DURHAM — Santa Claus is getting ready for his big appearance in communities in Durham.

Parades are planned across the region and we've got the information on them. So get ready to enjoy yourself and welcome the jolly old elf to Durham at one or several of the parades.

Note that Canada Post generally collects letters to Santa during the parades.

Pickering — The Kinsmen and Kinette Club sponsors the Santa Claus parade on Saturday, Nov. 15, at 10 a.m. The fun starts at the Vaughan Willard Public School, 1911 Dixie Rd. N., and proceeds east on Glenanna Road to the Pickering Town Centre. The theme this year is It's a Jingle Bell Christmas.

Lesbian couple attacked outside Oshawa school

By Stefanie Swinson
 sswinson@durhamregion.com

OSHAWA — The outpouring of support “keeps growing” on the world wide web for an Oshawa lesbian couple who were attacked outside their children’s elementary school last week.

Anji Dimitriou and Jane Currie say they were assaulted by another student’s father on Nov. 3 just as classes let out for the day at Gordon B. Attersley elementary school.

“In shock” over what happened, Ms. Dimitriou, 30, looked to the Internet networking website Facebook to tell their story.

“In the beginning we felt alone,” Ms. Dimitriou said. “Now, we have a support system.”

The group Ms. Dimitriou set up, “Gay women get battered at children’s school,” has more than 2,250 members and Ms. Dimitriou said the number keeps getting bigger. “People are just disgusted with what happened. I have had so many people contact me offering a lot of support,” Ms. Dimitriou said a week after the attack happened. “That’s what is getting us through this. We don’t know any of these people and for a community to come together, it’s amazing.”

The exclusive news story and video report by newsdurhamregion.com was posted on Facebook, and the response was immediate.

Classes had just let out Monday at Gordon B. Attersley elementary school on Attersley Drive, according to the couple. Ms. Dimitriou said she was helping her son put his backpack into the car when another student’s father came toward her and began yelling.

He referred to her and Ms. Currie as men, she said, as she recounted what happened.

Ms. Dimitriou said the man swore at her, called her a slang word for lesbian in an aggressive and derogatory way, then “out of nowhere” spit in her face and punched her. To spread the word even further Ms. Currie, 37, and Ms. Dimitriou are working with P-FLAG (Parents and Friends of Lesbians and Gays) to plan a rally to bring awareness to the community. They are still in the planning stages but Ms. Dimitriou said they hope to march around Oshawa City Hall on Friday.

Mark Scott, 43, of Oshawa, faces two charges of assault causing bodily harm in connection with the incident. Mr. Scott will make his first court appearance on Dec. 16.

Growth plan gets cool reception in Pickering

Planning committee approves latest instalment

By Kristen Calis
kcalis@durhamregion.com

PICKERING — Now is not the time to limit long-term growth options, says a member of the Green Door Alliance.

The comments came as Pickering's planning and development committee supported a regional growth scenario and policy directions report Monday night.

It's the fifth phase of Durham Region's Growth Plan Implementation Study, a requirement of the Province's Growth Plan for the Greater Golden Horseshoe. The Region is required to plan for 960,000 people living and 350,000 working in the region by 2031. Nearly 140,000 of those people are expected to move into Pickering by that time and plans include increased living and employment areas to accommodate that growth. The total increase in units by 2031 is expected to be nearly 49,000. Land proposed for new urban development is about 1,700 hectares, 1,400 hectares of which should be built up by 2031, according to Catherine Rose, the City's project manager. All of these numbers include the development of Seaton. Although the Province has asked Durham to reach a target ratio of three people to every job, Regional Chairman Roger Anderson wants two people for every job.

"Durham doesn't want to be a bedroom community," Ms. Rose said.

Ward 3 Regional Councillor Rick Johnson said the document, like most planning documents, will evolve "but I think we're going in the right direction."

He was annoyed, along with other councillors, that a Pickering airport is included in the plans, although a final decision hasn't been made and Council is against the idea. It is included, however, in the Region's official plan.

Brian Buckles of the Green Door Alliance at the meeting said planning for 2031 for population and employment is too far in the future. He said forecasts on anything that far ahead are fanciful and not based on reality.

"We are entering a fundamentally new era," he said. "Now is not the time to limit long-term options."

Resident Terry Nuspl compared planning this far in advance to deciding the future for children.

"I don't plan their marriage," she said. "I assume you don't. Why are we planning their legacy?"

Ward 1 Regional Councillor Bonnie Littlely said the process was too fast (the Region released the report on Sept. 23), with little public consultation, and not enough effort has been put into a proper fiscal study. Coun. Littlely is concerned with plans to place the Carruthers Creek headwaters (which include prime farmland) into an urban designation. Although a watershed study has been completed in the past, it was done on the basis that the headwaters would remain in their natural state, she said.

She was also displeased with plans to expand the urban boundaries into the whitebelt lands (undeveloped lands in north Pickering).

