Pickering greener with land donation

Senator celebrates birthday with present
for moraine

By Kristen Calis
kcalis@durhamregion.com

PICKERING — Ontario Senator Nancy Ruth chose to celebrate her 65th birthday by donating 61 acres of environmentally sensitive land.

Ms. Ruth purchased the Pickering land in the 1960s for approximately $16,000. But now that she's thinking seriously about her estate, doesn't have children, and doesn't need the money she'd get from selling, she's decided to donate it to the Oak Ridges Moraine Land Trust.

"I didn't need it. If I didn't give it, who would?" she said in an interview.

The trust is a non-profit organization that protects and restores natural spaces throughout the Oak Ridges Moraine. It has protected 2,858 acres of land since 2000, worth $12.6 million. Ms. Ruth's donation of land to the ORMLT is the biggest nature reserve it manages so far.

"It's 61 acres of land in Pickering. It's a very substantial donation," said Don Prince, ORMLT's executive director.

Located on the south slope of the Oak Ridges Moraine along the watershed divide of Duffins Creek and Lynde Creek, the land's made up of mature forest, consisting of sugar maple, red oak and white pine, and second-growth forest on the southern portion. In 1967, over

Help meet the need

DURHAM — High demand, warmer weather and holidays have led to lower turnout at blood donor clinics and a great need for platelets. Canadian Blood Services is appealing to the public to donate to help meet the need.

A national inventory allows the organization to move blood from one end of the country to another, according to need, but platelets - used in the clotting of blood -- require five whole blood donations. As well, it is dependent on storage times and availability. Platelets are used primarily in treatment of cancer patients, prolonged bleeding associated with some diseases and in trauma surgeries. They only have a shelf life of five days. To donate, call 1-888-2DONATE or visit www.blood.ca to find a donor clinic nearby and book an appointment.

Donations allow land to stay 'greenspace forever'

15,000 coniferous trees, such as red pine and white spruce, were planted.

"At the time, it was a cent a tree," Ms. Ruth said.

Extremely pleased with the donation, Mr. Prince explained the property will help maintain the quality of Duffins Creek and Lynde Creek, both flowing into Lake Ontario. He said 65 rivers that flow into Lake Ontario start on the moraine.

"Even the City of Toronto is one of our supporters...The water that flows into Lake Ontario is of concern to them," he said.

The ORMLT has now received four donations and 18 easements, with the help of the federal government's Ecological Gifts Program, which allows for enhanced income tax receipts to encourage land donations. This is part of the reason for Ms. Ruth's donation.

With a conservation easement, owners give up the development rights to the ORMLT, but still own the land.

Mr. Prince said putting land in the hands of the land trust gives donors the relief that it will stay "greenspace forever," no matter the government of the day.

He also explained the 61 acres is close to other areas of preserved land, critical in conserving the moraine. For example, salt coming off roads can add to future deterioration of small forests.

"The smaller the forest, the more threats to integrity of its long-term sustainability," he said.

Ms. Ruth hopes her donation will inspire others.

"It's all about creating a better social fabric for Ontarians," Ms. Ruth said.

A Special Place

Next time you drive south on Centre St., just past city hall and right next to the RS McLaughlin Public Library, look for downtown Oshawa's newest mural. Gracing one of Oshawa's oldest institutions of learning, the mural is located on the north-west side of the E.A. Lovell Adult and Continuing Education Centre, that is home to the Durham District School Board's Durham Continuing Education and its innovative programs.

The school held a celebration on Thursday, May 31, 2007, to dedicate the mural as the culmination of the school's sesquicentennial project begun in 2005. The site has the distinction of having been a home for education for more than 150 years, originally as an elementary and high school, when it was Centre Street School, and later as E.A. Lovell Public School named for the long serving and distinguished chair and trustee of the local board of education.

Tony Johnson, Artist

The mural depicts both the past and present. Edwin Arthur Lovell, the school's namesake, holds the lamp of learning. The heart and soul of the mural emanates from the beaming faces of students who have been so aptly depicted by renowned Oshawa artist, Tony Johnson. Mr. Johnson has completed three other murals in the downtown core, and has imbued his work of art with a brightness and energy that reflects the school's variety of adult programs: English as a Second Language, Adult Credit Day School, Computer Training, Personal Support Worker, Teach in Durham, Hospitality and Building Maintenance. Children from the Language Instruction for Newcomers to Canada's on-site preschool complete the picture.

Mr. Lovell's grandchildren, Diana Kirk and Arthur Lovell were present at the event honouring the school and their grandfather.

In his remarks, Principal Mel Barkwill, dedicated the mural in honor of the students, teachers, staff, former administrators, and community members, who have been part of the rich mosaic that makes Durham Continuing Education a special place for us all. Principal Barkwill went on to thank all those individuals, whose contributions have made this mural a monument to our community of learning - past, present and future.

A recent student, Nabila Ballok, one of the graduates of the Teach in Durham program for internationally-trained teachers, and whose likeness is depicted in the mural, spoke proudly of how the school had renewed her hopes, and given her the opportunity to find employment in her chosen profession in her new country.

In addition to the mural dedication, the celebration included a BBQ for students and guests to raise funds for the Canadian Cancer Society's annual Relay for Life.

Durham patients waiting less time for surgeries

Cancer surgery wait times decrease by 39 per cent

DURHAM — Patients are spending less time waiting for key health care services in the Central East Local Health Integration Network, the health and long-term care minister recently announced.

"Trends in the Central East LHIN area are encouraging, with significant decreases in wait times for a number of key health services," Mr. Smitherman said in a press release.

Since August and September,

2005, wait times in which nine out of 10 patients have had their exam or completed their surgery have decreased by: 39 per cent for cancer surgery, now taking 35 days; 40 per cent for cataract surgery, making it 126 days; 37 per cent for angiography, now down to eight days; 24 per cent for hip replacements, now 97 days; nearly 8 per cent for knee replacements (23 days); and nearly 7 per cent for CT scans, wait-times now four days.

Mr. Smitherman officially announced the government's wait time strategy in November, 2004, and since then, the government has invested over $49 million for additional hospital procedures in the Central East LHIN area.

Residents continue to fight incineration proposal

Lone proponent says time has come for energy-from-waste facility

By Erin Hatfield
ehatfield@durhamregion.com

DURHAM — After three years of attending public meetings and investigating energy from waste (EFW), Catherine McKeever says she decided in favour of the technology.

"Quite frankly, I resent all these people who couldn't have bothered coming out month after month and now saying there was no public consultation," said the Clarington resident. "How NIMBY of them; they don't want anyone else's garbage, but they believe someone else wants theirs."

She applauded a partnership between York and Durham regions to find a home-grown way of managing the garbage left over after reuse and recycling and said she looks forward to the day it opens.

Ms. McKeever was one of nearly a dozen delegations that turned out at the May 30 Regional Council meeting to voice their opinion on incineration. However, she was the lone supporter of the controversial technology of burning garbage. Others urged the Region to either adopt a zero waste policy or a stabilized landfill.

The roster of opposition cited environmental, economic and most often health concerns with the technology. Residents, most of whom have appeared at a number of council and committee meetings at both the Region and Clarington, say EFW facilities are unsafe, uneconomical and unproven.

