Roy Robson was set free on a charge of manslaughter last week before Chief Justice Mulock. Several months ago while driving through Toronto with an auto, an eight-year-old boy ran in front and before the auto could be stopped the unfortunate lad was run down and before he could be taken to the hospital expired. The evidence did not show that Robson was guilty of criminal negligence.

CHAPTER XXIII.—(Cont'd)

Mr. Boniface was much of the same opinion when he noticed Frithiof later on in the day.

"Frithiof," said Mr. Boniface, "you have got one of your bad headaches."

"Yes," replied the Norwegian, candidly; "but it is not a disabling one. I shall get through all right."

"What plans have you made for your Whitsuntide holiday?"

"I don't think we had made any plan at all."

"Then I want you all to come away with us for a few days," said the shop-owner. "You look to me as if you wanted rest. Come to us for a week; I will arrange for your absence."

"You are very good," said Frithiof, warmly. "But indeed I would rather only take the general holiday of Saturday to Tuesday. I am not in the least ill, and would rather not take extra days when there is no need."

"Independent as ever!" said Mr. Boniface, with a smile. "Well, it must be as you like. We will see what the three days will do for you."

Where and how this holiday was to be spent only Mr. and Mrs. Boniface knew, and Cecil and Roy were as much astonished as any one when, at two o'clock on Saturday afternoon, a coach-and-four stopped at the gate of Rowan Tree House.

"What! are we to drive there?" asked Cecil. "Oh, father, how delightful! Will it be very far?"

"Yes, a long drive; so keep out plenty of wraps; in case the evening is chilly. We can tuck away the children inside if they get tired. Now, are we all ready? Then we will drive to the model lodgings."

So off they started, a very merry party, but still merrier when the three Norwegians had joined them, the girls, as usual, dressed in black, for economy's sake, but wearing very dainty little white sailor's hats, which Sigrid had sat up on the previous night to trim.

"I feel like the 'linen-draper' bold, in the ballad," said Mr. Boniface, with his hearty laugh. "But I have taken precautions, you see, against a similar catastrophe. We have had more than the 'twice ten tedious years' together, have we not, Loveday?"

"Yes," she said, with her sweet, expressive smile, "we are just beginning the twenty-seventh, Robin, and have had many holidays unlike Mr. and Mrs. Gilpin."

They were still like lovers, this husband and wife of twenty-six years' standing; and it was with a sort of consciousness that they would be happier if left to themselves that Frithiof, who sat between Mrs. Boniface and Cecil, turned toward the latter, and began to talk to her.

"This is a thousand times better than a cariole or a stolkjaerre," said Frithiof. "What a splendid pace we are going at, and how well you see the country! It is the perfection of traveling."

"So I think," said Cecil. "At any rate, on such a day as this. In rain, or snow, or burning heat, it might be rather trying. And then, of course, in the old days we should not have had it all snugly to ourselves like this; which makes such a difference."

On they drove, free of houses at last, or passing only isolated farms, little villages, and sleepy country towns. The trees were in all the exquisite beauty of early June, and the Norwegians, accustomed to less varied foliage, were enthusiastic in their admiration.

"If we can beat you in mountains, you can certainly beat us in trees," cried Sigrid, her blue eyes bright with happiness.

At last, after a great deal of tea and bread and butter had been consumed, they mounted the coach again, leaving a sort of reflection of their happiness in the hearts of the people of the inn.

"There's merry-makers and merry-makers," remarked the landlord, glancing after them; "yon's the right sort, and no mistake."

And now Mr. Boniface began to enjoy to the full his surprise. How he laughed when they implored him to say where they were going! How triumphant he was when the driver, who was as deaf as a post, utterly declined to answer leading questions put to him by Roy!

"I believe we are going to Helmsstone, or some great watering-place, where we shall have to be proper and wear gloves," said Cecil.

This was received with groans. "But to get a sight of the sea one would put up with glove-wearing," said Sigrid. "And we could, at any rate, walk out into the country, I suppose, for flowers."

At length Frithiof started to his feet with an eager exclamation.

"The sea!" he cried.

And sure enough, there in the distance, was the first glimpse of a long blue line, which made the hearts of the Norwegians throb with eager delight.

"It seems like being at home again," said Swanchild, while Frithiof seemed to drink in new life as the fresh salt wind blew once more upon him, bringing back to his mind the memory of many a perilous adventure in his free, careless boyhood.

"A big watering-place," groaned Roy. "I told you so. Houses, churches, a parade, and a pier; I can see them all."

"Where? where?" cried every one, while Mr. Boniface laughed quietly and rubbed his hands.

"Over there, to the left," said Roy.

"You prophet of evil!" cried Cecil, merrily; "we are turning quite away to the right. How did you hear of this delightful place, father?" cried Cecil; "it is just perfect."

"Well, I saw it when you and Roy were in Norway two summers ago," said Mr. Boniface. "Mother and I drove out here from Southbourne, and took such a fancy to this farm that, like Captain Cuttle, we made a note of it, and kept it for a surprise party."

Mr. Horner, in his suburban villa, was at that very moment lamenting his cousin's absurd extravagance.

"He was always wanting in common sense, poor fellow," observed Mrs. Horner. "But to hire a coach and four just to take into the country his own family and that criminal's children, and those precious Norwegians, who apparently think themselves on a level with the highest in the land—that beats everything! I suppose he'll be wanting to hire a palace for them next bank holiday!"

As a matter of fact, the farmhouse accommodation was rather limited, but no one cared about that. Though the rooms were small they had a most delicious smell of the country about them, and every one, moreover, was in a humor to be as much out-of-doors as possible.

To Roy those days were idyllic; and Sigrid, too, began to understand for the first time that he was something more to her than Frithiof's friend. The two were much together.

They sat down to rest in a little sheltered nook under the high chalk cliffs, and it was there that he poured out to her the confession of his love, being so completely carried away that for once words came readily to his lips, so that Sigrid was almost frightened by his eagerness. How different was this from Trovald Lundgren's proposal!

What was it that had made everything so bright to her since then? Was it not the goodness of the man beside her—the man who had saved her brother's life—who had brought them together once more—who now loved her and asked for her love?

When at last he paused, waiting for her reply, she was for a minute or two quite silent; still her face reassured Roy, and he was not without hope, so that the waiting-time was not intolerable to him.

