how this would impact resources for students," he said. "I hope council thinks about this very carefully."

Enrolment figures from September 2007 indicate just under 40 per cent of UOIT students are from Durham Region and Northumberland County.

Mystery, mirth and magic at Class Act

All the world's on stage at Whitby theatre

DURHAM — Class Act Dinner Theatre has shaken things up for the summer. Actors will share the stage with comedians and a magician as Class Act presents a variety of entertainment during Summer Festival in July and August. All shows are dinner shows.

Comedian Ron James, who appears before sold-out crowds here, is back for several appearances with most of them sold out already.

Tickets are still available for the July 24 dinner show.

On select nights from July 10 to Aug. 30, the comedy Marriage is Murder will be staged. Velika Mangova and Bill Baker star as ex-spouses Polly and Paul Butler, who wrote murder mysteries together when they were married.

In order to discover if murder methods work, they acted out the crimes together. Now they're back writing together for a big fee and it's hard to tell if they're just acting out the methods or actually trying to kill each other, said director Glenn Ottaway.

Then, for six shows, it's The Magic of Laughter, featuring magician Richard Forget. He has wowed crowds throughout the world receiving many nominations and awards. The shows, which run during the period of July 31 to Aug. 10, also include juggler/comedian Little Freddy Wonder, the bluegrass singing duo Doin' Time and stand-up comedians, including Ottaway.

"There's something for everyone," Ottaway said.

You can get tickets for all three events in the Summer Festival for $120 or buy them individually.

For more information, go to www.class-act.ca or call 905-668-2229.

Entertainment in brief

JULY 4, 2008

Three nights of church musicians

DURHAM — Church musicians are showing their talents at three, free concerts in Durham next week. The Summer Institute of Church Music (SICM) is holding the concerts as part of its program of offering workshops to church musicians during the summer. All of the concerts start at 8 p.m.

On July 8, the Osbourne Organ Competition final round features some of the best young organists competing for a prize. The concert is at St. George's Anglican Church, 51 Centre St. S. in Oshawa.

On July 9, there's a Community Choral Concert featuring a choir of SICM registrants.

Lori Anne Dollof, a professor of music at the University of Toronto, is the conductor. It's at St. Mark's United Church at 201 Centre St. S. in Whitby.

Finally, on July 10, once again at St. George's Anglican Church in Oshawa, there's a Gala Organ Concert featuring organist Michael Bloss.

He has performed in Canada, Europe and the US and, until recently, was the organist/music director at St. James Cathedral in Toronto.

Water, water everywhere

PICKERING — The Making Waves exhibit has splashed into Pickering.

The exhibit challenged Ontario artists to respond to the theme of Making Waves, examining how water adds meaning to our lives and sustains us body and spirit.

The show is presented by Meta4 Contemporary Craft Gallery in Port Perry, in a partnership with Scugog Lake Stewards Inc.

The juried exhibit was in the Port Perry gallery roughly a month ago and Marcia Masino of Pickering received the jurors' choice from Scugog Lake Stewards for her water-colour 'Seagoat'.

It opens today at GALLERY 364 at the Durham West Arts Centre and runs until July 13.

The opening reception is tonight, July 4, at the gallery from 7 to 9 p.m.

The exhibition is free and suitable for all ages. For more information, call the DWAC at 905-492-2522.

The gallery is at 364 Kingston Rd. (at Rougemount Drive) in Pickering.

Stock gets noon-hour busing

Extra service will cost $75 per route per day

DURHAM — It'll be up to Stock Transportation to get Catholic kindergarten students to and from school at the noon hour this September.