Planning and development director Neil Carroll said although the map shows whitebelt development taking place, that doesn't mean the entire area is going to be totally built out. For example, ravines, parks and wildlife areas and a full neighbourhood planning process will follow, where staff and Council can fine-tune how Pickering wants the plan to unfold.

Among Pickering's suggestions to the Region are expanding the extent of land for future living area around Kinsale in north Pickering to create room for growth for a complete neighbourhood.

Monica Tierra from Pickering still missing

PICKERING — A search continues for a Pickering woman who's been missing for more than a week.

Monica Tierra, 44, of Wilcroft Court, has not been seen or heard from since Nov. 1 and family members are becoming increasingly anxious, Durham police said.

Relatives have been circulating posters in the community in hopes of obtaining information and police have canvassed area hotels and motels in search of the woman. A tip that the woman had been seen at a bus terminal Nov. 1 turned out to be unfounded, police said.

Anyone with information on the missing woman is asked to call police at 905-579-1520, ext. 2529.

United Way has new executive director

Bonnie Harkness leaving Big Brothers for job

By Keith Gilligan
kgilligan@durhamregion.com

DURHAM — Bonnie Harkness is going from a receiver to a giver as the new executive director of the United Way of Ajax-Pickering-Uxbridge.

Ms. Harkness takes over on Dec. 15, replacing Edna Klazek, who is retiring after 10 years as the executive director.

Ms. Harkness is currently the executive director of the Big Brothers and Sisters of Ajax-Pickering, a position she's held for the past two years.

"It's tough leaving the Big Brothers. I came from a place where I worked with homeless youth. Since I came to the Big Brothers, I see where they get off track," Ms. Harkness said.

Prior to joining the Big Brothers, Ms. Harkness had been with Pathways for Children, Youth and Family of York Region for 10 years. She lives in Ajax and "that was another motivation to come to Big Brothers. I worked in the field, but never close to home.

"I'm very excited about social services. I have quite a passion for it. I've been in it for 20 years," Ms. Harkness said. "Positions at the United Way don't come around very often." Having worked in the field and with agencies that receive funding, I know of the need for the United Way."

The difficulty for agencies is they have to spend so much time fundraising and it's "taking away from the tremendous effort and that's to run programs."

Her hope is to "relieve the strain on charities," she said, adding when the United Way doesn't meet its goal, charities are affected.

"I want to work on growing the campaign and doing advocacy work on behalf of social services," Ms. Harkness said.

She said the United Way offers a leadership program for charities, which charities wouldn't be able to pay for normally. There's upgrading and training provided. "I've gone to that and I like to see that grow.

"The exciting part for me is knowing the community. There's so many wonderful volunteers," she said.

Ms. Harkness doesn't assume her new role until mid-December.

"I really wanted to give the Big Brothers time to at least get the hiring underway. The last thing the United Way wants to do is leave one of its charities vulnerable," she said.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC OPEN HOUSE Proposed Wind Monitoring Station Toronto Hydro Lake Ontario Anemometer

Toronto Hydro Energy Services (TH Energy) has made an application to the Ministry of Natural Resources (MNR) to conduct testing of wind resources in order to secure a Land Use Permit and an Application of Record Status for the Crown lands shown on the map below. Only Crown Land is being considered. The Land Use Permit and the Application of Record Status secure the right to use the Crown Land area approved for exploration, on condition that all MNR requirements, including Environmental Assessment (EA) requirements, are met. The TH Energy proposal is part of a two year exploration phase to determine the potential economic viability for the development of a possible wind energy facility.

TH Energy proposes to construct an anemometer platform to conduct the wind testing. An anemometer is a miniature weather station that tests for wind speed, wind direction, temperature, humidity etc. An anemometer platform is a stand-alone structure with two small wind generators and a solar photovoltaic (PV) panel to power the instruments that would be affixed to the lake-bottom. It is a temporary structure and will be removed after it has served its purpose. The proposed structure has the following general dimensions/ characteristics:

- A structural steel platform located in approximately 15 m of water extending from lake bottom to approximately 4 m above lake water level;
- A width of approximately 5 m; and
- An anemometer instrument, auxiliary power system and navigation lights located atop this platform.

Additional project information is available on our website at the following address:

www.torontohydroenergy.com/offshorewind

TH Energy is hosting a Public Open House scheduled as follows in order to further address comments received in response to the initial project notice:

Feds will need to pony up for auto industry

It may be government peer pressure, if nothing else, that forces the federal government to offer a significant bailout to the staggering Canadian auto industry.

After all, international governments everywhere, given the global credit financial crisis, are lining up to offer the once powerful auto giants billions of dollars and euros in handouts so they can stay viable.

In the United States, a package totalling $25 billion is set to be given out to what was formerly the Big Three so they can stay afloat amid signs General Motors is on the verge of bankruptcy. One stock analyst predicted its market price would drop to zero by next year after it hit a 62-year low on Monday.