"There's a lot more things to be worried about than dioxins," Ms. McKeever said. "But no one can say dioxins cause cancer, because dioxins have always been. It is like saying air creates disease."

The all-day debate centered on a motion asking council to allot $200,000 for Clarington to do an independent peer review of the investigation into EFW.

"How can you consider putting a limit on our councillors doing their due diligence," said Orono resident Jim Richards.

Five sites have been identified by consultants as possible locations for an EFW facility. Four are in Clarington and one in East Gwillimbury, whose council recently passed a motion indicating they will not be a willing host.

The project schedule would have a site selected and the $250-million facility up and operating by 2010, before Michigan, where Durham's trash is currently shipped, closes its borders to Ontario trash.

Erin Shapero, a Markham town councillor, told Durham councillors she refutes the claim that there is a Michigan border crisis at hand.

"We have 125-million-tonne capacity in Ontario landfill," she said. "We can use stabilized landfill until we can get all we can out of that residual stream. The crisis is that we create too much garbage."

She said the debate shouldn't be over whether or not incineration is safe but if it's smart. Council voted to allot the $200,000 as a starting point for Clarington studies, but also instructed staff to identify what additional studies need to be done and how much they might cost, in co-operation with Clarington municipal staff.

Sweat? No Sweat...

Dr. Charles Copeland

Do you change your shirt or blouse more than once a day because you sweat too much? Do you choose dark colours, wear layers or leave your jacket on to conceal your problem? You may be one of the estimated 950,000 Canadians who suffer from Primary Hyperhidrosis (HH).

Hyperhidrosis is the medical term for sweating. Hyperhidrosis can be generalized or focal. Generalized hyperhidrosis is often a symptom of other medical problems, including anxiety disorders, thyroid problems, menopause, medications, and some cancers.

Primary Focal Hyperhidrosis has no cause and often affects the underarms, hands, scalp or feet.

Primary Focal Hyperhidrosis which affects approximately 3% of the population often goes untreated.

The disorder starts at puberty or in the early 20's and often runs in families. Sufferers go to extreme lengths to conceal and manage their problem. People with palm sweating avoid social situations for fear of having to shake hands and sometimes avoid certain types of occupations due to embarrassment. Hyperhidrosis is more than just a mild nuisance, it is very debilitating and most suffer in silence.

Primary hyperhidrosis has varying degrees of severity and several treatment options: aluminum chloride containing solutions, iontophoresis (a procedure which uses a galvanic current device) drugs such as glycopyrolate, surgery (permanent removal of the sweat glands or sympathectomy), and Botox® injections.

Growing in popularity, therapeutic Botox® is extremely effective for this condition. It can be injected into the skin to help stop sweating. Botox® treats HH by interrupting the chemical messages released by nerve endings that signal the sweat glands to begin producing sweat. Sweating is therefore "switched off" in the area temporarily. For underarm sweating patients are treated about once a year and slightly more frequently for hand sweating. Most people with Hyperhidrosis struggle with the social aspect of the condition and are usually extremely satisfied with treatment.

The good news is that this is a Health Canada approved treatment therefore the Botox® prescription is covered by most drug plans. For more information see the International Hyperhidrosis Society website at www.sweathelp.org or www.sweatmanagement.ca

For most people with Hyperhidrosis, successful treatment is life changing, allowing normal socialization and work performance usually taken for granted by others.

Dr. Charles Copeland practices cosmetic medicine at MD Aesthetics and is a member of the American Society for Laser Medicine and Surgery.

New chief has long local track record

The Durham Regional Police Services board didn't have to look far to find the region's sixth chief of police.

The man chosen to be Durham's top cop has been working right there under their noses for the past quarter-century.

And, beginning this month, after a decade-long absence when two outside candidates filled the bill, a member of Durham's finest sits in the chief's chair.

In choosing 25-year Durham police veteran Mike Ewles to lead the 1,100 member force, the board has picked a man well-known to the rank-and-file and well-respected for the progressive work he's done since the early 1980s.

In short, Chief Ewles has had a front-row seat in watching the massive growth and elaborate changes that have taken place in Durham over the past generation. He knows this region inside out and begins with a well-established relationship with his men and women in uniform.

The choice of Deputy-Chief Ewles for the leading role on the force continues a tradition that was laid down by Durham's first three chiefs, all of whom rose through the ranks.

Perhaps of critical importance is the likelihood that the new chief will see through his five-year term. That was a serious problem with his predecessor, Vernon White, a highly regarded veteran of many years with the RCMP who emerged as the top pick to take over for the retiring Kevin McAlpine in the fall of 2005.

Chief White came in with ambitious goals and a long-range plan but it ended too quickly earlier this year when he resigned to take over the Ottawa Police Service. He served only about a year-and-a-half.

The force clearly needs stable leadership and senior officers who work directly under the chief need to know he'll stick around to see his projects through to completion.

Chief Ewles has certainly been a local fixture and while nothing can be etched in stone and guaranteed 100 per cent, it's close to a sure thing that, God willing, the chief will be there for the duration.

And that's a good thing for this growing force and the residents of Durham.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Orange Parade should be welcomed

To the editor:

In this day and age of religious and cultural tolerance in Canada, I was quite surprised to hear about the recent controversy going on in Durham Region.

The Loyal Orange Association submitted an application to hold an Orange Parade in the Village of Orono on July 7 of this year. On the same night that the application was received by Clarington Town Council, a letter from a Newcastle resident voiced opinions against the parade, asking Town Council to reject the application. I wonder whether this resident also the voices objections to other cultural and religious demonstrations throughout the province.

The last Orange Parade held in Ajax was more than 30 years ago. Yet I am sure that the economic advantage to local businesses would be welcomed if hundreds of Orangemen, their families, friends, and band members decided to converge upon our town.

Maybe Ajax Town Council should issue an invitation to the Orange Association to hold their annual parade here. I am sure they would be most welcome.

New chief must meet crime head on

Ajax and Pickering are great communities to live and work in

For the past few months, our Monday mornings in the newsroom have started with an eye toward the Durham Regional Police web site to find out just what crime was committed in Pickering or Ajax over the weekend.

Whether it's a robbery, stabbing, beating, mischief, vandalism, it seems not a weekend goes by without a press release from the police reminding us once again about locking a car door or making sure you don't stay out too late.

It's that type of atmosphere the region's new top cop, Mike Ewles, finds himself immersed in. The new chief was introduced to the media Wednesday but it was his top priorities, youth justice issues, prevention, domestic violence and dealing with mental health issues, that Durham residents are most interested in.

And nowhere could the new chief make a bigger splash than if he was to come to Pickering and Ajax and let residents know he is committed to making the area as safe as it once was.

In the past few months I have talked to a lot of people about the crime rate in this area. One gentleman came in to complain about teens shooting paint balls but he didn't want his name used in the story for fear of retribution. But the crime problem isn't just a teen problem. It goes beyond that and there isn't one simple answer.

Robberies and break-ins are standard fare now. We have heard from residents

managing editor

living in their neighbourhoods who don't feel safe.

Former police chief Vern White held public meetings throughout the region, but not much has changed in the past few months.

The new chief must show he is committed, in a real way, to making this area a safer place for families.

Chief designate Ewles (he won't be sworn in officially until June 22) must come to Ajax and Pickering councils and establish a solid plan to deal with crime.