"If it were only myself to be thought about," she said at length, "I might perhaps give you an answer more readily. But, you see, there are other people to be considered."

The admission she had made sent a throb of delight to Roy's heart. Once sure of her love he dreaded no obstacles.

"You are thinking of Frithiof," he said. "And of course I would never ask you to leave him; but there would be no need. If you could love me—if you will be my wife—you would be much freer than you now are to help him."

But of this she was not quite sure. All had come upon her so suddenly that she felt as if she must have time to think it out quietly before making a definite promise.

"Give me a fortnight," she said,

"and then I will let you have my answer. It would not be fair to either of us if I spoke hastily when so much is at stake."

Roy could not complain of this suggestion; it was much that he was able at least to plead his own case with Sigrid, and in her frank, blue eyes there lurked something which told him that he need fear no more.

Meanwhile time sped on, and, unheeded by these two, the tide was coming in. They were so absorbed in their own affairs that it was not until a wave swept right into the little bay, leaving a foam wreath almost at their feet, that they realized their danger. With a quick exclamation, Roy started up.

"What have I been thinking of!" he cried, in dismay. "Why, we are cut off!"

Sigrid sprang forward and glanced at Britling Gap. It was too true. Return was absolutely impossible.

"We could never swim such a distance," she said. And turning, she glanced toward the steep white cliff above.

"And that, too, is utterly impossible," said Roy. "Our only hope is in some pleasure-boat passing. Stay, I have an idea."

Hastily opening his knife, he began to scoop out footholds in the chalk. He saw that their sole chance lay in making a standing-place out of reach of the water, and he worked with all his might, first securing a place for the feet, then, higher up, scooping holes for the hands to cling to; he spoke little; his mind was too full of a torturing sense of blame, a bitter indignation with himself for allowing his very love to blind him to such a danger.

In their terrible position all sense of time left them; they could not tell whether it was for minutes or for hours that they had clung to their frail refuge, when at length a shout from above reached their ears.

1912 FARMERS' PRIZE CONTEST

WE held a contest last year in which 36 prizes were offered. This year there will be three times as many prizes (108) and therefore three times as many chances for you to win one of them. You do not have to use a large quantity of cement to win a prize. Many of last year's prize-winners used comparatively little cement.

THE contest is divided into three classes and in only one of these (Class "A") does the amount of cement used count in deciding prize winners. Class "B" is for doing the best concrete work (the size makes no difference). Class "C" is for sending in the best and clearest description of how any piece of concrete work was done.

IT COSTS NOTHING TO ENTER—There are absolutely no "strings" to this offer. There is no entry fee or red tape to bother with. You cannot lose, because the improvement you make of concrete in competing for the prize will be more than worth their cost. We have a book, "What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete," that will give you all the information about the use of concrete you can need. It will be sent to you free when you ask us for complete particulars of the Prize Contest. Ask for particulars to-day. Just say "Send me, free, your book and full particulars of the 1912 Prize Contest," on a post card and mail it to-day. Address: Publicity Manager,

TORONTO CORRESPONDENCE

INTERESTING BITS OF GOSSIP FROM THE QUEEN CITY.

A Fakir Gets His Just Dues—A Loquacious Alderman—Graft in the City—New Railway Board Chairman.

"Doctor" James Gervais Evans, who has just been sentenced to fifteen months in Kingston penitentiary on a charge of forgery, never made much of a splash in Toronto, though he has been travelling around the Province for several years. Until the last year or two Dr. Evans made his headquarters in Kingston, where he now resides in a different capacity. He arrived there about eight years ago from whence no one knows. He forthwith became active in missionary work. And among many activities, evolved one pet scheme of establishing a missionary boat on the river Jordan. The boat would travel up and down the river carrying Christianity to the Jews and the Mahomedans of the Holy Land. In advocating this and other schemes "Dr." Evans often assumed Oriental costume, which added to his picturesque and impressive appearance. The sensation his appearance caused will be recalled by many points. Speculations for his missionary house-boat sailed in until one day a traveller just returned from Palestine reported that the river at that point would hardly float a ship, let alone a house-boat. "Dr." Evans was not perturbed. He simply switched to some other scheme. The house-boat was a failure. He was a morphine fiend. His arms are a mass of punctures where the needle has been injected. Last accounts for his visionary schemes and his absolute irresponsibility.

Duke Saw Media.

Recently, when the Duke of Connaught was visiting Toronto, there was to be a review of the Veterans Association. Evans hurried up and got in line as a veteran. He and beheld his immaculate frock coat was decorated with a string of medals and badges for valor, long service and other military accomplishments that turned the heart of the proudest veteran green with envy. When the Duke of Connaught passed along the line his sharp eye caught the array. He stopped, examined the medals keenly and, it is said, detected the fraud. Shortly afterwards came "Dr." Evans' arrest and subsequent exposure.

Some years ago, when the Russian Japanese war broke out, there was practically no one on this continent who knew much about conditions at the scene of fighting. Clubs and associations searched everywhere for lecturers who could deal with the subject, but none was forthcoming. "Dr." Evans jumped into the breach. He knew. Needless to say, his lectures were a frost although the first ones were largely attended. He advertised pictures, and fulfilled his promise by showing pictures of a battle scene. Various people all around the world, but when she got to Japan he calmly announced that from this point on the censor would allow no pictures out.

In the 1911 election "Dr." Evans jumped to the front as an Imperialistic orator, and in one capacity or another he is widely known throughout the Province. His "speeches" rarely did anybody any harm. Even the forgery on which he was connected, arising in connection with a private College here, was not serious in its consequences.

Loquacious "Sam" McBride.

One of the spectacular figures of the Toronto City Council is Alderman Sam McBride. Sam is decidedly loquacious. That is one of his chief claims to fame. At Council meetings he is the reporter of the number of times Sam speaks. Sometimes the record runs to surprising figures. Once it ran to 78 different speeches, which for a session of five hours duration means that he averaged one speech every four minutes throughout the performance. Naturally Sam does not talk very long at a time, and sometimes what he says is not much to the point. Again it is too pointed for some of his fellow aldermen, for he has the faculty of getting under the skin of his companions with personal remarks. Generally he is good natured, but the other day he threatened across the Council board to shove his fist down the long throat of Controller Church. The good people of the town were greatly shocked and the newspapers read the Council lectures on the indecency of bear garden exhibitions. But Sam afterwards apologized and said he did not mean what he said.