The European Union is offering $40 billion euros in relief for its ailing manufacturing industries. Even China, where growth is an unheard of 10 per cent per year, has a $600 billion bailout plan in place.

So, if only to keep pace with the rest of the world, Canada will need to do something or watch our manufacturing base fall farther behind, if not eventually evaporate. The question is, what do we do and how much do we provide?

Clearly, a bailout of some kind is required and what will be needed will be in the billions of dollars, not millions. Premier Dalton McGuinty is reported to be seeking something on the order of around $4 billion, in proportion to what was provided in the United States, but that will be up to the federal government to decide.

What's critical is that the feds don't just throw good money after bad. The Big Three -- General Motors, Ford, and Chrysler -- have been sliding downhill for a long time now. Their leaders have talked a good game about restructuring, about turnarounds, about comebacks, but little progress has been made.

When this bailout is provided, the feds must sit down with the Canadian presidents of the Big Three and receive assurances that things will be different this time. Job guarantees must be attached to the taxpayer funds. New strategies to make sure the automakers build cars people want must be provided. The feds need to know the industry will not sputter and fail and that the billions provided won't go down a sinkhole.

It's a gamble but one the feds will have to take.

News Advertiser carrier comes to woman's aid

To the editor:

A couple of weeks ago I was walking my two puppies when I suddenly had a hard fall which dropped me to my hands and knees on the sidewalk. I must have screamed as my puppies ran off across the street as I laid there in shock.

I had fallen in front of a house where I saw a lady watching me from behind her front door but doing nothing to help. I slowly turned myself over and saw two kids down the street also watching but doing nothing.

As I scanned to the right I saw a News Advertiser paper carrier begin to run quickly to my aid from a block away. I was unable to move at first due to the burning in my knees, wrists, hands and elbow.

When the News Advertiser carrier arrived at my side he introduced himself (Nicholas), assessed the situation, gained control of my puppies and assisted me to my feet while giving me moral support. He offered to help me get home but I was more mobile at this time and declined.

I am so grateful to Nicholas for taking action. We had never spoken before this day so he truly was helping a stranger.

He was very mature, respectful, empathetic and supportive. In a world where so few people are willing to look out for their fellow man, it is very inspirational for me to have someone like Nicholas living in my neighbourhood.

I want the News Advertiser to acknowledge Nicholas for his quickness and selfless action while on his route. He should be honoured for his kindness and compassion. I am truly thankful for him.

Police plan too expensive for taxpayers

To the editor:

In tough times everyone has to tighten their belts and spend less. Regional chairman Roger Anderson made a decision that we cannot afford to raise taxes to support the police services 20-20-20 initiative in times like this.

I, and many others, probably feel this is the wrong time for raising taxes to support increased spending. Thirty-five per cent of the regional budget goes to the Durham Regional Police. I hope that the DRP can finally see the full picture of what's happening in Durham Region economically and accept this decision.

We cannot force more hardship on people by increasing taxes that are already too high and which they cannot afford. In the future we can work together to grow the region economically and then we can realize this initia-

Rider fed up with parking issues at Ajax GO station

To the editor:

Today I gave up on Ajax- Ajax GO station, that is.

For months I've watched reserved parking spaces take over the main parking lot, creating two-tier parking in our provincial government's commuter railway. I've watched people park illegally, perhaps at first because they had nowhere else to park, but eventually because they were getting away with it (I think I've seen tickets issued once in the last year).

GO Transit should be administering public parking for the benefit of all, and that includes enforcement. Instead, GO whimpers about lack of resources (which oddly doesn't impair the revenue-generating train patrols) and the decay continues. So now I'm driving out of town to a station with slower decay. Perhaps eventually I'll be forced into a choice between "creative" parking or getting a reserved space of my own. Either approach makes things better for me at the expense of my neighbours.

Maybe I'll just drive. I think this is what economists refer to as "the tragedy of the commons," where people conclude that to get their fair share of a common service, they must break the rules others are breaking. It's truly a tragedy and, sadly, becoming so much more common.

From Pakistan to Canada

Grade 5 student loves his Whitby school

By Crystal Crimi
ccrimi@durhamregion.com

DURHAM — Shaffan Din doesn't remember much about his school in Pakistan - mostly that it was small and only had one window.

He was only in Grade 3 when his family left the country.

Now in Grade 5, he's spent just more than a year in Canada.

"When he came, he was frightened," said his mother, Rakhshanda Ambreen, in the little English she knows. "But after a few months... they wanted to live in the school forever."

His family came to Canada because of the lack of jobs and good education in Pakistan, said Shaffan's mom.

At first, he worried about leaving his cousins and friends in Pakistan.

"Because I missed them," Shaffan said in his quiet, shy voice.

Sitting on the couch inside his family's modest Whitby apartment, the Grade 5 student shares the few memories he does have of the Pakistan education system.

"I had seven books and one notebook," he said.

His subjects included English, Urdu, Islamic, geography, math, art, gym, science, and social studies.