Mr. Ewles is no stranger to the area, having started his career in a Durham uniform in Ajax in 1982. I remember visiting many homes of my friends from Denis O'Connor high school, when it was in Whitby, and after that Durham College, without even a second thought about being out on the streets late at night.

The communities of Ajax and Pickering are a great place to live and work with lots of amenities for families, but one of the first things I still hear from residents who phone or write is a concern about crime. That attitude must be reversed.

Mike Johnston's column appears every third Sunday. E-mail mjohnston@durhamregion.com.

GM Oshawa leads in automotive productivity

Plants undergoing change despite glowing report

By Izabela Jaroszynski
ijaroszynski@durhamregion.com

DURHAM — When it comes to vehicle assembly, Oshawa has everyone beat.

According to the Harbour Report released on Thursday, the General Motors Oshawa plants are the top two in the industry for productivity in producing vehicles.

Assembly line No. 2, which produces the Pontiac Grand Prix, Buick LaCrosse and Allure, set the individual plant benchmark for labour productivity with a measure of 15.68 hours per vehicle (HPV).

Close behind was its sister plant -- assembly line No.1, that produces the Chevrolet Impala and Monte Carlo -- which came in with a 16.34 HPV performance.

Arturo Elias, the president of GM Canada, said the honour comes at an important time.

"Topping the Harbour Report is a great achievement at a time when productivity is a critical challenge facing Canada's economy," he said. "This really shows what can be accomplished with constant focus and it is a testament to our great employees at GM Canada."

The Oshawa car plant has placed within the top two plants across North America in the Harbour productivity report in each of the last five years. It has also topped the J.D. Power and Associates Initial Quality Study as the best quality plant in North and South America in four of the last five years.

"Whether you look at quality or productivity results, Oshawa car plant employees have a solid track record for setting the industry benchmark," said Canadian Auto Workers President Buzz Hargrove.

Mr. Hargrove said CAW members recognize that the auto industry is more competitive than ever and results like this are important to satisfying GM customers. Despite their individual productivity results, the two Oshawa assembly lines are in the process of transition. By the end of 2007, all production will be consolidated on line no. 2 while its neighbour undergoes a transformation into state-of-the-art flexible manufacturing facility.

In mid to late 2008, line No. 2 will shut down as production of its current vehicles runs out. The Oshawa assembly plant will be run on a single line capable of producing numerous vehicles at once.

Back and forth with tennis issues at local club

Resident raises safety concerns

By Kristen Calis
kcalis@durhamregion.com

PICKERING — Upgrades at Pickering's largest outdoor tennis club are causing quite a racket among local residents.

The issue was raised when Ron Reid stumbled upon work in progress at the Glendale Tennis Club (GTC), which is private, but located at the public David Farr Memorial Park. He claims no one informed him about it. The nearly 800-member tennis club was recently awarded a $74,400 infrastructure grant from the Ontario Trillium Foundation (OTF).

Upgrades will include a new resurfaced patio, a practice area with a backboard, sidewalks around the outside, new benches and new fencing. The City is also providing an "in-kind" contribution with excavation and preparations.

But, Mr. Reid's concerns aren't with the tennis club, but the City.

"Councillors are telling residents what they want to hear," Mr. Reid said. "They're also telling the tennis club what they want to hear."

When Mr. Reid, who lives near the club, first saw the tennis court construction, he immediately contacted his councillors. Ward 2 Regional Councillor Bill McLean sent a letter to residents stating his opposition to any further expansion of the tennis club.

"I was unaware of this until today and upon finding out I immediately asked the work to be stopped," the letter stated.

He also included notice that he'd be meeting all parties involved the next day to discuss the situation.

"If we had have been aware, we could have sat down with the club and neighbours and solved the problems before it became an explosive issue," he said in an interview.

He said although Council approved the grant application, he was unaware of the date construction would begin. Coun. McLean did say the club is well-run and is making a great effort to include youth.

Ward 2 City Councillor Doug Dickerson was also involved in shutting down the work by City staff. In an interview, he said he "didn't want further work done until finding out what was entailed."

But, when he confirmed the footprint would not change, he said he wouldn't oppose further work. City workers commenced the job the next day.

"In this case, no more land's being used," he said. "If other lands would have been used, I would have felt differently."

In fact, Coun. Dickerson said "efforts like that to upgrade should be applauded, not condemned."

Gabe Kampf, the tennis club's president, said the plans to renovate the tennis club have been available for nearly a year. He wrote the first official letter to councillors McLean and Dickerson on June 12, 2006 to request two additional tennis courts and make them aware of plans to apply for the Trillium grant. Although Council didn't approve the two extra courts, it approved the grant application on Sept. 18, 2006. Mr. Kampf said they were told to further contact and plan with the culture and recreation department.

"We simply followed the advice of our elected officials and City staff," he said.

"We had a very constructive, open process."

Barbara Jasper, the club's vice president, noted the OTF puts a mandatory order on grant recipients to refrain from releasing any details of the award until a certain date, which was April 11 in the GTC's case.

"Then we advised the club and that's when the updates started going up on the club's website," she said.

Mr. Reid also expressed the need for new park benches and a baseball diamond at the park.

"Every time we ask for something, we get nothing," he said.

Mr. Buntsma said park benches will be installed and the baseball diamond is usually used for tee ball. He said these diamonds generally require a much lower level of maintenance, but the City makes sure they're safe.

"They're certainly no better or worse than other diamonds used for the same purpose in the City," he said.

Mr. Kampf emphasized improvements to the tennis courts will make the park more appealing, especially in relation to vandalism and security, since the park and tennis court have been vandalized on a number of occasions.

Six-to-eight residents met with Glendale at a recent impromptu meeting, and Mr. Kampf and Mr. Reid agreed it was productive.

"The meeting was a really constructive opportunity," Mr. Kampf said. "We had the opportunity to provide very rich and informative answers."

Ms. Jasper said the neighbours who attended the meeting were under the impression the work being done was an expansion.

"So once we set them correct that it wasn't an expansion, that it was an improvement, that the footprint of the land wouldn't be changed, a lot of them felt relief and were more understanding of our efforts," Ms. Jasper said.

Although the GTC has experienced some delays, the club hopes the work will be complete by the weekend of June 16.

Town of Ajax helps with surgical incisions at Rouge Valley

By Keith Gilligan
kgilligan@durhamregion.com

DURHAM — Dressed in surgical garb, five of the seven members of Ajax council toured operating rooms at the Rouge Valley Ajax and Pickering hospital.

It was more than just a mere tour, however.

The politicians had a chance to see how a donation included in the Town's 2007 budget will be used by the institution.

Ajax included a $250,000 contribution to the hospital, to be doled out in four annual instalments of $62,500. The money will be used to buy minimally invasive surgery (MIS) equipment for the Ajax site.

MIS involves using a tiny video camera and remote-controlled instruments to perform surgical procedures through incisions that are much smaller than those in traditional operations.

It results in less scarring, faster recovery times and fewer surgery-related complications.

The Rouge Valley Centenary site in Scarborough is the only community hospital in the GTA with an MIS suite.

Surgeons there have been successfully performing a variety of procedures for the past two years, such as laparoscopic bowel resections and operations on gall bladders, spleens and kidneys.

"The benefits of minimally invasive surgery to a patient are enormous," Dr. Peter Hayashida, program chief of surgery at Rouge Valley Ajax and Pickering, says in a press release.