Picks Unpopular Side.

Another claim to fame Alderman McBride has is that he generally votes with the minority. He seems to have a faculty of picking out the unpopular side of an argument. As an "opposer" he is an expert. He was instrumental in blocking the Humber Boulevard scheme for fear his ground extending being that it is a scheme to make a millionaire of Mr. Home Smith at the expense of the city. If the project had been unpopular Ald. McBride would have probably supported it. Newspapers and others threaten Ald. McBride with defeat at the polls for his obstructive tactics. But he doesn't worry. Every five elections since 1905, with one exception, he has bobbed up serenely near the top of the poll in ward three. He seems to go on the theory that by opposing everything he gathers in all the votes of the knoekers and soreheads. They are the ones who don't forget.

A Household Remedy

In private life Sam is known to fame for his support of harness racing. He is an ardent follower of trotting races in Toronto and throughout the Province and illumines the meetings of Council with horse talk and the picturesque atmosphere of the race track.

Graft in Toronto.

A Toronto Journalist has been making an investigation into various forms of "graft" that are practised here, and has found some surprising illustrations. One charge he makes is against undertakers whose charges, he says, are often extortionate. A simple, though thorough, decent funeral, can be made up on the following charges, and still allow the undertaker a good profit of $13:

Coffin	$15 00
Outside box	5 00
Hearse	8 00
Embalming	10 00
Shroud	5 00
Total	$43 00

Yet the charges often run up over $100. Not long ago a Toronto undertaker sent in a bill for $537 but in this case the executors contested the bill in court and had it cut to $129. The casket, which was a fine one, had been charged at $250, though the undertaker admitted in the box that it had cost him only $41. Probably ninety-nine out of a hundred people pay the charges even if extortionate, rather than appear to be mean about such a matter. And this feeling is played upon.

SCOFFERS

Often Make the Staunchest Converts.

The man who scoffs at an idea or doctrine which he does not fully understand has at least the courage to show where he stands.

The gospel of Health has many converts who formerly laughed at the idea that tea and coffee, for example, ever hurt anyone. Upon looking into the matter seriously, often at the suggestion of a friend, such persons have found that Postum and a friend's advice have been their salvation.

"My sister was employed in an eastern city where she had to do calculating," writes a Western girl. "She suffered with headache until she was almost unfitted for duty."

"Her landlady persuaded her to quit coffee and use Postum, and in a few days she was entirely free from headache." (Tea is just as injurious as coffee because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.) "She told her employer about it, and on trying it, he had the same experience."

"My father and I have both suffered much from nervous headache since I can remember, but we scoffed at the idea advanced by my sister, that coffee was the cause of our trouble."

"However, we finally quit coffee and began using Postum. Father has had but one headache now in four years, due to a severe cold, and I have lost my headaches and sour stomach which I am now convinced came from coffee."

"A cup of good, hot Postum is satisfying to me when I do not care to eat a meal. Circumstances caused me to locate in a new country and I feared I would not be able to get my favorite drink, Postum, but I was relieved to find that a full supply is kept here with a heavy demand for it." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason." Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

TRICKS YOU CAN DO.

How Very Easily a Person May Be Outwitted.

Ask a man if he thinks he can stand still for five minutes, blindfolded, without moving his feet. It sounds easy, but it is fairly safe to wager that he will move his feet before the time is half up. It is necessary to be sure that the blindfolding is properly done. If the performer does not move his feet, it is probable that he will topple over.

A little trick with the fingers which is possible but very rarely accomplished is to place the tips of the first and third fingers together, and then try to draw the middle finger between them without disjoining the tips, and without support from any other fingers.

Lie flat on your back, bend your leg back on to your body, and then try to straighten your knee. You will find it impossible, the reason being that you are already using the necessary muscles for the first action, the lower part of the leg being worked by the same muscles as control the upper part.

If you were to ask an average cigar-smoker if he could smoke a cigar right through in steady, consecutive puffs without once taking it from his mouth, he would probably smile at the simplicity of the feat. You are fairly safe to wager him that he cannot do it. Half a cigar generally consumes itself whilst held in the fingers of the smoker or placed on an ash-tray.

ARE YOUR HANDS CHAPPED?

Zam-Buk Will Cure Them.

The particular danger of chapped hands and cold cracks (apart altogether from the pain) is that the cold is likely to penetrate and set up inflammation, festering, or blood-poison. Directly the skin is broken by a cut, graze or scratch, or chafed and cracked by the action of the cold winds and water, the one necessary precaution is to apply Zam-Buk freely.

The pure herbal juices from which Zam-Buk is prepared are so perfectly combined and refined that the immediate effect of these Zam-Buk dressings is soothing, antiseptic, and healing.

Mrs. O. M. Phoen, Neuchatel, Alta., writes:—"I must tell you how pleased I am with Zam-Buk. My husband had an old frostbite on his foot for many years, and had tried almost every known remedy, without any effect, but the first application of Zam-Buk seemed to help him so much that he persevered and the sore is now cured. We would not be without Zam-Buk in the house."

Zam-Buk is also a sure cure for piles, eczema, ulcers, abscesses, scalp sores, blood-poison, bad leg eruptions, etc. Its purely herbal composition makes it the ideal balm for babies and young children. All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk 50c. box or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Try also Zam-Buk Soap, 25c. tablet.

WIRELESS TELEPHONE NOW.

Dr. Moretti of Rome Says He Has Solved Great Problem.

Dr. Riccardo Moretti of Rome claims to have solved the problem of wireless telephony owing to a special generator of electric oscillations of his invention, which has been successfully experimented with between Rome and Tripoli. This apparatus consists of two poles fixed vertically a small distance apart and through one of which a thin continuous jet of water flows. The water is evaporated by an electric spark between the ends of the poles and an alternating current of extraordinary rapidity is consequently generated since the oscillations thus produced are calculated at several hundred thousands every second. As the oscillations exceed in number and rapidity the vocal vibrations by means of this generator it is possible to transmit the voice over long distances.

Dr. Moretti has experimented with his invention in connection with the naval wireless installations with the addition of ordinary telephone receivers and transmitters, but he is now working on a hydraulic transmitter, particulars of which are still undivulged as it has not yet been patented abroad. Dr. Moretti is the nephew of Prof. Machiavelli, the Pope's physician.

