CHAPTER XVII.

London was not half as surprised as Lady Glaucoart thought it would be, when Lady Judith's engagement to Adolphe Lieb was announced. It is wonderful how many people there are who have the characteristics of the ostrich, and imagine that because they bury their heads in the ground, they are not seen. As a matter of fact, everyone understood that Lady Judith had seized her last opportunity by the hair, and that the fact of the presence of the Mascotte of Park Lane, made her trust to his not minding even when he found out, which of course he would do, the mysterious something, which had made her last engagement a disaster.

"Naturally, one knew," said the mother of a plain daughter, "that the Glaucoarts couldn't be running those Africans 'pour leurs beaux yeux.'"

As for the Duchess she now took all the credit of having brought it about. "You see, my dear, that I knew what I was about when I asked you to be civil to the Gollings," she said to Lady Glaucoart.

"I must say, my dear Duchess, that I don't see that there is anything to boast about. It is a wretched match for Judith, with her looks."

But the Duchess knew, that to use a vulgar expression "Cornelia thanked her stars," and she even had a long talk with her son Eustace about it, begging him to see that people didn't say anything disagreeable.

She was so thankful that Eustace was safe, that she would have done anything to assist this marriage, and she was good natured, and had never wanted Judith to go completely to the wall. She had a certain loyalty to her own class and sex, which is passing away with the younger generation. Some one likened her to an old war horse, and her clothes to old-fashioned trappings.

As for L. J. Eustace, he was thankful that he had always been pals with her. "His chief's future wife" as he now called Judith. Now Lieb was called "My chief."

"Nonsense," the Duchess had said, "when you know that you practically run everything. I am sure I don't know what they would do without you." And the dear woman actually believed it.

Strange to say it was Lord Glaucoart, Lord Glaucoart who never expressed an opinion hardly at home, who opposed the idea.

He had a long talk with Judith about it. It was a most distasteful match, he told her, and if he had had any idea of that sort of thing he wouldn't have had him inside the house. As a matter of fact, he had had him to dinner at home, and at the club and liked him very much.

"You seem to forget that he is a Jew," he told her, "putting aside everything else, merely a Frankfort Jew, the son of a jeweller, or something."

Lady Judith had never realized how old-fashioned her father was, and now for the first time she grasped the fact that she and her mother had grown immensely ahead of him, thanks to the knowledge they possessed of her "malheur," which he did not. How could he know, poor dear, that if she didn't marry the South African she would never marry anybody?

"Don't you think, dear father," she said very patiently, "that when a man is as rich as that it hardly matters who he is, it is a case of what he will be, and of course he could go into parliament or do anything. Dizzy was a Jew you know."

But it had been quite troublesome to get him to agree, and the fact that it was so, enhanced her value in Adolphe's eyes. He had had just the kind of interview he had expected with Lord Glaucoart, who, because there was no fault to find with the settlements, had found it pretty roundly, and with little disguise, with the man.

"Of course I will not hide from you, Mr. Lieb," he hated pronouncing the name, "that I am not in favor of this engagement. Money is not everything, don't you know?"

"No, I know that it is unexpected good fortune for me," Adolphe had told him in a very quiet and gentlemanlike way. "Lady Judith belongs to a different class to myself, to a different religion. On the matter of religion there will be no trouble. I am afraid that I am not very orthodox, and if there are any children—"

"They will of course be Christians," put in Lord Glaucoart a little hastily.

"Certainly, if Lady Judith wishes it, and I was going to say," he added, "that while I quite realize that Lady Judith could have married anybody, I don't think that any one would make her happier than I can; I can, at least, give her everything in the world she wants."

"Yes, of course, that—"

"That is the only thing in my favor," interrupted Adolphe with a frank laugh.

"Oh, well, you know, one can't have a sentiment in a matter of this kind, you will quite understand that—"

"Yes, I understand," Adolphe replied with quiet dignity, "I understand that the matter lies entirely with your daughter herself, and if she considers the matter and changes her mind," he paused a moment, "it will be a great blow to me, but I shall understand, I do not wish to influence her at all, unless she feels pretty contented."

"I must say," her husband told Lady Glaucoart afterwards, "that he behaved like a perfect gentleman. But a Jew; it sticks, doesn't it?"

"Well, I don't know," Lady Glaucoart thought that the Christians had "stuck" a good deal more till now. Judith was always rather peculiar, don't you know, different from other girls, and she never seems to have quite hit it off with people de notre monde. There was Hubert Gresham, whose mother is just the opposite to a Jew, hands you a tract when you go to lie down, and puts a Bible in your bedroom, and all that sort of thing, and he proposed I know, and Judith wouldn't have anything to say to him," and then that fiasco with Mr. Danvers.

"Yes, I never quite understood that," put in Lord Glaucoart, but there were so many things that he didn't understand that his wife didn't begin to explain. She was quite satisfied with one or two of what Judith called "Mother's useless lies" today, especially as evidently the Jew had pleaded his own cause with some success.

"Of course I suppose that I ought to have seen through it when she accepted that necklace the other day," said her husband.

She didn't tell him that he rarely saw through anything, from a scheme of the Opposition downwards, but it was too good an opportunity to be lost, in which to put forward her own perspicacity and its superiority to his.

"Oh, I have seen it coming for a long time," she told him.