"It is sometimes called keyhole surgery because of the tiny incision, and for Lisa McVety, right, manager of surgical services at the Rouge Valley Ajax and Pickering hospital, explains how some of the operating room equipment works to Ajax politicians. The Town is donating $250,000 over four years to fund minimally invasive surgical equipment. the patient it means less need for pain medication, smaller scars, shorter hospital stays and faster overall recovery time."

Tracy Paterson, acting executive director of the Rouge Valley Health System Foundation, said the $250,000 donation pushes the Town's lifetime contribution to the hospital to almost $1 million.

Lisa McVety, the nurse manager of surgical services, led the councillors on the tour.

She thanked them for the contribution, saying, "It's the only way we can grow."

"Most of our surgery is keyhole," she noted. "Ninety per cent of the surgery is day surgery."

"We see on average 50 people a day for elective surgery. There's another 10 add on, so we do 60 surgeries a day," Ms. McVety added.

Given the number of patients who come in for surgery, the "turnover is phenomenal."

Ms. Paterson said the first instalment will enable the hospital to "double" the number of cancer scopes that can be done.

Ms. McVety noted, "Scopes help find cancers."

The scopes the hospital plans to buy are "state-of-the-art."

"It puts us very far ahead of scope standards," Ms. McVety stated.

Having a scope processor, sterilizer and disinfecter will "help double our capacity."

"We do 5,000 scopes a year," she said. "We'll be up to 7,500 per year when we're running at full tilt."

Patients who urgently need a scoping procedure will be able to have one sooner, she added.

"Some patients may be waiting a year for a colonoscopy and for some, that's too long," Ms. McVety stated.

"It will support our ambulatory care unit in the basement. All endoscopes are done here to ensure quality. On behalf of the surgery program, we really appreciate your support. This was identified as a great need," she added.

Ward 4 local Councillor Pat Brown said of the donation, "I think it's wise."

"It's practical and improved service the hospital can provide," she said.

June is Seniors Month... We are celebrating local seniors

June is Seniors Month, an opportunity for all residents to recognize and value the contributions made by seniors every day in communities across the province — including Ajax-Pickering.

Seniors Month is the one month of the year set aside for us to celebrate our seniors, in a much bigger way than we already do any other time of the year!

"They have contributed greatly to our community, and to our nation as a whole, and it is our opportunity to celebrate them and let them know how much we appreciate their daily contributions," says Kim Kranc, coordinator of recreation programs for the City of Pickering.

"It is important to acknowledge our seniors this way because they are the foundation of our community and have worked to make it what it is today. They volunteer in various ways and become involved in so many of our activities and events. It is our turn to celebrate them and to show them we appreciate all that they do."

Jennifer Ayres, community recreation coordinator, Town of Ajax agrees, seniors are instrumental to the success of every community.

"They continue to give so much to the community — whether it be volunteering at the local seniors community centre or the hospital, it's important that we recognize what an integral part of our community they really are."

Both the City of Pickering and the Town of Ajax will be joining communities across Ontario by holding several events throughout the month of June to celebrate local seniors, including a Seniors Month Big Band Event, being held June 3, and featuring entertainment by the George Lake Big Band.

"The tickets for this event are sold at a lower rate than other seniors events to enable more seniors to participate and to let them know they are appreciated," says Kranc. "Coffee, tea and treats will be served at the event. Also, the City of Pickering Senior of the Year Award will be presented by Mayor David Ryan to Doreen Perry as well as the City of Pickering Provincial Senior of the Year Award will be presented by M.P.P. Pickering-Ajax-Uxbridge, Wayne Arthurs."

For more information on Seniors Month, visit www.citizenship.gov.on.ca/seniors.

Planning for care

By David Michaels

Canadians are living longer than ever, a reality that has introduced a new dimension to boomers and seniors planning for their retirements.

The question more and more retirees are asking is: should I incorporate a health-care investment component into my portfolio?

Here are the longevity facts. In 1901, a 65-year-old would be expected to live to 76; by 2001, a 65-year-old could expect to live to age 85. Life expectancy at birth, for both sexes, surpassed 80 years for the first time in 2004. Statistics Canada says that by 2015, seniors aged 65 and over will outnumber children aged less than 15, and by 2056, about one out of 10 Canadians will be 80 years and over, compared with one out of 30 in 2005.

Having sufficient savings in retirement and being protected from inflation are of course essential, but now, we also must consider longevity and increased health care expenses, two "risks" that are very closely related to each other.

Income is one of the most important determinants of health and impacts a person's ability to access non-insured medical services and support such as medical supplies and home care. Canada's publicly funded health care system is experiencing major challenges and the strains that an aging population will place on that system will increase in future years.

Life expectancy is increasing, but you cannot expect to live all additional years in good health. Males born in 2001 can expect to live about 77 years, but nine of those years will be lived with health problems; women can expect to live about 82 years, with 12 years of health problems. In fact, by age 75, one quarter of Canadians report a long-term disability and one half live with three or more chronic conditions, according to a 2001 report from the Institute for Clinical Evaluative Sciences.

In retirement, many healthcare services such as dental and vision care will have to be paid for from an individual's pocket, through private insurance or a combination. This may pale in comparison to the costs of home healthcare, assistance with meal preparation and activities of daily living.

Then there is home care, a hot topic in Canada these days. It is used by about eight per cent of those aged 65 to 74, 20 per cent in the 75 to 84 group and 42 per cent in the 85 or older group, and use is higher for women, reports Statistics Canada. More than half who reported needing assistance with personal care (washing, dressing, or eating) received no formal home care and, not surprisingly, unmet needs have a high correlation with income. Caregivers themselves are getting older and less able to assist their loved ones.

While governments concentrate on sustaining core, insured hospital-based services, ever-increasing healthcare expenses are coming out of an individual's pocket.

Uncertainty regarding our health status makes it very difficult to predict what expenses we may encounter, but personal support services can cost up to $25 per hour, and home-nursing costs can range from $40 to 50 per hour or more, depending on the type of service required. Long-term care in a private facility can range between $2,500 and $5,000 per month, and just about everything beyond basic healthcare comes with additional costs in private retirement living facilities.

So the facts speak for themselves: when developing your financial plan, you should take note of these notable costs. It's wise to conduct a regular portfolio review, at least annually, that allows you to track your progress and make any changes to your investments if your personal situation changes. The discovery process that you go through with your advisor should take into account your health, lifestyle, family history, and support systems.

Your planning process must include a review of products, services and options available, such as critical-illness and long-term-care insurance, or perhaps self-insurance through a personal health savings account. An investment portfolio that allows strong growth while offering protection against longevity and health care expense risk could be your best strategy.

Faculty of Business and Information Technology

Brandon Wetzel,
2007 Bachelor of Commerce graduate

If you were to ask Brandon Wetzel, a graduating Bachelor of Commerce student, about UOIT he would tell you that it's the school of the future, offering laptop-based programs that provide a unique style of teaching and learning to students.

He feels that UOIT is focused on teaching and modelling students for the 21st century as it implements technology into every aspect of learning, which has been a rewarding experience for him. Along with developing his technological skills, his UOIT education has given him problem-solving, communication and leadership skills.