He admits that he owes his invention to Marconi and insists that it is nothing else but an application of wireless telegraphy to the telephone. Dr. Moretti has granted the prior rights of his invention to the Government and in fact a wireless telephone station is already being installed between Tripoli and Rome. Meanwhile an Italian syndicate has been formed for the exploitation of the Moretti generator of electric oscillations.

THE CZAREVITCH.

Russia's Future Ruler Much Like Other Boys of His Age.

It has been a source of great regret to loyal Russians that the cast iron etiquette of the imperial court has hitherto prevented them from obtaining even the least glimpse of the daily life of the Czarevitch, but since his illness the curtain has been lifted and it is possible to give some idea of the young Prince's education, occupations and amusements.

The most striking of the pictures thus afforded is perhaps that of the future ruler of the great Russian Empire drilling with the sons of non-commissioned officers and privates. But the account generally reveals the average human boy, poring over his books for the allotted hours and then scampering about the country "scouting," bathing, bird nesting, boating and bicycling.

The Empress devotes herself to her little boy's moral and religious training and also teaches him English.

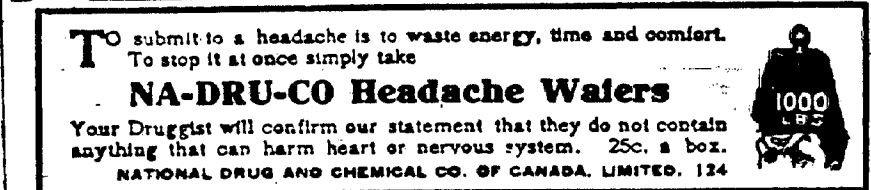

The Czarevitch is vivacious, intelligent and eager to learn, asking endless questions. He is very fond of the lives of the saints, especially St. Seraphim, whose canonization at Tamboff his parents attended in 1903 and whom popular belief associates with the continuance of the dynasty in the direct male line.

He never tires too of hearing stories of the legendary heroes of Russia. His physical training, consisting of gymnastic Swedish exercises and elementary military drill, is often watched by the Czar. While his lessons are taken alone, in his out-of-doors recreations the Czarevitch has numerous companions, and in his "scouting" expeditions with them thoroughly enters into the boy scout spirit, joining heartily in the choruses of the scout songs and so on.

He continues to be attended wherever he goes by the sailor Dorevko of the imperial yacht Standart.

INTERNATIONAL STOCK FOOD

Makes Cows Give More Rich Milk.

International Stock Food conquered England, just as it conquered Canada and the United States, by proving to the Dairy Experts that it is the greatest milk producer and health restorer in the world.

The test was made on three cows from the dairy herd of S. W. Hackney, Esq., Leeds, England, Chairman of the Yorkshire Federation of Dairy Farmers.

Quantity and quality of milk was tested for a certain time—then "International Stock Food" was added to the regular feed.

INTERNATIONAL STOCK FOOD showed an increase in Milk of 14.3 pints daily, and 1.21 pounds of butter daily.

This proves that International Stock Food, added to the regular feed will increase the quantity and improve the quality of milk from every cow.

It shows that International Stock Food aids digestion and keeps cows in better condition. It proves that International Stock Food is a money-maker for the farmer—that every farmer who owns one, or a hundred, cows should feed International Stock Food every day.

Make the test yourself—weigh the milk you are getting now—then feed International for a few weeks, and weigh again. Then you'll see how International Stock Food will make money for you.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The high cost of living is a subject that is being discussed at present, not only by newspapers, but by Boards of Trade and other bodies that are fond of endeavoring to solve difficult problems. Many solutions have been arrived at including the tariff, increased gold production, combines, heavy military matters, the desertion of the farm for city life and many other causes. All these may have something to do with the matter or they may have very little. So far, as we can see, we do not see much difference from what it was ten or fifteen years ago. The necessities of life certainly have risen greatly during that time, but to meet this increased expenditure, wages have risen correspondingly. Work was never more plentiful than it is at present and happiness and contentment was never more general than it is now. The chief question every person should try to solve for himself is to lay something aside for a rainy day. With increased prosperity there is increased extravagance moving all classes. Whatever a person's income may be there should be a substantial part of it laid aside for sickness or old age when a person's earning powers have decreased.

There was concluded this week in the City of New York a murder trial which has attracted much attention throughout the country. Four men belonging to the underworld of that city and known as "gunmen," have been convicted of the murder of a notorious gambler, Rosenthal. Along with the police lieutenant, Becker, who has also been condemned as a murderer for being the instigator of the crime, they will spend the remainder of their lives in Sing Sing, to await death in the electric chair. The lawyers for the prisoners have given notice that they will enter an appeal against the verdict on grounds that would have no weight in a British court of justice. In the law courts of the United States, justice is greatly hindered by the quibbling of the lawyers. So frequently cases hang out year after year and finally end in a failure. The case of British courts of justice is entirely different. The law takes its course and when a man's guilt is clearly evident, justice is meted out swift and sure. The case of Dr. Crippin, the wife-murderer, is a sample of British justice. Had he come under the jurisdiction of American courts the probability is that the case would have been prolonged for years.

Lloyd George, the Chancellor of England, and one of the most prominent statesmen of the British Empire, is a man whose history should be an incentive to every young man in the country. He is a native of Wales and has risen from a humble position in life. In a recent statement, he said that most of the assistance he got in life was not from those above him who could hold down a helping hand to assist him in his upward career, but from those from his own humble position. One of the greatest opportunities that can come to men of wealth or to men of influence is that of helping deserving young men or women. The country contains hundreds of young people, who have ability and determination, whose progress in life is hindered by every possible kind of obstacle. At every turn in their path they find a stumbling block, and discouragement stares them in every direction. They may be of a literary or scientific turn of mind, but they have not the means to provide the necessary education to make these pursuits worth while. They may not have the physical strength to endure the hardships necessary to secure the education by their own personal efforts. A word of encouragement or a little pecuniary assistance might be the means of changing their whole career in life. It might be the means of changing one of abject failure to one of unqualified success. A valuable plant may be destroyed by the failure to supply it with a few drops of water at a time when it is thirsting for moisture. A most valuable life may be destroyed by its failure to secure a word of encouragement or some kindly act at a critical period in its life. The world is full of opportunities to those who are in a position to help others. There are thousands of men and women who have so much money that they do not know what to do with it. By using it in helping those who are struggling to rise in the world they will derive unbounded satisfaction, and will make their names blessed and honored by their fellow-men.