"Really hard," he said, while his younger brother and sister sat near him on the couch.

"Had a lot of things to learn."

In Canada, school was a big change. The work was easy and the teachers were really nice, he said.

Inside his new school, Sir William Stephenson Public School in Whitby, he was impressed by how many windows there were.

"We could see outside, the grounds," he said.

"It was really different than my other school, they had big grounds in Pakistan," Shaffan said.

His Pakistani school housed 10 grades and had three different playgrounds for the various age groups.

But, the teachers there weren't polite, he said.

"A lot of them weren't nice," Shaffan said.

"It wasn't good and the teachers were bad, but the friends were nice," he said.

"They would punish everyone even if you didn't do anything. Once I didn't do something, someone else did, and I got punished. I didn't get lunch.

"School was really hard, that's why we came here," Shaffan said.

He prefers the system in Durham Region.

"The teachers are nice and some friends are nice," he said.

In school, he is in the English-as-a-Second-Language program.

Before coming to Canada, he knew some English, but not that much, he said. The program is helpful and he works on some paper stuff, sentences and words.

"Easy stuff, it gets harder and harder," Shaffan said.

He doesn't find it hard to learn his school work and a language at the same time.

He did well last year, he said.

The hardest thing for him was being shy and not having many friends, but within a month, he made some. He met another student from Pakistan and they became friends.

"Everything went so smooth, we could have never imagined," said his dad, Riaz Din.

"The first day he was feeling a bit shy, but nothing else," Mr. Din said.

At first, he was afraid of coming here because he didn't know English properly, but it only took him a few weeks to start learning.

Shaffan loves his school so much, he doesn't want to go to another one here, or in Pakistan, said Mr. Din.

Shaffan Din has been in Canada now for more than a year and, while education presented a big change for him, he enjoys going to his new school in Whitby.

DURHAM — Newcomers to Canada will find a warm welcome from the Durham District School Board.

The board supports students from more than 55 language backgrounds, the biggest one being Urdu, an official language of Pakistan and also spoken in India, said Anne Sidnell, its education officer and co-ordinator of its English as a Second Language and English Literacy Development programs.

"Globalization means languages aren't tied to an area any more," she said.

"In Canada, we welcome immigrants, so certainly this is a trend, not just a Durham trend, but all across Ontario."

When people are new to the board, they are provided with welcome folders offered in nine different languages. The folders contain information about the education system, contact numbers for families - such as where to get OHIP - and other things needed to settle into a community. School registration forms are also offered in the nine different languages.

If necessary, the board can arrange for interpreters, Ms. Sidnell said.

In Durham, Ajax has the highest population of school-age newcomers, she said.

The board supports variations of English as well, such as Creole, because some forms of English have significant differences in their grammatical structure.

It generally takes five-to-seven years to acquire academic fluency in English, Ms. Sidnell said.

The students' first language is supported by allowing its use in the classroom where appropriate, such as through essay planning.

"Our role is to adapt the curriculum to meet the needs of all students," she said.

When kids are trying to learn a language, they use visuals, such as key words and strategies to pick out what's being taught in classrooms.

Dual language books are available in 35 different languages, with English first, then Urdu or another language alongside to help parents understand as well.

"We have lots of dual-language resources," she said.

Extracurricular activities can help support friend making.

"It also helps them develop social language," she said. Making friends allows them to feel more comfortable and succeed.

Ms. Sidnell's advice for students and parents is to become involved with the school community as much as possible and to talk to staff about anything they need clarified.

"My No. 1 tip would be maintaining that first language," she said.

All studies point to having literacy skills in one language transferring to those in another, Ms. Sidnell said.

"Maintaining and developing the first language is a very important piece," she said. "And if you have a question, don't hesitate to ask, we have lots of people here to answer them," she said.

Ajax parents want activities for kids with special needs

By Danielle Bergeron
Special to the News Advertiser

AJAX — An Ajax couple is seeking parents of special needs kids to set up programs and activities for the children.

Dane Joseph and his wife, Siromi, have been raising their 13-year-old daughter, Sheneika, who has Pervasive Development Disorder, resulting in her poor social skills. She has a delay in language processing and her vocabulary is very limited.

Since her diagnosis, Dane has worked with her to help improve her situation.

"She attends a regular Catholic school and is in a regular class and as years go by I have seen an immense improvement in her," he said.

Dane realized there are a lot of children like her daughter in Durham Region who need interaction and communication skills in order to improve their life skills. He has tried enrolling her in programs, but there is a long waiting list to get into them.

"I feel that the earlier these children get the needed therapy, the faster they will improve," he said.

Dane wants parents of special needs children to get together and create activities and programs that will help the kids improve their social and life skills. By creating programs, he reasoned, the children won't have to be on waiting lists and they will be able to make friends and gain confidence.

"We can have classes to teach them cooking, dancing, music, crafts, and take them grocery shopping or to the mall to shop or to the movies and teach them basic life skills, like how to handle money, time, planning, safety and basic life requirements," he said.