Wetzel is actively looking for a job to jump-start his career and is considering obtaining his MBA. In the future, he hopes to become vice-president of Marketing and Sales for a major company.

UOIT's Faculty of Business and Information Technology offers comprehensive, career enhancing programs in both business and information technology through Bachelor of Commerce, Bachelor of Information Technology and Master of Information Technology Security programs. All of this means graduates have the unique and innovative skills required to meet the demands of the rapidly evolving information technology security and commerce fields.

Heather Ravenek offers a big smile to friends and family at UOIT convocation ceremonies.

Faculty of Education

Amanda King,
2007 Bachelor of Education graduate

According to Amanda King, UOIT has integrated its laptop-based teaching and technology driven practices right into its culture.

She values her UOIT education and feels the Faculty of Education was very much built with the practical needs and challenges of new teachers in mind. She now feels comfortable and empowered by her knowledge of how to effectively employ technology in her own classroom to capture the attention of her students while meeting their learning needs. She graduated on Friday with the Faculty of Education's Gold Award for having the highest academic achievement in her class.

Having developed an interest in education research, King will be spending her summer working as an education research assistant with Dr. Leisel Knaack and Dr. Robin Kay, both assistant professors with the UOIT Faculty of Education.

Eventually, she hopes to get her Master's or PhD in Education and is leaving the door open to becoming a teacher, education professor or principal. She is sure of one thing: her path in education and learning will be a long and winding one.

UOIT's Bachelor of Education graduates have the leading-edge skills needed to make them dynamic and effective teachers in the decades to come. The class of 2007 joins the over 86 percent of 2006 graduates already employed in teaching positions.

Convocation 2007

UNIVERSITY OF ONTARIO INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY

School of Energy Systems and Nuclear Science

Nawal Chishty,
2007 Nuclear Engineering graduate

For the past four years, Nawal Chishty has witnessed UOIT's vision succeed as she worked toward her degree in Nuclear Engineering.

Chishty recognizes that everything the faculty and staff do is to the benefit of students because they truly believe student success is also their success. She has met amazing people by helping to create various programs and activities for students, including Welcome Week and the UOIT Student Ambassador program.

Chishty feels the university is committed to quality education that is industry-focused and technologically driven to meet the demands of a starving workforce, which is why she chose to pursue higher education at the university.

She was recently hired by Ontario Power Generation in Pickering, Ontario, where she will gain industry experience before going forward with her Master's degree or PhD. In the next five years, she hopes to get her Professional Engineering designation (PEng). UOIT's Nuclear Engineering program is Canada's only honours degree dedicated to nuclear engineering, providing students with unique access to current and relevant research, outstanding faculty and the opportunity to work alongside their professors on leading-edge projects.

Faculty of Science

Sarah Rowe,
2007 Biological Science graduate

Career-focused learning, excellence in teaching and research and an outstanding campus are what separates UOIT from the pack, according to Sarah Rowe.

She feels the small class sizes ensure students get more individualized attention and notes that in some cases students are on a mutual first-name basis with their professors. She said UOIT allows students to become known and accepted, rather than existing as a number, and provides a world-class education.

Rowe enjoyed her UOIT education so much that she will be attending the university's Faculty of Education this September in order to obtain her Bachelor of Education (intermediate/senior) degree. Eventually she would like to become a high school science and math teacher so she can share her love of learning with the leaders of the future.

A key advantage for students enrolled with UOIT's Faculty of Science is the opportunity to work with professors on research projects as part of their undergraduate experience. UOIT's 2007 science graduates possess a scientific foundation and innovative specializations that are designed to meet the demands of today's global economy. Many are proceeding to graduate programs across the country and to other post-degree programs.

Casey Legault,
2007 Bachelor of Science
in Nursing graduate

Casey Legault believes UOIT is setting a high standard when it comes to technological advancements and innovations within its programs.

Having studied nursing for four years, Legault can attest to the quality of the high-tech nursing lab and electronic simulation patients (SIM dolls). She feels they enable students to gain a realistic view of various medical conditions and devices, and allows them to practise health assessments on patients with medical abnormalities and emergencies.

Upon graduation, she will embark on a new job as a registered nurse (RN) with the Palliative and Complex Care unit at Markham-Stouffville Hospital in Markham, Ontario.

In addition to working as an RN, Legault will continue her education by completing her advanced nursing certificate, eventually obtaining a certificate in oncology nursing in order to work with cancer patients.

UOIT's 2007 Bachelor of Science in Nursing graduates have the unique and innovative skills required to meet the demands of the increasingly complex health-science and health-care industries, explaining why 90 percent of graduates have already obtained full-time employment.

Convocation 2007

UNIVERSITY OF ONTARIO INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY

UOIT awards three honorary doctorates

Robert Baun conferred the degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa

Robert Baun, a hockey legend, businessman and great philanthropist, has positively impacted lives across Canada while being a great advocate and associate on behalf of the University of Ontario Institute for Technology (UOIT).

From 1957 to 1972, Mr. Baun played in the National Hockey League, primarily with the Toronto Maple Leafs. He is perhaps best known for scoring the game-winning goal during the 1964 Stanley Cup playoffs while playing on a broken leg. He played in 964 games, scoring 37 goals with 187 assists in the regular season and took part in 96 playoff games with three goals and 12 assists. Many of the exciting moments in his hockey career are captured in his memoir: Lowering the Boom: The Bobby Baun Story.

After retiring from hockey, he teamed up with fellow Leafs player Tim Horton to help get the well-known doughnut store chain off the ground. Eventually Mr. Baun took ownership of one of the Tim Hortons stores, and brought a shrewd approach to the business that set new standards for employees and other stores.

He was quick to recognize a good idea when he saw one: the drive-thru. Though new and daring at the time, it is now an enduring feature of the company's success. In a similar fashion, Mr. Baun entered the insurance business and quickly became an innovator during a period of rapid expansion in that industry. He has been an inspiration and catalyst to many individuals, helping them to launch their own business initiatives that have ranked among the most successful in Canada today.

Always willing to rally his broad network of family and friends, Mr. Baun has assisted many different charities, notably those that benefit persons with disabilities. Durham Region residents are particularly grateful for his many efforts to provide scholarships and bursaries for post-secondary students at UOIT.

James O'Donnell conferred the degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa

Through a pioneering spirit, exceptional leadership, professional achievement and a deep devotion to enriching the lives of others, James O'Donnell serves as a model and inspiration to others. Along with business excellence, he has made substantial contributions to amateur sports, children's causes and a variety of philanthropic initiatives.

After founding the Mackenzie Financial Corporation in 1972, Mr. O'Donnell built the company into a multibillion-dollar enterprise and a recognized Canadian brand. His innovative marketing approach and unique sales strategies were directly responsible for making Mackenzie a leader in the financial services sector and raising the profile of the Canadian fund industry among Canadian consumers. When he retired from the company in 1992, he left behind a legacy of having created one of the largest mutual fund companies in Canada. From there, he became chairman and CEO of O'Donnell Investment Management Incorporated in 1995. Today, he chairs the O'Donnell Capital Group, a specialty investment operation that provides sophisticated investors with a unique, value-added investment alternative normally only available to large institutions.