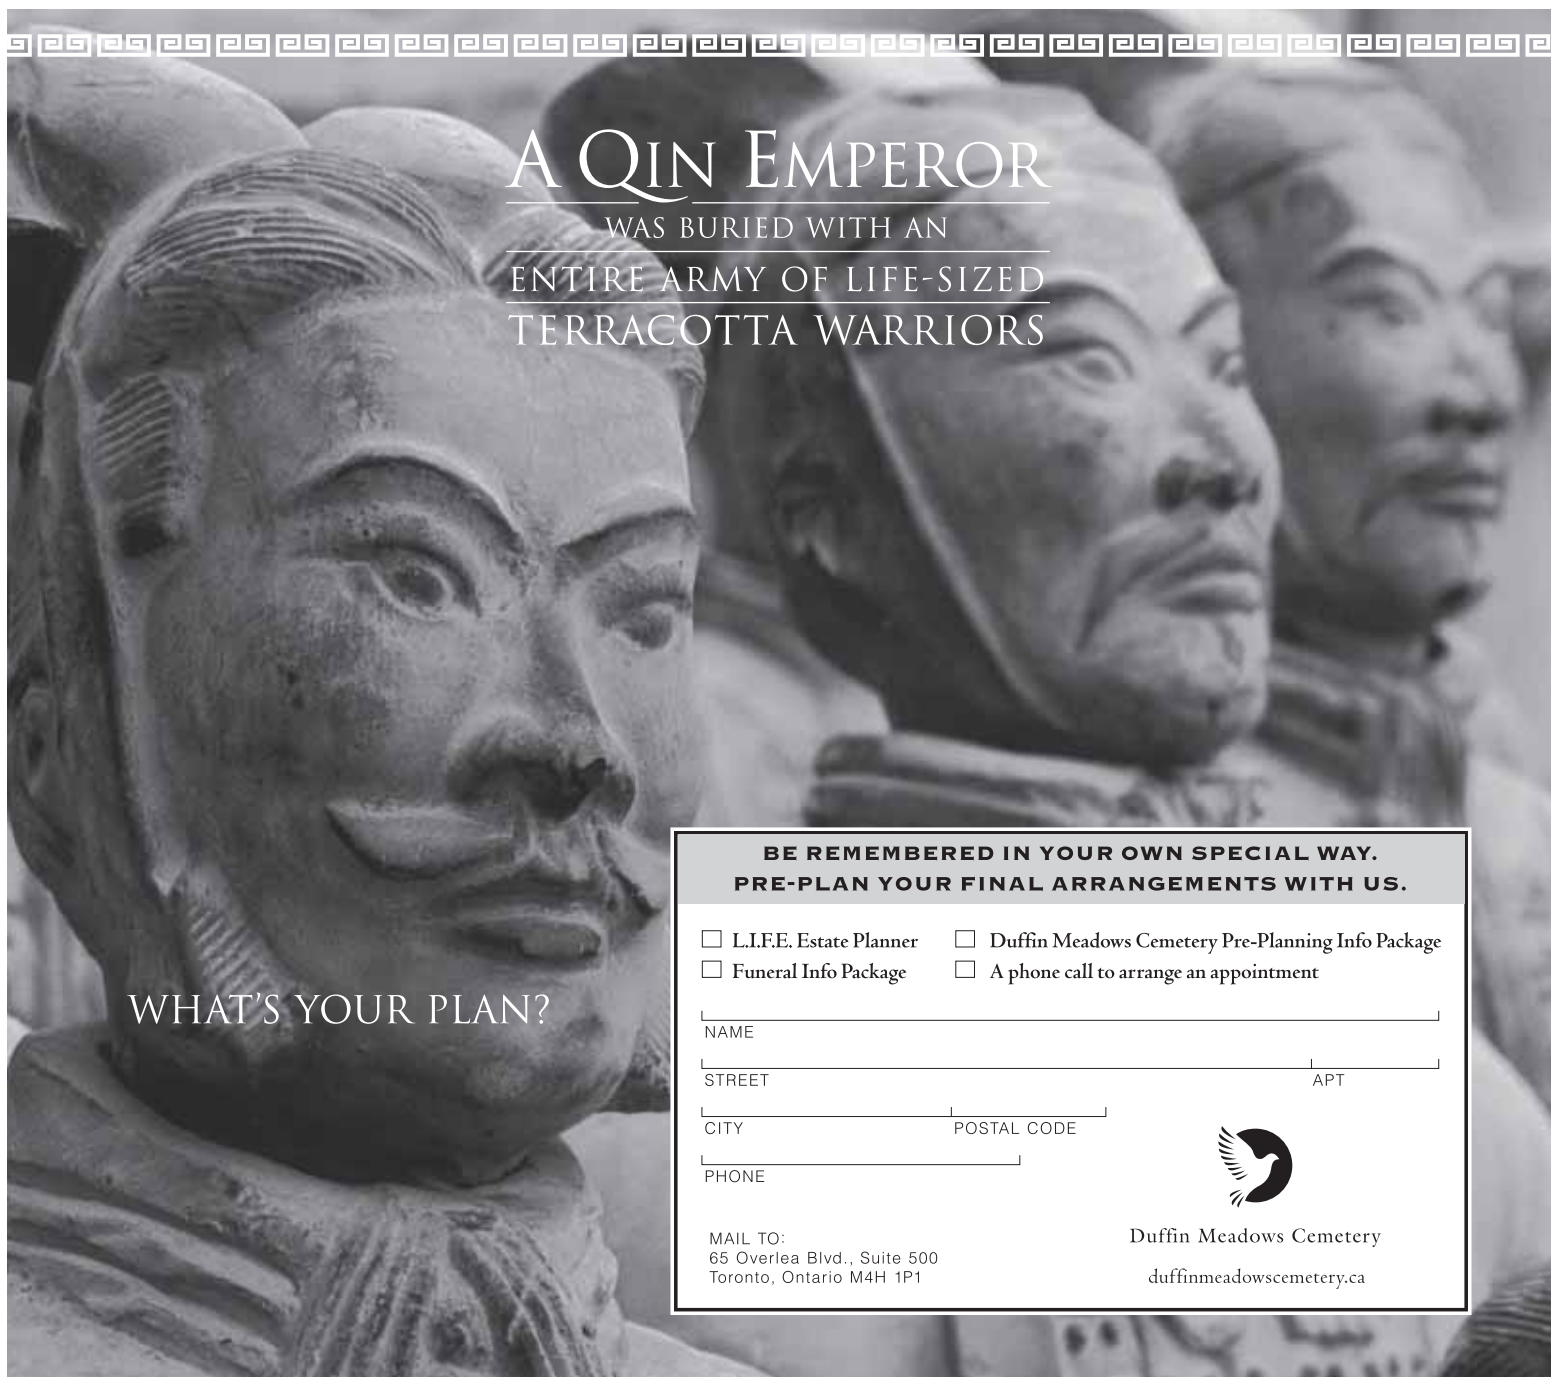

Stock won the bid to provide the new noon-hour bus service, with a price of $75 per route per day. The only other tender was submitted by First-Student, formally Laidlaw, at $85 per route per day.

The flat fee is based on an anticipated average route time of 75 minutes and a fuel cost of 75 cents per litre, with a standard fuel escalator clause provided.

The Catholic board has 32 schools offering half-day everyday kindergarten this September.

Staff believe Stock has the necessary vehicle fleet and drivers available to provide the service, says a report presented to trustees at the June 23 Durham Catholic District School Board meeting.

Even with the price factors, such as fuel costs and route time, the annual cost is still anticipated to be within the $600,000 budgeted for the service when it was approved by trustees earlier this year.

Epilepsy group hopes flowers raise more than just funds

'People can contribute to this cause with their time, their understanding and their compassion'

this summer.

"We really want people to understand what epilepsy is, that it has no cure," said Dianne McKenzie, executive director of Epilepsy Durham Region. "People can contribute to this cause with their time, their understanding and their compassion. That's really what is missing."

Epilepsy Durham Region has been offering support for 20 years to people living with epilepsy. They will celebrate their 21-year anniversary this fall.

"We don't receive any external funding, so we are reliant on the generosity of our community for supporting our programming and critical services," Mrs. McKenzie said. "We are the only support service in the region and we're dealing with an area that has double the national average of epilepsy cases."