It doesn't have to be just kids with special needs. There are kids who lack confidence and are afraid to go out in public or other kids who would love to help kids in need.

If any parents are interested, call Dane at 905-428-1341.

Police contract talks break down

Rejected offer included 9.6 per cent salary increase

DURHAM — Talks aimed at ending a contract dispute between Durham cops and the police services board have failed.

Negotiations broke down again Friday when the Durham Regional Police Association rejected the board's final contract offer, according to a statement issued by Roger Anderson, the lead negotiator for the region.

The offer included a 9.6 per cent salary increase for the association's 1,100 uniform and civilian members over three years and enhanced benefits, the statement said.

Association members, who have been without a contract since Jan. 1, 2008, are calling on management to increase the number of uniform officers patrolling Durham by at least 20 cops in each year of the three-year contract framework.

In search of Private Tucker's family

By Charles McGregor,
Special to The News Advertiser
newsroom@durhamregion.com

DURHAM — There's a medal out there waiting to be presented to the members of its owner's family -- if they can be found.

The medal was awarded to First World War veteran Frank Leslie Tucker, a Bowmanville resident who fought at Passchendaele in Belgium in 1917 where he was among many soldiers who were victims of an enemy mustard gas attack.

It's the British Victory Medal and was awarded, along with the British War Medal, to all soldiers from Britain and the Commonwealth countries who served in what was called the Great War as well as "The War to End all Wars."

The medal surfaced in California recently for sale on eBay. It was bought by collector Dave Thomson, who is making an effort to repatriate war medals which are available for sale, either to return them to the recipient's family, if they wish to have them or to donate them to local museums.

It was then bought by Durham Region Metroland Media Group, owners of the News Advertiser, in the hopes that, during the days surrounding Remembrance Day, Nov. 11, when attention is focused on Canadians who went to war in the service of their country, someone might know whether Pvt. Tucker has any relatives still living in the region. If so, the medal is theirs.

Born in Bowmanville in 1895, Pvt. Tucker went to Port Hope in September, 1915, to enlist in the Canadian Expeditionary Force. The attestation papers he signed indicate he was a blond, blue-eyed unmarried man of 20. Like many other young Canadians of the time he was doubtless excited to be in uniform and anxious to get into action. He got his wish.

The Canadian Corps began its attack on Oct. 26, 1917, and Pvt. Tucker was gassed five days later. The movie Passchendaele currently showing in local theatres vividly depicts what 20,000 members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force went through in what was called the Third Battle of Ypres.

A total of 16,000 of them were either killed, wounded or were missing in action at battle's end. Nine Victoria Crosses were awarded to Canadians for bravery in the battle.

It is regarded as one of the First World War's most brutal struggles, where fighting occurred in extremely harsh and treacherous conditions.

Any readers who know anything about the family of Private Tucker are asked to contact the newspaper at 905-579-4400 ext. 2248 or by e-mail at newsroom@durhamregion.com.

This is a picture of the British Victory Medal that was awarded, along with the British War Medal, to all soldiers from Britain and the Commonwealth countries who served in the First World War. Private Frank Tucker of Bowmanville received such a medal that this newspaper purchased off eBay. The paper is looking for his family in order to return the medal to its rightful owners.

Cheeky suspect refused to give up cocaine: police

AJAX — He might claim it's a bum rap, but an Ajax man is facing several charges after Durham drug cops busted him Thursday.

As a result of a traffic stop and a subsequent search of an Ajax home, officers found a loaded handgun, cash and drug paraphernalia -- and a little more than two grams of crack cocaine concealed in a suspect's rectum, Durham police said.

The bust came Thursday when Drug Enforcement Unit (DEU) cops investigating a man for trafficking stopped a car at Westney Road and Hwy. 2.

A man in the car was arrested and found to have more than $1,000 in cash in his possession.

A search of the man revealed a plastic bag containing crack sticking out of his rectum, police said.

When the man refused to remove the bag he was transported to hospital. Medical staff convinced the man to remove the bag, which police said was found to contain more than two grams of crack.

Police obtained a search warrant for a home on McSweeney Crescent, where they recovered a loaded .357 Magnum handgun and ammunition, almost 38 grams of crack cocaine, cash and digital scales.

O'Neil Grant, 24, of McSweeney Crescent in Ajax is charged with eight drug and weapons offences.

Recycling facility proves to be a winner for Durham

By Reka Szekely
rszekely@durhamregion.com

DURHAM — Recycling in Durham is bringing in the awards hardware for the Region.

Durham recently won the gold recycling systems excellence award for its new Material Recovery Facility (MRF) from the Solid Waste Management Association of North America.

The facility, which opened in 2007, can process up to 115,000 tonnes of recyclables every year.

"It is a significant accomplishment that the Region was chosen for this award over major international cities in North America," said works committee chairman and Clarington Councillor Charlie Trim.