DISTRIBUTION OF SEED GRAIN AND POTATOES

FROM THE DOMINION EXPERIMENTAL FARMS, 1912-1913.

By instructions of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture a distribution of superior sorts of grain and potatoes will be made during the coming winter and spring to Canadian farmers. The samples for general distribution will consist of spring wheat (5 lbs), white oats (4 lbs), barley (5 lbs), and field peas (5 lbs). These will be sent out from Ottawa. A distribution of potatoes (in 3 lb samples) will be carried out from several of the experimental farms, the Central farm at Ottawa supplying only the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. All samples will be sent free by mail.

Applicants must give particulars in regard to the soil on their farms, and some account of their experience with such kinds of grain (or potatoes) as they have grown, so that a promising sort for their conditions may be selected.

Each application must be separate and must be signed by the applicant. Only one sample of grain and one of potatoes can be sent to each farm. Applications on any kind of printed form cannot be accepted. If two or more samples are asked for in the same letter only one will be sent.

As the supply of seed is limited, farmers are advised to apply early; but the applications will not necessarily be filled in the exact order in which they are received. Preference will always be given to the most thoughtful and explicit requests. Applications received after the end of January will probably be too late.

All applications for grain (and applications for potatoes) should be addressed to the Dominion Cerealists, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Such applications require no postage. If otherwise addressed delay and disappointment may occur.

Applications, for potatoes, from farmers in any other province should be addressed (postage prepaid) to the Superintendent of the nearest Branch Experimental Farm in that province.

J. H. GRISDALE,
Director, Dominion Experimental Farms.

Mr. Scott is one of our most enthusiastic farmers.

The community has seldom been more profoundly moved than it was on Sunday last when it became known that Mrs. W. H. Pugh, had been called away by death. She had been apparently in normal health till Friday and her sudden demise came as a sad shock to the whole neighborhood. Beloved as a daughter and sister in the home, a loyal helpmate to her husband and a popular member of a wide circle of friends, she will be much missed. The heart felt sympathy of the whole community goes out to the bereaved husband and infant child in the lonely home and to the parents and sisters as well as to the many friends less closely related who mourn her early decease. The funeral which took place on Tuesday afternoon was attended by an unusually large number of people, including friends from Elmvale, Walkerton and other points.

A number of our most prominent business men are of a decidedly sporty turn of mind, and are always ready to shoulder their guns whenever there is any possibility of their securing game. The other day they heard a rumor that there were foxes in the vicinity of the village and no time was lost in donning their hunting suits and in securing an adequate supply of ammunition. Early in the morning they started with visions of valuable game in their possession. After tramping for some time they came to a hole in the ground, which their experienced eye told them was the home of the fox. One of the party who has an intimate knowledge of drugs took from his pocket some mysterious concoction which he thrust down the hole. The party then moved back some distance to await developments. In a very short time a beautiful black fox with long hair and a neat stripe down its back appeared at the surface, accompanied by a very strong and rather unpleasant odor. A well-directed shot soon put an end to the earthly career of the animal. One of the party acted the part of the undertaker, and took charge of the remains.

A DASH FROM ADRIANOPLE

Turks Lost Six Guns and Left Thousands of Dead On the Field.

A despatch from London says: Bennett Burleigh, in a series of despatches to The London Daily Telegraph from Mustapha Pasha, describes the progress of events around Adrianople. In a sally on Saturday morning the Turks lost six guns, which were captured by the Bulgarians, and also left many thousands of dead on the field. The enemy tried to break towards the southeast, hoping to escape by rapid marching along unfrequented routes towards Tchatalja. The Turks seem incapable of realizing their truly desperate straits, and that the battle power has gone from their hands.

The Bulgarians are now within field-gun range of many parts of the town. Their military engineers have adopted an admirable system of constructing and placing their siege works. These are so many self-enclosed independent camps, placed so as to command the approaches to the city as well as the exits. They can, in attack or defence, co-operate with the neighboring camps behind and all around the enclosing circuits of the besiegers' work. These camps are almost impossible nuts to crack in any sally. There are lines of barbed wire everywhere. The morale of the besieging troops is splendid. Travelers in vehicles are coming from Jildrim towards the Bulgarian camps on the southwest.

It is stated that negotiations are proceeding at Adrianople with a view to saving needless waste of life. The Turks have been told that the town will otherwise be taken by bombardment or assault unless it is surrendered. The terms will be discussed for a day or so. In the capture of Marash and its works a few days ago the Turks left three thousand dead upon the field, but succeeded in carrying most of their wounded into the town, which must now be in a frightfully insanitary condition and in privation. The streets from Mustapha Pasha to the front are being regularly cleaned and repaired, under Bulgarian direction, by the peasants.

Arrived Too Late.

A despatch from Sofia says: Nearly one thousand Bulgarian reservists from the United States arrived here on Saturday. Their enthusiasm was dampened by the announcement that they would very probably not be permitted to go to the front. Some of them have already started for their homes in the provinces. Twelve hundred Turkish prisoners have been brought here.

A Massacre is Feared.

A despatch from Sofia says: King Ferdinand has decided not to enter Constantinople if he takes the Tchatalja lines, because of a fear that a massacre of Christians will occur before he can secure full control of the city and feel sure of keeping order. Fear of a cholera plague aided him in this decision. Ferdinand's Government favors his decision. M. Natchovitch, Bulgarian Foreign Minister, in an interview with the correspondent of the Neue Freie Presse, said that Bulgaria wants Constantinople and Salonica made free cities, and that the Bulgarian army will halt before the gates of Constantinople and leave the fate of the Turkish capital to the powers.

The Balkan allies at Salonica are displaying a fine crop of petty jealousies. The Bulgarians who followed the Greeks into that city wired to King Ferdinand that the city was now under his rule, thereby stirring in the breasts of the Greeks a feeling that due credit had not been given to them.

A despatch from London says: From the accounts of correspondents on the Bulgarian side, their wounded are in just as bad condition as the Turks. One correspondent in describing the poor ambulance service of the Bulgarians, whose wounded are driven for miles in jolting oxen carts, says this is not the worst part of their sufferings. He continues: "After several battles the wounded were left lying on the bare fields where they had fallen for two or three hot days and bitterly cold nights, and the worst sights in the hospitals are the rows of poor fellows with swollen and gangrened limbs, for whom there is no hope of recovery."