In Durham Region, 2.1 per cent of the population has epilepsy, in contrast to a national average of almost one per cent, Mrs. McKenzie said. In addition, seniors are more susceptible to developing epilepsy after a stroke, which means an expected boom in senior populations will further stress services.

"Three hundred thousand Canadians live with epilepsy and it's a very mysterious disorder that can affect anyone, at any time, for no particular reason," she said.

"Particularly in the senior population, we're seeing high instances of epilepsy post-stroke. We're misdiagnosing these people after strokes with dementia and Alzheimer's.

"So this is what's on the horizon for us as an organization. With one full-time staff person, how do we promote to the senior population and their caregivers that their loved one is actually experiencing seizures and not living with dementia?"

The organization hopes to raise $12,000 with this year's campaign.

People are encouraged to sign up as office co-ordinators online and take care of orders within their workplace.

Office co-ordinators are then entered into a draw for door prizes along with other volunteers, who can sign up to deliver or sell bouquets.

Bouquets are $6 each and are available for order from the Epilepsy Durham Region office at 905-666-9926 or online at www.epilepsydurham.com/glad.html.

They will also be sold at area Beer Stores and LCBO outlets in Oshawa, Bowmanville, Uxbridge, Ajax, Pickering and Whitby on Aug. 15, 16 and 23 between 1 and 6 p.m. For more information contact Epilepsy Durham Region

Pickering woman jumping from lake to sea

On her way to lifesaving worlds

By Kristen Galis
kcalis@durhamregion.com

PICKERING — A young Pickering swimmer will soon leave Lake Ontario and dive into the Baltic Sea for the Lifesaving World Championships in Germany.