The Region also recently picked up some hardware from the Recycling Council of Ontario. Again for the MRF, Durham received the silver award in the waste diversion operator category.

"It is interesting to note here that the gold award went to Metro Municipal Recycling, the company that operates the facility. So the Region was technically honoured twice for the same building," said Coun. Trim.

Durham also won the bronze award in the sustainable municipality category for its work on partnering with grocery stores to recycle plastic grocery bags.

As to why the MRF is so successful, Durham's manager of waste management Craig Bartlett said it's because it uses the latest technology, dual-functioning optical sorters. The Region was the first to use the technology in Canada.

"It uses technology that can detect the kinds of plastics that are coming across," said Mr. Bartlett. The sorters can tell the difference between plastic water bottles and margarine tubs, two plastics that have to be sorted and separated for the Region to get the maximum value for the material.

"It's not hands that are sorting this, it's electronic equipment and state-of-the-art technology," said Mr. Bartlett.

But, overall, Mr. Bartlett doesn't attribute the win to the machines, but to the dedication residents of the Region have for recycling.

"It's not the Region that's winning these awards, it's the residents of Durham," said Mr. Bartlett.

Sludge Hammers winners too

DURHAM — Durham's wastewater department also recently represented Durham at the North American level.

The Sludge Hammers, made up of Craig Dignard, Noah Dorland, Wade Hunt, Jamie Gratrix and coach Jeff Lang, recently represented Durham at the Water Environment Federation Operations Challenge in Chicago. Teams from across North America, and one team from Argentina, competed in activities related to wastewater. The Sludge Hammers finished first in one event and eight overall out of 43 teams. The team finished first at an Ontario event last spring.

United Way Open Doors event

AJAX — United Way is opening its doors to the public.

The United Way of Ajax-Pickering-Uxbridge is hosting its first Doors Open event, offering access to the many funded programs which transform lives in the community on a daily basis. This event offers opportunity for donors to view their donor dollars in action.

There will be 19 funded agencies opening their doors to the public in order to demonstrate how United Way funding supports many lives in Durham.

The event is Nov. 13, with the first tour from 9 a.m. to noon and the second tour from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m.

Transportation will be sponsored by First Student, with the tours departing from the United Way office at 230 Westney Rd. S., Ajax. To reserve a space on the Open Doors tour call Jan Whalen at 905-686-0606 or e-mail at jwhalen@uwayapu.org.

She's Pickering's brightest star

By Danielle Bergeron
Special to the News Advertiser

PICKERING — Kelly Bain isn't your average high school teenager. She is well-rounded in academics, sports and extracurricular activities.

It was the final area that she excelled in on Nov. 1 at the Pickering Starz 2008 Finals, where she was crowned the winner.

It was Bain's third time in the competition, and she placed third both previous times.

"I love singing," Bain said. "It's a lot of fun and I like being able to express myself through different songs."

The Grade 11 Pine Ridge Secondary School student started singing in Grade 3. She was a part of her school's choir in the talent show, but when her teacher heard her voice, she suggested Bain sing solo. Bain sang 'Annie' and has been singing ever since.

Being a part of three different choirs at school is no easy feat. She sings in the jazz and concert choirs and in the women's ensemble.

"During the school year, I balance my grades, singing, and soccer," Bain said.

Her dream career would be to become a famous singer.

"I think it would be amazing to be living my dream doing something that I love," she said. "It would be really cool to be famous. Everybody knows you and your music is listened to by tons of people."

Canadian Idol is the next step for Bain. Last year, she was just one month shy of the audition age cut-off.

"All my friends keep telling me I should try out for Canadian Idol and I've thought about it a lot. I might go with some friends this year and try out just to see what happens," Bain said.

Aside from singing, Bain is obsessed with soccer. She loves playing and, when not singing, she is most likely playing the sport.

Rounding out the top 5 Pickering Starz performers are: first runner-up, Rachel Calvelli; second runner-up, Drew Chester; third runner-up, Nequitta Russell; and, fourth runner-up, Niki Somani.

Boldly going into the abstract with Karen Sloan

By Christy Chase
cchase@durhamregion.com

PORT PERRY — Walking into the new exhibit at the Kent Farndale Gallery made me think I'd stepped through the looking glass again.

Gracing the walls of the gallery were bright, bold and colourful paintings which instantly made me think of 'Alice in Wonderland,' both the book by Lewis Carroll and the play based on that book.

Karen Sloan has created paintings that could have come from the other side of the mirror, with a little Salvador Dali thrown in, as photographer Celia Klemenz noted. Or perhaps, Picasso. In many paintings, there's a green chair that looks like it could have been Alice's throne. The floors are diamond-patterned and aren't quite level. There are martini glasses that looked like they were melted and then flash frozen. In most paintings, there are curtains blowing in the breeze, but the windows are shut while the lamp pull-chains are blowing in the other direction. And the watermelon looks distinctly out of whack.