The correspondent adds that many are dying from exposure and not from wounds.

Grim Toll at Yenidje.

A despatch from Athens says: It is announced that 35,000 Turks were engaged in the battle against the Greeks at Yenidje. They had 42 heavy guns. The Turkish losses numbered 2,000 killed, 500 made prisoners and 22 guns captured. The Greek losses were 500 killed and wounded, including fifteen officers.

Six Thousand Massacred.

A despatch from Athens says: Six thousand women and children, 25 men and two priests have been massacred in the neighborhood of Janina by 750 men of the Turkish infantry and 300 Bashibazouks, who pillaged and set fire to the villages.

Murderous Fighting.

A despatch from Bulgarian headquarters says: After four days' murderous fighting, the Bulgarian army has succeeded in breaking through the Turkish position at Tchatalja in the centre of the lines and completely rolling up the Turkish defence. The Bulgarian advance is being pushed forward with the greatest energy with the view of forcing the Turkish troops away from Constantinople.

Cholera Steps Bulgaria.

A despatch from London says: Cholera at Tchatalja and Constantinople is doing more than all the men under Nazim Pasha to stop the march of the Bulgars. Eye-witnesses tell of horrible scenes in the beleaguered forts, where hundreds of bodies of victims of the disease are piled into shallow trenches.

It is doubtful if King Ferdinand will risk the lives of any more of his men by marching them into a plague-stricken city, and there is a report that already many of the Bulgarian troops have been stricken with cholera, which they caught in positions from which they had routed the diseased Turks.

A Constantinople despatch to the Cologne Gazette declares that Bulgaria has abandoned her intentions to enter Constantinople, being thus advised by Russia and Great Britain. Altogether, although the report that an armistice already has been arranged has not been confirmed, all indications point in that direction, and it may be supposed that the terrible conditions of famine and destitution prevailing among the refugees in the neighborhood of Constantinople, which are calculated to provide a hotbed for the spread of cholera, may have had something to do with Bulgaria's decision.

Constantinople still waits her fate in the calm of despair. So far, in spite of alarmist reports, there has been no great disorder there.

ENGINE BOILER EXPLODES.

Fireman Fatally Hurt and Engineer Critically Injured.

A despatch from Hamilton says: Two men were injured, one fatally and the other critically, and several persons were shaken up early on Friday, when the engine of G.T.R. train No. 11, an accommodation running between Niagara Falls and Windsor, exploded at the "Y" near the Desjardins Canal. The victims were: George E. Cook, engineer, Niagara Falls, Ont., aged 55 years, badly scalded about the breast, face and hands, lacerated about the shoulders, and suffered from shock, will probably recover; Samuel Sault, fireman, Niagara Falls, N. Y., aged 39, right leg crushed, had to be amputated at the knee; skull fractured; terribly scalded about the upper portion of the body. Taken to City Hospital, where he died at 1:30 in the afternoon.

MILLINERY STOCK BURNED.

$25,000 Damage Done by Fire in Hat Works at London.

A despatch from London, Ont., says: Fire that is said to have started in rubbish about the heating plant at the Wright Hat Company's warehouse in Ridout Street Saturday afternoon caused damage estimated at about $35,000. Between $20,000 and $25,000 of this was to the heavy millinery stock, while the remainder was to the plant and equipment. Insurance was carried to the extent of about half of the total loss.

By a Grecian Torpedo. This is a photograph of the Sultan's warship Feth-i Bulend, which was blown up and sunk by a daring Grecian torpedo boat that escaped unscathed. It is probable scores of men forming the crew, if not several hundred, were drowned, as the vessel sank in five minutes.

THE PANAMA CANAL TOLLS

Merchant Vessel Rate To Be $1.20 Per Net Ton Carrying Capacity.

A despatch from Washington says: President Taft on Wednesday night issued a proclamation fixing the rates that the foreign shipping of the world shall pay for passage through the Panama Canal. The proclamation, made under authority of the canal act passed by Congress in August, establishes a merchant vessel rate of $1.20 per net ton of actual carrying capacity, with a reduction of 40 per cent. on ships in ballast.

The provisions of the proclamation are as follows:

1. On merchant vessels carrying passengers or cargo, $1.20 per net vessel ton—each 100 cubic foot—of actual earning capacity.
2. On vessels in ballast without passengers or cargo, 40 per cent. less than the rate of tolls for vessels with passengers or cargo.
3. Upon naval vessels, other than transports, colliers, hospital ships and supply ships, 50 cents per displacement ton.

4. Upon army and navy transports, colliers, hospital ships and supply ships, $1.20 per net ton, the vessels to be measured by the same rules as are employed in determining the net tonnage of merchant vessels.

"The Secretary of War will prepare and prescribe such rules for the measurement of vessels and such regulations as may be necessary and proper to carry this proclamation into full force and effect."

American coastwise shipping was exempted from toll payment by Congress. It was to this provision of the act that Great Britain diplomatically protested, but no reference to the incident is made in the President's proclamation.

A SANITARIAN CLUB.

For Charitable Work Among the Consumptive Poor.

Toronto has a modest and unique charity organization known as the Samaritan Club, the members being ladies who have banded together for work among the consumptive poor. The main idea is one which might be adopted in every town and village throughout Canada, while even in the tiniest settlement any Christian woman who feels a call to help less fortunate sisters can constitute herself a Samaritan Club of one, and find effective work to do in her neighborhood. The Toronto ladies have formed the following committees: The Supply Committee, to provide clothing for consumptive and their families. The Nourishment Committee, to provide milk, eggs, and other necessities and delicacies for patients at their homes, and soup for weak and hungry patients at the free dispensary. The Welfare Committee, for delivering twenty minute talks on the cure and avoidance of consumption at places where ten or more girls are employed, thus spreading a knowledge of the disease and its prevention.

MAN HURLED TO DEATH.

Oliver Poirier Caught in Shafting in Cornwall Mill.

A despatch from Cornwall says: Oliver Poirier, aged about sixty-two, met a horrible death in the basement of the weave shed of the Canada Mill here on Thursday afternoon, when he was in the act of oiling the shafting. His clothing caught in the shafting, and before the speed could be shut off he was dead. Both arms, both legs, his neck and every rib were broken, while his body was a mass of bruises. Poirier was born near Coateau, Que., and is survived by his mother, his wife, two sisters and two brothers.