Mr. O'Donnell is a dedicated and active member of the community and has spent more than 40 years pursuing the goal of a Canadian society that cares about its less-fortunate members, especially young people. He has founded and directed several foundations devoted to improving the lives of underprivileged, mentally and physically challenged and disadvantaged children. Under his leadership, such initiatives as the Canadian Special Olympics, the Mackenzie Racing League and the Molson Indy Festival Foundation have served to enrich the lives of many children and children's charities. He is also a member of the UOIT Board of Governors.

Dr. David Sanborn Scott conferred the degree of Doctor of Science, honoris causa

Dr. David Scott provides vision, insight and inspiration to all those working and studying the future of energy systems. He provides extraordinary leadership in the study of hydrogen energy, demonstrates dedication to the highest standard of research excellence and has made an outstanding contribution to the realization of a sustainable future.

Dr. Scott has a long and impressive record of research in energy system analysis, design and strategies. After receiving his Doctorate in Mechanical Engineering and Astronautical Sciences, he joined the University of Toronto where he served as chair of Mechanical Engineering and founded the university's Institute of Hydrogen Systems. Dr. Scott later moved to the University of Victoria where he established the Institute for Integrated Energy Systems dedicated to the study of fuel cells, hydrogen production and storage technologies and feasible ways to integrate renewable sources. Today, he serves as vice-president for the Americas of the International Association for Hydrogen Energy, which works to advance the most worthy goal of abundant clean energy for mankind.

In recognition of his distinguished academic career, Dr. Scott was appointed by the federal government to chair the Canadian Advisory Group on Hydrogen Opportunities, which was commissioned to make recommendations on Canada's position on hydrogen technology. In 2006, Dr. Scott became the first Canadian to receive the prestigious Jules Verne Award for his outstanding contributions to hydrogen physics and hydrogen energy sociology and philosophy.

With the recent launch of his new book, Smelling Land: The Hydrogen Defense Against Climate Catastrophe, Dr. Scott has made a valuable contribution to the most critical of issues on our national and global agenda: climate change. Based on uncompromising science and written in an engaging and readable manner, this book sets out a cogent framework for understanding how our energy system works and offers a comprehensive strategy for moving to a sustainable future. His reviewers anticipate that the kinds of fundamental changes in understanding and decision-making that will follow from this book will literally set the direction for the human future.

Faculty of Criminology, Justice and Policy Studies

Lisa Culbert, 2007 Criminology and Justice graduate

For Lisa Culbert, UOIT helped kick off a career in law and order.

Culbert believes UOIT offers opportunities that are unparalleled elsewhere as students are able to embark on research projects with their professors – something that most students are unable to do until they enter graduate studies. She adds that the student body is incredibly diverse and that the campus is now home to more than 60 clubs after only four years of operation – enabling students to be a part of and contribute to student life.

Next year, she will take the Common Law program at the University of Ottawa and plans to pursue international law, health law and policy, as well as alternative dispute resolution and mediation.

Culbert's career aspirations are focused primarily on policy, and she hopes to engage in international comparative studies and use practical experience to contribute to the development of policy with the mission to improve the quality of life for Canadians through law. Eventually she would like to teach law in her areas of specialization to the future stakeholders of society.

Many graduates of UOIT's Faculty of Criminology, Justice and Policy Studies will go on to pursue careers as business professionals, social workers and police and probation officers while some will pursue further education to become teachers and lawyers or to obtain their Master's degree.

Faculty of Engineering and Applied Science

Samveg Saxena, 2007 Manufacturing Engineering graduate

Samveg Saxena feels being part of the first four-year graduating class at UOIT was a unique experience in itself, thanks to its student-centered, market-driven approach to postsecondary education. He believes UOIT will soon join the ranks of world-class institutions.

Saxena values the university's unique programs and laptop-based approach to teaching and learning; the endless opportunities it makes available to undergraduate students; and the complete commitment of faculty and staff to student success. He also appreciates the support he received from the president, provost, deans, professors and staff when he founded the Durham College-UOIT Solar Vehicle Team.

This summer Saxena will be doing research and development work related to automotive engineering with a Markham-based company called Multimatic. In September he will attend the University of California's Berkeley campus to pursue his Master's degree and PhD in Mechanical Engineering.

Saxena feels his entrepreneurial spirit will eventually lead him to reach upper management at a large engineering company or perhaps inspire him to start his own company. After spending four years at UOIT, he has learned that his true calling is in a research-intensive environment and academia and he hopes to someday become a professor at an institution such as UOIT.

The UOIT Faculty of Engineering and Applied Science strives to offer excellence in education, high-calibre and value-added research, and high-quality and innovative market-driven undergraduate and graduate programs as it prepares students to be outstanding professionals and leaders of tomorrow.

The making of a university

Early 1990s – Prominent Durham Region leaders begin working to realize the vision of a student-focused institution dedicated to great teaching, groundbreaking research and the use of leading-edge learning technology. By preparing students for critically needed, knowledge-intensive careers, the new university will ensure bright futures for its graduates and generate economic growth for Durham Region, Northumberland County and all of Ontario.

1996 – In one of the earliest efforts in Ontario to combine university and college studies in one location, the Durham University Centre is created on the Durham College campus. The centre's courses are taught by professors from both Trent and York universities. However, despite this notable achievement, the unique vision for UOIT remains strong.

May 9, 2001 – On an historic day for Durham Region and Northumberland County the Ontario government announces plans for the first new university in the province in 40 years and earmarks $60 million in startup funds. An operations centre is set up next to the President's office, where 11 teams, working seven days a week, produce a to-do list of 856 tasks and hundreds of subtasks. Team members tour the top institutions across North America to study best practices.

June 27, 2002 – UOIT officially comes into being with the provincial legislature's passage of Bill 109, the University of Ontario Institute of Technology Act, 2002.

January 31, 2003 – UOIT announces the appointment of Michael G. Finlayson as founding provost.

March 6, 2003 – UOIT announces its first Board of Governors.

September 4, 2003 – UOIT welcomes its first class of 947 next-generation students.

November 7, 2003 – UOIT announces work has been completed on its innovative geothermal well field, the second-largest in North America.

January 27, 2004 – UOIT holds the grand opening for the Campus Tennis Centre, a year-round facility featuring six clay courts and a clubhouse with a pro shop and change room facilities.

April 20, 2004 – Lyn McLeod installed as UOIT's first chancellor.

June 4, 2004 – UOIT confers Bachelor of Education degrees upon its first graduates, 50 students from the Faculty of Education. These high-tech savvy graduates go on to take their places as new-generation math, science and computing teachers in the intermediate and senior grades.

October 13, 2004 – UOIT announces it will break ground in spring 2005 on an Engineering building.

October 29, 2004 – UOIT holds official opening ceremonies for the Campus Library and the Science and Business and

IT buildings.

November 12, 2004 – UOIT announces Dr. Douglas Holdway, a professor in the Faculty of Science, has been awarded a Tier 1 Canada Research Chair in Aquatic Toxicology. It is the first Tier 1 Chair for UOIT.

January 1, 2005 – UOIT welcomes Dr. Richard Marceau as UOIT provost.

January 11, 2005 – Students for Humanitarianism and Action Through Respect and Education (SHARE) holds its first meeting.

April 15, 2005 – UOIT's founding president, Dr. Gary Polonsky, announces his retirement.

May 18, 2005 – Diamond + Schmitt Architects Inc. earns the Innovation in Architecture Award at the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada (RAIC) Awards of Excellence for its design of the UOIT campus.