Sloan, who grew up in Toronto but now lives in the Haliburton area, was pleased to hear my reaction. Alice in Wonderland, it turns out, is one of her favourites and an influence, as are artists like Dali and Picasso who bent the rules in the art world, in more ways than one. Oh and, Dr. Seuss, too.

"It's a sense of humour," Sloan said in describing her work. "Although I take my painting seriously, I paint with a sense of humour."

She said she has many influences including music and colour. You'll find jazz details throughout her paintings, not surprising since Sloan listens to jazz and the Rat Pack music while she works.

"I do like colour," she said. "A lot of people are afraid of it but I like to paint with it. But I find music is the biggest influence. Jazz itself is abstract so that's part of how it evolves."

Once a floral designer, interior designer and horticulturist, Sloan includes her past in her works. Flowers, interiors, furniture, landscapes are common in her paintings. Most of the furniture has an antique fla-avour, reflecting her uncle's farmhouse, which was packed with antiques. And that green chair?

"This chair is from my childhood, at least, from my past. I can't seem to purge the chair," Sloan said.

She usually paints rooms, living rooms, bedrooms, dining rooms, which she sees as sanctuary, a place of peace and comfort, she said.

She sketches the ideas that come into her head, getting them just right before painting them.

She noted children generally like her work, attracted by the colour and fantasy aspect. She'd like to someday illustrate children's books.

As to how she developed her jazzy, edgy style, she said she just knew she wanted to do something different, something fun.

Her works can be found in private and corporate collections across Canada, the US, Britain, Australia, Holland, Mexico and South Africa. Singer Prince has purchased her work.

Her exhibit, titled, appropriately, Inside and Out, continues at the gallery, located in Scugog Memorial Public Library, until Nov. 27.

ity in Whitby, providing a no-crating environment where pets are able to interact socially while getting their exercise. She also teaches a First Aid for Pets course at her Doggie Minder facility.

Notre Dame Lady Cougars' Shanica Baker is tripped up and fouled by Pickering High School Trojans' Rachel Martini, left, en route to the net. Trojans' Danielle Gayle (15) watches the play unfold. Lady Cougars squeak into final

Pickering High Trojans battle hard to dethrone Notre Dame in senior girls' hoops semis

By Al Rivett
arivett@durhamregion.com

AJAX — The underdog Pickering High School Trojans put the undefeated and reigning Durham Region champion Notre Dame Lady Cougars on notice they wouldn't go down without a battle.

In a physical, high-intensity, high-tempo affair, played in front of a large crowd at the north Ajax school, the Trojans gave the 12-0 Cougars all they could handle and nearly pulled off an improbable senior girls' basketball semifinal upset on Monday afternoon.

Almost.
To use football vernacular, the Lady Cougars bent but didn't break under the relentless defensive pressure supplied by a fired-up Trojans squad. In the end, Notre Dame hung on for a 40-37 victory to send the Lady Cougars to their fourth consecutive appearance in the Lake Ontario Secondary School Athletics (LOSSA) 'AAAA' senior girls' final.

The Trojans had their chances late to dethrone the champs, including an open three-pointer as time wound down. Pickering point guard Teanna Rowe tossed up a desperation try, but the ball hit back iron and fell off to the side of the basket, gathered in by a Notre Dame defender, who held on until time ran out.

Following the contest, Trojans' coach Mike Gordensky could only admire the determined effort put forth by his squad. He correctly noted a few breaks and it might have been Pickering High headed to Uxbridge on Wednesday night to play for a LOSSA title.

"I'm proud of our girls. They worked hard. This is tough gym to play in. We knew that they had all the pressure because they were the favourites. I couldn't ask for us to play any better or any tougher. All we needed was two missed layups and we win by one. They capitalized on our turnovers and we didn't capitalize on theirs."

Lady Cougars' coach Rose Booker said it was a battle from the opening tip to the final Pickering possession. She noted her charges succumbed to a bout of nerves, which nearly cost them

Notre Dame juniors also to play for LOSSA 'AAAA' basketball title

AJAX — The Notre Dame Catholic Secondary School Lady Cougars' junior girls' team has virtually mirrored the senior team's court performance this year.

The Lady Cougars junior are also undefeated in LOSSA 'AAAA' basketball this season, and have also advanced to the final in Uxbridge on Wednesday night.

The Notre Dame juniors defeated the Uxbridge Secondary School Tigers 46-30 in semifinal action at Notre Dame on Monday.

Jenna Bennett paced the Lady Cougars with 16 points.

The Lady Cougars play the Pickering High School Trojans in the junior final at Uxbridge at 5:30 p.m.

The Trojans earned their way to the final after defeating the Pine Ridge Secondary School Pumas 31-27.

NOVEMBER 12, 2008

Ajax school quarter-finalists

AJAX — The Pickering High School Trojans girls' field hockey squad earned their way to the quarter-finals of the provincial championships in Peterborough last weekend.