Renata Jaciw-Zurakowsky, 20, is one of 12 athletes from across Canada competing in Berlin and Warnemunde, Germany from July 21 to Aug. 2 in the championships put on by the International Life Saving Federation and the German Life Saving Organization. Team Canada is up against 32 countries in both pool and surf events. Ms. Jaciw-Zurakowsky was chosen after gold-medal performances at the Surf Nationals in Nova Scotia last August and the Canadian Pool Championships in Toronto in March.

"I'm so excited," she said, adding this will be her first trip to Germany.

The sport of lifesaving is a combination of competitive swimming and timed, simulated rescue drills and is designed to test the athlete's endurance, speed, agility, coordination and strength in the pool and surf. The pool events are much like a swim meet, "but with more things to do," like swimming with fins, picking up a manikin and pulling it back. Surf is "more fun" and includes activities such as paddling, open water runs and beach runs.

'I love it, even the training, just because it's so diverse.'

-- RENATA JACIW-ZURAKOWSKY

"I love it, even the training, just because it's so diverse," she said. "You can do so much with it."

A student at Dalhousie University in Halifax, Ms. Jaciw-Zurakowsky is a member of the Varsity Tigers Swim Team. She's been training about twice a day for two hours to prepare for the world championships since the actual competitions are extremely intense.

"It's more tiring than any other swim meet I've been to," she said.

Ms. Jaciw-Zurakowsky enrolled in swimming lessons at age 10 and "the swimming instructor strongly encouraged me to take it to another level."

So from the time she was 13 or 14, she's been interested and competing in pool lifesaving competitions and only began competing in surf competitions last year.

It's not only on a competitive level that Ms. Jaciw-Zurakowsky knows how to save lives: she works as a lifeguard for the Toronto Police Services on Toronto Island and has even performed some lifesaving duties on her own time. For example, on the way back from her cottage one day, Ms. Jaciw-Zurakowsky witnessed a car accident and got out of the car, finding two people had suffered major head injuries.

"I just kind of administered first aid as best as I could and called EMS," she said, adding both survived.

The experienced lifesaver is still nervous for the competition, but thinks one thing will help.

"I think my (excitement) is helping me get over my nerves," she said.

Ms. Jaciw-Zurakowsky believes Canada will probably do better in the pool events rather than surf since its outdoor season is short compared to Australia's, for example. And she knows who Canada's competition is.

"Definitely the Aussies and probably the Americans," she said. "The South Africans are good also."

But, despite a strong will to win, she's trying her best to remember she's basically doing it for fun.

Local residents play on for Madison at the university

DURHAM — A Brooklin man and his friends from around the region are playing hockey to raise money for cancer.

The game is being organized by Jeff McGrath for 10-year-old Madison Scott, whom he met last year. Madison was diagnosed with leukemia in October 2007 and since then, Mr. McGrath said she has fought the battle heroically.

Madison has raised more than $21,000 through her page on the Hospital for Sick Children's Change Crusaders website.

"Cancer has given her an opportunity to prove how strong and resilient she really is, as she is not only battling through this awful disease herself, but also helping other sick children," Mr. McGrath said.

The game is on Saturday, July 5, at the University of Ontario Institute of Technology (UOIT) arena from 2 to 5 p.m. Donations are welcome outside of the arena.

After the game, a banquet dinner will take place upstairs at Shagwell's on the Ridge restaurant. There will be tickets to sporting events and other prizes available through the auction and raffle.

There are hopes to raise $10,000 on the big day, which will go to the

Ajax makes an Impact in Darlington tourney win

AJAX — The Ajax Impact under-nine boys' soccer team claimed yet another championship recently.

The Impact captured their second title of the season while mowing down all its foes at the Darlington Rep Soccer Tournament.

In the finals, against the host Darlington Strikers, Ajax struck early and often on the way to a 9-2 win. Facing the Whitby 'B' squad in the semis, the Impact prevailed, although no score was provided.

During round-robin action, Ajax didn't surrender a single goal. Strong defense was supplied by goalkeeper Devin Smith, Adrian Martini, Nicholas Sims, Maarten Schyvenaars and Dalton Clark.

Other key contributors during the tourney were Matthew Dean, Austin Werner, Joshua Cammalleri, Jordan Hardie, Darryn Commissiong, Nicholas Cirone, Nathaniel Sadler and Kevin Stiles.

The under-nines won the Whitby Iroquois Tournament in early June.