December 12, 2005 – A crowd of 200 helps UOIT celebrate the grand opening of the Campus Ice Centre, featuring two NHL-sized ice pads, a restaurant, meeting rooms and more.

April 20, 2006 – Dr. Ronald Bordessa is introduced as UOIT's second president.

May 31, 2006 – UOIT announces the launch of the Council on Innovation, which will focus on establishing strategic partnerships with international and domestic business and industry leaders to further UOIT's research and development.

June 7, 2006 – UOIT's Campus Library is named best in show and earns an Interior Design Award in the category of Academic Libraries: over 30,000-square-feet, at the Library Interior Design Competition.

November 1, 2006 – UOIT named host site for the 2008 Special Olympics Ontario Spring Games.

November 13, 2006 – UOIT announces it has received membership in the prestigious Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada (AUCC), which is considered the highest possible affirmation of a university's operations.

March 30, 2007 – UOIT officially opens the Ontario Power Generation Engineering building. Students and staff moved into the building in September 2006 and the state-of-the-art facility has quickly become a showcase for the delivery of engineering education.

June 1, 2007 – UOIT confers degrees on its first-ever class of four-year graduates – the first students to attend UOIT.

2008 – The Automotive Centre of Excellence is scheduled to open on campus, the culmination of a significant partnership with General Motors of Canada and the Government of Ontario. When Canada's premier automotive research and development centre opens it will bring together faculty, students, researchers and industry.

Can you really melt cellulite and fat?

The answer is yes, thanks to a new technology called Accent. No pain and no surgery.

ACCENT Radio Frequency is a body and face reshaping therapy that can create dramatic change. Both Health Canada and FDA approved, Accent is ideal for a number of troublesome areas including: jowls, double chin, cellulite, acne, sagging skin, love handles, saddlebags, and even fat deposits at the bra-line, knees, or arms.

The term "no pain, no gain" is no longer true. Non-invasive treatments are the fastest growing category in aesthetic medicine. The Accent device is creating a media buzz. Recently featured on CityTV News, CTV News and in Oprah and Elle Magazines, Accent is the latest and most cost effective way to reshape your body. And you don't have travel to the city for your treatments as MediSpa at The Facial Place is the first and only place in Durham Region to offer this state-of-the-art technology.

"Exercising and dieting have no impact on the shape of my face or the appearance of my skin," says Josie, a MediSpa at The Facial Place client. "Since having had my treatments, friends have asked me if I have lost weight. What they don't realize is that Accent has reduced my jowls and double chin!"

So how does this therapy work? Accent radio frequency is administered comfortably onto the surface of the skin. Deep dermal heating, measured at therapeutic levels, causes a breakdown or shrinkage within the fat cells and the lymphatic system drains the excesses out of the body. Most importantly, Accent has been scientifically proven to produce new collagen in the treatment areas, resulting in tighter and smoother skin.

Okay so what's the price tag? You will be happy to know that Accent is affordable! Depending on the area being treated, fees can range from $150 to $600 per session with special pricing on packages.

Because every individual is unique, treatment plans will vary from person to person. MediSpa at The Facial Place offers clients a free consultation and test patch. Call (905) 831-9700 or visit their website at www.thefacialplace.com

Millions grapple with anxiety disorders that can be treated

Did you know that one in every 10 Canadians suffers from an anxiety disorder?

It's true. According to a recent study by Statistics Canada, conditions such as panic attacks, social anxiety, excessive worry, specific phobias, post-traumatic stress disorder and obsessive-compulsive disorder affect 12 per cent of Canadians each year.

That's the bad news. The good news is that all of the above are absolutely treatable – often without the need for medication.

According to Health Canada and the Canadian Mental Health Association, there are only two scientifically supported treatments available for people with anxiety disorders and/or depression: drug therapy and Cognitive Behaviour Therapy (CBT). Drug therapy involves the use of anti-depressant or anti-anxiety medication, while CBT is a form of psychotherapy – or “talk therapy” – administered by a clinical psychologist.

Scientific studies have shown that CBT is just as effective as drugs in the short term in dealing with mild to moderate anxiety or depression, and more effective in the long term at preventing relapses. But, unlike drugs, CBT carries no unwanted side-effects or long-term chemical dependence.

“CBT is remarkably effective,” says Dr. David Dorenfeld, a registered psychologist and clinical director of the Centre for Cognitive Behaviour Therapy in Ajax. Dr. Dorenfeld earned his Ph.D. from the State University of New York at Buffalo, and has been practicing CBT since the early 90s. “CBT is one of the great psychological breakthroughs of the 20th century,” he says.

So what is CBT, anyway?

“CBT is based on the idea that the way we feel and behave is a result of the way we think,” explains Dr. Dorenfeld. “In other words, our feelings and behaviours are controlled by our thoughts, rather than by external things, like people, situations or events.”

This means we can always change the way we feel and behave, even if the situations in our lives stay the same.

For example, people with anxiety disorders typically have distorted thoughts: a social phobic may think that he/she will always be negatively judged in social situations, while a sufferer of OCD may think that being dirty will lead to disease or death. “These distorted thoughts promote feelings of fear, worry or distress,” says Dr. Dorenfeld. “They usually cause people to avoid situations that might precipitate the anxiety, or to develop compulsive rituals that lessen the anxiety.”

Likewise, people with depression have distorted thoughts that promote feelings of hopelessness or helplessness, such as pessimistic ideas (“life is cruel”), unrealistic expectations (“everyone has to like me at all times”), or overly critical self-evaluations (“I’m worthless”).

“These thought distortions can occur automatically, without a person even being aware of them,” says Dr. Dorenfeld. “Using CBT treatment, people can become aware of these automatic thoughts, and train themselves to challenge and change them.”

But that's just the cognitive component. The behavioural component involves challenging yourself to face the situations you may have avoided due to depression, worry or fear. This is done in small, manageable steps called exposure.

“Through exposing yourself in small steps, you learn that you can feel anxious in a particular situation and you can still be okay,” says Dr. Dorenfeld. “You learn that the anxiety isn't going to kill you or make you go crazy.”

All told, CBT helps patients learn effective self-help skills, and gain independence and assertiveness in dealing with real-life issues. According to Health Canada, CBT is now the preferred mode of non-medicinal treatment for a range of psychological disorders, from anger to panic, eating disorders and personality problems.

But recent research suggests that some mental health therapists may still be using treatments that are not based on empirical evidence.

“It's very important to ask questions about your psychologist's level of training,” warns Dr. Dorenfeld. “Make sure the person is registered with the Ontario College of Psychologists, and make sure they are only using scientifically validated treatments, such as CBT.”

For more information about CBT, or to make an appointment at the Centre for Cognitive Behaviour Therapy, call 905-427-2007 or email info@ccbtc.ca.

Family wants others to walk in its shoes

By Lesley Bovie
lbovie@durhamregion.com

DURHAM — Cold and flu season is always tough with small children.

But for the Bushell family, it's something altogether different.

"You always worry about pneumonia and lung infections," says Michelle Bushell, a mother of two young boys with cystic fibrosis (CF).

She and her husband Chris didn't know they were both carriers of CF until their five-year-old, Zachary, was born.

CF is a fatal inherited disease affecting mainly the lungs and digestive system. It can cause severe breathing problems and affects digestion and food absorption.