Mr. E. A. Lancaster, M.P., intends to fight to the last the assessment on his Parliamentary allowance.

NINE PERSONS DROWNED

Old Mayflower Springs Leak In Madawaska River Near Barry's Bay, and Sinks.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Nine lives are believed to have been lost in the Madawaska River on Tuesday night soon after 7 o'clock, when the old wheel steamer Mayflower, a small 50-foot boat, capsized and sank three miles out of Barry's Bay, after springing a leak. Of the twelve people aboard, ten of whom were passengers and two members of the crew, three passengers, namely, Gordon C. Peverley, J. S. Imlach and M. J. Harper, all of Ottawa, and commercial travelers, are alive to tell the story of the terrible disaster. They were found by a search party who rowed out from Barry's Bay to an island about three miles down the river, in a very exhausted condition.

From the brief story of the disaster that could be obtained from the three survivors, they say that the Mayflower sprang a leak soon after she left Barry's Bay. Her hold rapidly filled with water, and those on board quickly realized that death was imminent. There was hardly a moment to decide on how their lives could be saved. A howling wind was sweeping down over the river, which is nearly a mile wide at the point where the boat sprang a leak, and the water was lashing the sides of the ill-fated boat with a vengeance. All around was black.

Not a light could be seen anywhere. The boat began to lurch a little, a little more and then terribly, when the old coal-oil lamps went out by being crashed to the floor, and in a few minutes when all was in darkness the boat keeled over broadside and sank suddenly, throwing passengers, crew, freight and all, of which there was a good deal aboard, and machinery, into the icy water. The wooded shores threw back the echoes of the cries of the drowning souls. The three survivors were able to discern some spars of timber floating near to where they had been hurled into the water. Each tried to cheer the other with words of encouragement, and half perished in water that was clogged with ice, and almost numbed to the point of unconsciousness they drifted ashore, but more dead than alive.

Words, they say, could not describe those hours of suffering on the island up to the time they were found. They were too exhausted to walk, or even to get to their feet. Throughout the long, cold night, and terrible, even colder day, in a blinding snow storm, they waited and prayed that help would come to them. Death seemed inevitable until at last, when hope seemed practically gone, they heard the quiet swish of oars and the sound of human voices, and from that moment from sheer joy they remembered nothing more until they awoke in a house with kind faces around them and kind hands to attend to their wants.

ANAEMIC GIRLS SEEM EVERYWHERE

Nine Out of Every Ten Show Symptoms of This Serious Trouble.

So steadily does anaemia undermine the health of young, growing girls and young women that it is rightly regarded as one of the greatest enemies of her sex. Nine women out of ten are by less, more or less, and in many cases neglect has allowed anaemia to develop into hopeless decline. There is a security and new strength for weak tired girls and women in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They actually make the new, good blood of health that banishes the "always tired" weakness, and the continual backaches of anaemia. They drive away headaches, the low spirits, the palpitating of the overworked heart and the fits of nervousness that mark the women whose weak blood is unable to nourish their wasting frames. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have given health to unhappy anaemics in cases too numerous to record. Here is one example. Miss Hattie B. White, Whitehall, Ont., says:—"Some two years ago I became very much run down. I consulted a doctor who told me that it was a bad case of anaemia and nervousness. I had most of the symptoms that accompany this trouble, such as headaches, a tired feeling, poor appetite, and pallor. The doctor's medicine did not seem to help me and then I began changing from one medicine to another, but with no better results. Finally at the suggestion of my mother I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I got two boxes and by the time I had taken them I began to feel better. This cheered me very much, and I continued using the Pills until I had taken nine or ten boxes. When I was again enjoying the very best of health, and had gained in weight as well. I have proved in my case that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a cure for anaemia, and can recommend them to similar sufferers."

What a Woman Can Do.

She can do a first-class job of carpenter work with a pair of shears. She can fix almost anything with a hairpin and a bottle of glue. She can smile when she is miserable and weep when she is happy. She can make a $37 hat out of an old birdcage and some trimming off an old party gown. She can put away things where nobody (including herself) can ever find them. She can suffer the privations and hardships of a martyr to preserve her figure. She can make a full meal out of a nickle and a dish of ice cream.

'MARVELOUS' CURES OF SKIN ERUPTION

Four Children Constantly Scratching.
Nearly Tore Limbs Off. Cured in a Month by Cuticura Soap

"Two of my daughters and two of my sons were suffering from very bad heads, the doctor ordering my daughters to have all their hair cut off so as to prevent it from spreading all over their heads, and to get to the seat of the trouble in order to be able to rub some ointment, which he gave them, well into the sores. These sores started in a small blotch on the forehead, which got larger and larger and then burst and spread all over their heads, and in some cases down their backs and bodies. The doctor said it was eczema, but they seemed to be daily getting worse. The sores formed like little boils, then filled with matter, and looked like abscesses. They became so inflamed and irritated, causing them to be constantly scratching themselves. This made the sores burst, and the matter flowed all over their heads. We had to cut their finger nails and at times to put gloves on their hands, the irritation was so bad, to keep them from digging into the flesh, and at night they would nearly tear their limbs off. The doctors would be literally covered with blood."

"The teachers would not let them attend school for fear of infection spreading among the other children, so I resolved to try the Cuticura Remedy, which I found to benefit my children greatly. I continued with the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment for one month, and the result is a marvelous cure." (Signed) George Arthur Robinson, 37, Phawillam St., Bayland Common, N. B. (Signed) Mrs. E. J. Robinson, 37, Phawillam St., Bayland Common, N. B. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, a liberal sample of each, with 30-p. booklet on skin ailments, will be sent free on application to Potter D. & C. Corp., 40 Columbus Ave., Boston, U. S. A.

WHEN HINDUS MAY-BEG.

Nine Cases in Which One May Be a Mendicant.

The Hindu Shastras (says the Times of India) consider that begging is allowable and "virtuous" in nine cases, namely:

Where a man wants to marry and is unable to defray the expenses of marriage, or wishes to perform a costly sacrifice, or to travel; Where he has given away all his wealth to priests, or seeks wealth for his Guru, or for the maintenance of his father, or his mother; Where he seeks wealth for his own study or is ill.