The unseeded Trojans' girls faced second-seeded Forest Heights in the quarter-final, losing 2-0 on Friday at the 16-team Ontario Federation of School Athletic Associations (OFSAA) championships.

Pickering High finished second in Pool 'A', posting a 1-1-1 record. In Game 1, the Trojans dropped a 2-0 decision to top seed and eventual OFSAA champion St. John's-Kilmarnock of Breslau, near Kitchener-Waterloo. In Game 2, they played to a 1-1 draw with Michael Power-St. Joseph of Toronto. Emmy Emerson scored the Pickering goal.

In their final pool game, the Trojans downed Frontenac from Kingston 3-0. Samantha Gray scored twice; Alana Raymond added one.

Blue crew scores close hoops win

AJAX — Team Blue was anything but blue after scoring a victory over St. Louis Bar and Grill in Ajax Ladies' Recreation Basketball League action last week.

Team Blue defeated the grillers 29-25 in a competitive contest. Larissa Karimwabo paced 'Blue' with a 12-point effort. Melanie Wilson scored 12 for St. Louis, followed by Louise Da Re with five.

In the other contest of the night, Tom's No Frills posted a 40-31 victory over Team Green. Samantha McConnell popped in 14 for Tom's. Hannah Van de Kemp scored in double figures for 'Green' with 10.

a shot at a repeat LOSSA title. She did, however, credit her charges with executing on the floor when it mattered most.

"I think it was a case of nervousness," said Booker of the team's low shooting percentage in the semifinal. "They shot better from the floor than we did today."

The game plan, said Booker, was to keep Pickering's wunderkind guard Adriana Allen from being a one-woman wrecking crew. In fact, the Lady Cougars worked on defensive schemes the night before Monday's semifinal to keep Allen in check.

As expected, Allen connected for a game-high 22 points, with Lady Cougars' Brianna Thomas doing a solid job of guarding the talented offensive threat. The Trojans, however, weren't able to muster enough secondary scoring.

"We were great defensively, but the offence was a bit of a problem," said Gordensky.

"Obviously, Adriana is a superstar, but we needed one or two girls to step up and give us some baskets and they did, but not

An elated Booker gave kudos to her players for an undefeated LOSSA season to date and a shot at a second straight title.

"It's a pretty good accomplishment for our girls; we're excited. We wanted to get back to the LOSSA championship game, especially for our graduating players, who've put so much into our program."

Lady Cougars' centre Nicholle McKenzie netted 14 in the semifinal. Monique Johnson added nine points.

Notre Dame meets Pickering's Dunbarton High School Spartans in the LOSSA 'AAAA' final at Uxbridge Secondary School tonight, Wednesday, Nov. 12 at 7:30 p.m. The Spartans earned their way to the title game with a 46-34 victory over Whitby's Sinclair Secondary School Celtics in Whitby, also on Monday. Wumi Agunbiade and Michelle Spiers each had 12 points for the Spartans.

FROM SIZZLE TO FIZZLE

by Tom Hawks, Oxford Learning Centre

Every school year begins with students, parents and teachers who are full of optimism and committed to making this the best year ever. Unfortunately, for some, it doesn't take long for the sizzle to fizzle and for students to fall behind, leading to anxiety, stress and frustration for students, their parents and even for some teachers.

Too often parents expect miracles

Chances are that if your child had trouble with a subject last year and didn't work on it over the summer, the challenges could be even more overwhelming and demoralizing in the new school year. If you wait until the first report card, it's often too late. Let's help our children avoid falling behind this year then trying to play catch-up all year by quickly recognizing the symptoms of academic challenges.

Parents often allow six to eight weeks for a "settling in" period but doing so can be detrimental to a student's learning momentum. By the time October rolls around, some students are already becoming frustrated and the learning curve is too steep. All of a sudden, minor problems become major obstacles to success, and very stressful situations develop for everyone involved.

Make goal setting a family affair

It's critical to set goals early to ensure your child is happy and has the confidence and know-how to thrive and enjoy school. Setting goals helps motivate students, give purpose to their work, and better plan their time. Oxford recommends that parents and children set goals for success together because "we decisions" are better than "me decisions". By collaborating during goal setting, parents and kids can open the lines of communication. To begin, simply sit down with your child, review last year, let him tell you about his goals for the new school year. Listen carefully to what your child would like to strive for and achieve. Be supportive, respectful and encouraging.

Achievable, Measurable, Believable Goals

Work with your child to develop and set goals that are relevant, but most importantly the goals must be achievable, measurable and believable. This is critical and the underlying key to setting successful goals. Once the goals are set, the time is right to build a reasonable, realistic plan to achieve them and measure success. Periodic reviews between you and your child about how he/she is doing will keep the positive momentum going.

Oxford Learning is Canada's leading provider of supplemental and enrichment education services – see www.oxfordlearning.com for more information. If you want to help your child make this their best year ever call or visit Oxford today in Pickering 905-420-3141 or Ajax 905-683-6660.