For Zachary, it was serious liver complications that required the newborn to undergo a Kesai procedure to reconnect his liver to his intestines.

Although he's never had to have a liver transplant, Zachary spent most of his infancy and early toddler years battling liver infections.

It made the couple seriously question whether they should have more children. Opting to trust their strong faith, Ms. Bushell said having a sibling for Zachary "outweighed everything."

At 11 weeks pregnant, Ms. Bushell was devastated when genetic testing revealed the baby she was carrying -- Brett -- would also be affected by CF.

"I had a very hard time accepting the results," she said. "My husband was very accepting. He felt we were just one of those families (destined to go through this)."

Brett's arrival was monitored closely and, thankfully, he didn't have any of the liver issues experienced by his older brother.

"He is a bit more chesty but I think that's because he's caught a lot of colds that Zach comes home with from school," added Ms. Bushell.

"The biggest challenge has been weight gain," said Ms. Bushell. "Every three months the boys are checked for weight and height."

She said she tries to concentrate on the present, more than the distant future. It's a fact of life that CF can cause other long-term health issues like diabetes and even lung disease. Average life expectancy for someone with CF is just 37. In 1960, it was only four years. "Our doctors are very hopeful a cure will come within Zachary and Brett's lifetime," added Ms. Bushell.

Events like the Great Strides Walk this weekend at the Toronto Zoo are supporting ground-breaking research, she said.

The Bushells have participated along with other Durham families for four years. Friends and family have formed two teams and have raised more than $8,000 for this year's walk.

Durham's university receives $1.38M for wellness and economic development research

Funding comes from 2007 grants and scholarships

DURHAM — Research at the University of Ontario Institute of Technology (UOIT) is getting a big helping hand through a $1.38 million funding announcement.

The funding, announced earlier this week by Oshawa MP Colin Carrie, comes through the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council of Canada's 2007 grants and scholarship awards. The money supports 14 UOIT professors in their research and development and is provided through discovery and research tools and instruments grants.

"This funding will enable UOIT to continue to advance its mission to conduct research and academic activities that are poised to contribute to the health, wellness and economic development of Durham Region and Northumberland County, the province of Ontario and the country as a whole," said John Perz, UOIT's acting associate provost of research. Researchers at UOIT will use the funding to focus on innovation in: the information technology, automotive, robotics, and aerospace industries; the engineering and energy production fields; the health-care and business sectors; and, more. Some of the research projects it will help include: the structure-property relationships and electrochemical studies of novel inorganic-organic hybrid materials; reliability and safety assessment of wireless network control systems; and heat transfers at supercritical pressures.

The Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council of Canada is a federal agency whose role is to make investments in people, discovery and innovation for the benefit of all Canadians.

Trojans class of OFSAA Central Region track meet

AJAX — It was two golden days for Pickering High School Trojans athletes at the OFSAA Central Region Track and Field Championships at Toronto's York University on Wednesday and Thursday.

At the end of the meet, the 36-member Trojans' track team once again marched off with top honours with 321.5 points to runner-up Cardinal Carter of Aurora with 190 points. The girls took the overall girls' team title, scoring 148 points. At last year's Central Regionals, the Pickering High girls' team placed 11th. The Trojans' boys took the overall boys' team title with 173.5 points.

Moreover, Pickering athletes collected 11 gold, 12 silver and five bronze medals and qualified 29 athletes to participate in the OFSAA Track and Field Championships (Canada's largest track and field meet) in Ottawa from June 7 to 9.

Ninety-four schools from three athletic associations (LOSSA, York and Georgian Bay) participated in the Central Regionals.

The midget girls' 4-x-100-metre relay team of Christine Prince, Katherine Lawrence, Shanyce Shaw and Christine Exeter set the top time in the province for the age group in the event this year, clocking in at 50.17 seconds, which was just off the team's personal best of 50.08. The time eclipsed the old OFSAA mark of 51.06 seconds, although that mark can only be broken at the OFSAA meet.

Rock golden at provincials

West Durham bantam 'C's a perfect 4-0 at championships

DURHAM — The West Durham Rock bantam lacrosse team was rock-solid in capturing gold at the Provincial Field Lacrosse Championships on Kitchener May 25 to 27.

The Rock, which competed in the bantam 'C' division, beat nearby rival Clarington No. 2 15-5 in a torrential downpour to capture gold. The Rock led 7-5 at the half and pulled away in the third and fourth quarters, shutting out Clarington in those stanzas.

As was their trademark throughout the field lacrosse season, including the Provincials, a complete team effort by all players proved to be the difference as they wore down their opponents.

The Rock was also inspired by teammate Cameron Elwood, who showed up on the team's sidelines during the championship game. Cameron missed the championships due to a broken wrist suffered on Thursday, ironically against the same Clarington side, but this time in box lacrosse.

In the semifinal, the Rock posted a come-from-behind 8-7 victory over Oakville No. 2. The Rock trailed 3-1 at the half, but a gritty effort by the midfielders brought the Rock back into the game, leading 7-5 at the end of the third quarter. The Rock defenders took over from there and held the Oakville team until two late markers brought the game to a close. Lucas Sebastian made a highlight-reel save to preserve the victory and send the Rock into the gold-medal final.

The West Durham bantams started their weekend Friday by beating Oakville No. 2 by a 9-8 count, scoring with three seconds left in overtime on a goal by attackman John St. John. Midfielder Easton McDonald, with the perfect feed, set up the winning marker.

In Game 2 on Saturday morning, the Rock beat Brampton No. 2 12-6, leading 6-2 after the first quarter and 7-5 at half time. West Durham poured it on in the second half to obtain a bye into Sunday's semifinal.

Team members are goalie Lucas Sebastian; defenders Nathan Morrow, Christian Bentley, Andrew Banks and Christopher Bentley; midfielders Tyler Roche, Brian Kerr, Julian Garritano, Easton McDonald, Jacob Lessard, Jake Parrott, Andrew Kelly, Mats Ahlvik and Dean Papaconstantinou; and attackmen Michael Davies, Patrick Morgan, John St. John and Cameron Elwood.

JUNE 7th 2007 A VERY SPECIAL DAY!

CEC & JESSIE'S DIAMOND ANNIVERSARY
Cecil Turner & Jessie France are happy now to celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary on June 7th, 2007!

Jessie came to Dunbarton Village, Pickering, in 1936 when her family moved from Timmins Ontario. She has many wonderful memories of Pickering back in those golden years and also enjoyed the many years watching Pickering grow, more so than a lot of us who live here today.

Cecil became familiar with Pickering after his Mother & Father purchased a cottage on the east shore of Frenchman's Bay. At that time he was serving in the Royal Canadian Navy on the Atlantic during WWII. After the war ended he got his discharge on November 1945 and enjoyed fully the time spent at Frenchman's bay during 1946 and thereafter.

It was in the summer of 1946 that Cec & Jessie met at a dance hall in Avis Park, at the foot of Liverpool Road. This area has since been followed by the structure of a marina and more recently by the building of many residential and commercial establishments.

They tied the knot on June 7th 1947 and have resided in Pickering since then. Together they have witnessed the growth of this wonderful city and have witnessed many many changes.

It's been a wonderful 60 years and they now look forward to many more to enjoy with their family.