The ascetic may beg; having given up all concern with the world, his case may be placed on a par with that of the person who has made over all his wealth to priests.

It is degrading for an able-bodied person who does not fall under any of the nine categories mentioned to throw himself on the charities of others. A person in distress, as for example during a famine, may be treated as one who is ill. The Buddhist and Jain ascetics may beg like their Brahmin brethren; and a multiplication of the ascetic orders has led to a multiplication of mendicants.

In many cases the asceticism is nominal and is a cloak for avoiding work and the anxieties connected with it. But such dishonest mendicancy finds no support in the Shastras.

In the permissible cases certain rules are to be observed.

Thus a man may beg for the expenses of his first marriage, which is enjoined as a duty, but not for his second marriage during the lifetime of the first wife.

If he begs in the latter case, he is told, somewhat coarsely, that he must look upon the offspring by the second wife as if it belonged to the donors of the expenses.

Similarly the Hindu ascetic should not go out on his begging round early in the day; he must beg when the householders have eaten, and the dishes have been removed. If he gets no alms, he should not despair, and when he does get food he should not unduly rejoice. He should barely support life, and not indulge his palate.

THE BEST MEDICINE FOR YOUNG CHILDREN.

Mrs. Ulderie Roberge, Lac Long, Que., writes:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my baby who suffered from stomach trouble and vomiting, also from constipation and they completely cured him. I can recommend them to all mothers as the very best medicine for young children. The Tablets are superior to all other medicines, not only because they promptly cure stomach trouble, constipation, colic, etc., but because they are guaranteed to be absolutely safe and free from all harmful drugs. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont."

BRAZIL'S TURN IS COMING.

Larger By 50,000 Square Miles Than the United States.

While we have heard a good deal lately about the growth of the Argentine Republic, says the Springfield Republican, less has been said of the rapid progress made by Brazil, a country of enormous possibilities. In estimating its future it is well to remember that it is larger by some 50,000 square miles than the United States, excluding Alaska and our island possessions, while in natural resources it is probably not inferior. Its development, of course, has been much slower, but its turn is now coming. A recent British consular report calls attention to the fact that San Paulo, which ten years ago had but 100,000 people, has now a population of 380,000 and expects in fifteen years to reach the million mark.

Twenty years ago it had no industries, to-day there are 300 considerable factories representing a capital of $50,000,000 and having an annual output of $60,000,000.

This is a hopeful symptom, and it must be considered that in its interior regions, which have hardly been explored Brazil possesses an enormous wealth of valuable raw material, vegetable and mineral. The success of the United States in reclaiming the Panama zone has been taken by many to mark a new era for the tropics; certainly as the world's demand for tropical products increases Brazil will increase steadily in prosperity and population.

BRINE CURE FOR HORSES.

Novel Bath Experiment at Droitwich for Afflicted Animals.

A brine bath, in which four horses can stand in hot brine, is now in existence at Droitwich, England. The bath has been built at the rear of Mr. Everett's garage, in St. George's Square, with a sloping way down which the horses can walk in four stalls, where they will find themselves in about 2 feet 6 inches of warm brine. After standing in this for the number of hours ordered by a veterinary surgeon, they will be brought out, dried, and properly bandaged, to avoid all risk of catching cold.

Droitwich brine is twelve times as strong as ordinary sea water, and the cure is intended for race horses, polo ponies, and hunters. Mr. Everett says that he has for years used the brine, made hot, on lame horses, by dipping bandages in it and applying them to the legs. He has found the cure successful for strains, bangs, and rheumatism. He also found it very good white he looked after his father's stud farm at Finstall Park for foals and yearlings who were weak in the legs.

Scent for Sleep.

Scent has other attractions than a mere appeal to the nose. Anybody, for instance, who suffers from insomnia may find relief in perfumes. Collect a number of fresh pine-needles, and fill a bag with them; carefully rip open your pillow and place the bag amidst the feathers in the pillow. The perfume of the pines is often an excellent soporific. A bag of dried hops used in the same way is just as good. Dried rose-leaves, mixed with dried clover-heads, give out a delicious perfume, and helps a weary one to woo the god of sleep. A teaspoonful of eau-de-Cologne in a warm bath is most refreshing, while scent placed on the forehead of anyone who suffers from headache generally gives relief.

One must be a genius to be a successful barber. One is reminded of the tonsorial artist who operated in the same village for fifty years and never made a mistake. In his early days a handsome boy sat into his chair. "Shave, sir?" asked the barber. "You flatter me," laughed the youth. "You flatter me. No, I can only use a hair-cut." Years passed. In fact, thirty years did it. The same man came to the same barber. "Hair-cut, sir?" asked the barber. "You flatter me!" signed the man. "No—only a shave."

WHITBY

Capt. Stroud, of the Militia Department, while inspecting the armory this week stated that one of the surprises of the near future would likely be the erection of a new armory in Whitby.

Montrose McCheyne, of the Windsor House, informs us that during the past six months four thousand guests have been entertained at that hotel, from which a revenue of $8000 was derived. This will give some idea of the business done in Whitby, which is gradually increasing.

This (Friday) evening a high-class entertainment will be given in the O. L. C. W. Evans Jones, the famous tenor singer, of London, Eng., and Miss Ahrens, a gold medalist pianist of the O. L. C. will be the artists.

Geo. JOHNSON, Inspector
Sun Life, Oshawa

SIR:—I am delighted with my 25 year endowment policy which has matured.

I have compared my results with several other companies and cannot find any company that pays such large dividends to the policy holder as the Sun Life of Canada. I can assure you I made no mistake in choosing the Sun Life for protection and investment.

CHAS. TOD, Whitby.

A story of a 4,000 mile trip after moose is told by a German hunter in the opening number of November issue of ROD AND GUN IN CANADA published by W. J. Taylor, Woodstock, Ont. Frank Houghton contributes an amusing tale of Western life entitled "Two is not Always Company," while the seventh article of the series "The Culture of Black and Silver Foxes" under the heading, "Food and Feeding" appears in this issue. A trip after Caribou in Newfoundland. The Seventh Summer Camp of the Alpine Club of Canada. Tenderfoot Deer Hunters in the Laurentian Mountains. A trip to the Coast, Game Protection in British Columbia. A Wolf Hunt in Saskatchewan and other stories and articles constitute a typically Canadian bill of fare for sportsmen and lovers of outdoor life.