The episode of Judith's accepting the necklace was this:

Three days before he had proposed, Lieb had given the Glaucoarts a dinner at the Carlton. Mrs. Golling had helped him. He had wanted to give it at his own house, but Mrs. Golling overruled the proposition. She was always perfectly frank with him.

"I don't think I would do that," I were you," she had told him, "people are so funny, and they have an idea that Azuma—don't you know," she stopped. Delicacy forbade her explaining further.

"But Lady Judith, she quite understands."

"Lady Judith isn't everybody, at least not yet," she said with a smile, "and you want some nice people to meet them." And he had given in.

The dinner had been given at the Carlton, and Lady Glaucoart had consented to accept it, protesting a little because it was Lieb's dinner but, knowing all the time that Judith intended her to go, and to make Lord Glaucoart go, and they had been agreeably surprised at the people they had met. Lord Eustace was there, and the Gollings, of course. No other girl, but Judith. The Duchess would not go, but she had made her married daughter, Lady Adela Spencer, go with her husband, Mr. Spencer, a little insignificant-looking man, who said all the intelligent things of the evening, and who took one so by surprise every time he did, that one expected to hear Lady Adela from the other side of the table, exclaim: "There, that's why I married him," and a friend of Lieb's, his only Briton-born friend, the member of parliament who helped him with his schemes, and who was as at home in South Africa as he was in the House of Commons.

The dinner had nothing different about it to any other dinner, till quite the end, if anything it was rather shorter than most, and as Lady Glaucoart put it afterwards: "We did not drink out of cut diamond glasses or anything of that kind."

"Nor even drink Johannisberg," Judith put in demurely.

"Do you think you ought to have accepted such a valuable present? I mean don't you think it was rather bad taste of him making you so conspicuous before?—I mean it isn't as if you were engaged."

But Lady Judith didn't think it was at all bad taste, she thought it was delightful of him the way he had singled her out.

"I suppose he is going to propose, Judith?"

"Yes, I know he is, he told me so."

"How very odd, what an odd way of putting it I mean."

But Judith didn't explain, she rather enjoyed mystifying her mother, and explaining would have meant to tell her how near he had got to proposing, and how he had warned her that when he ever did propose, it would be in his own house.

"I think I would like to see the place again where I had proposed, if of course, I had been accepted," he had said. "You see if you propose to a girl, say in her home, in a friend's house or an hotel, it might become impossible to visit that place again, but at home always you would be reminded where that happened."

It was a funny idea, but somehow Judith could enter into it. There was very little that he said that she could not enter into. He had said this night of the party at the Gollings, and then at the Carlton he had asked Judith if she and her mother would come to see his diamonds and curios, and he had felt when she accepted the necklace, that she was to all intents and purposes engaged to him. She would have known it, even if Mrs. Golling had not told her.

"He is intensely infatuated with you, but of course he doesn't think you would marry him." But the incident of the necklace seemed to show that he knew that she would, and she enjoyed his way of making love to her, it was a little unique, and hitherto there had been no fight, no struggle, no interference.

At the end of the dinner, the touch of the Oriental had been introduced, the touch of magnificence, as if he felt that it was necessary to make them feel that dining with a multi-millionaire, the richest man in Europe, was not exactly like dining with any one else.

"Pay them for coming," Golling had said, coarsely, with a touch of contempt. Lieb had not been able to put Judith next to him, she sat between Lord Eustace, who kept asking her if she were going to marry Lieb in an undertone, and the member of parliament, whom she found very charming, and every now and then Adolphe threw a look across the table which said plainly, "since I could not have you next to me, I put you where I could see you, and you look lovely."

And when dessert was going on, he had turned to the women and said: "The worst of fruit is that it won't last, it gets too ripe, or we eat it, now if you ladies will look under your plates you will find the everlasting fruit. That is much better."

He was a little nervous, and the fact of his being so rather emphasized his German accent. Lately Judith had grown to think his accent fascinating. He had not told Mrs. Golling of his plan, because he felt instinctively that the Gollings were not yet quite sure enough of themselves to be able to advise others, and he knew that women never could resist a jewel. Faust is after all only man's philosophy with regard to woman, expressed.

And underneath each plate, or rather underneath the edge, each woman found a small pear formed of one diamond of exquisite color, with two little green leaves of emerald fastened to the stalk.

"Oh, Mr. Lieb!"

"Isn't this too exquisite?"

"Did you ever see anything so lovely?"

His little attempt at social apostasy had not miscarried. The women were delighted. It made so original an ending to the dinner, and as Judith said to herself, gave one an insight into all his possibilities, and increased the semi-Monte Cristo, semi-Arabian Nights feeling, he always inspired.

But he had his little joke to impart for Adolphe Lieb, like most Germans, was a good host. He wanted them to remember his dinner, the first he had given in London, and at which Judith had been present. He drew a gold chain from beneath his plate.

"Now ladies I feel sure that you are all generous, kind-hearted, full of feeling for one another, ready to give up what has pleased you to others. This chain you see has four little hooks with a small green leaf, now these hooks are for the four little pears. You see this way." He held out his hand and they laid the pears in his broad palm looking puzzled, as he hooked them on to the chain.

"By George, I believe he is going to take them back," whispered Lord Eustace across Judith to the member of parliament.

"I bet he isn't," said the member of parliament, who was a staunch friend of Lieb's.

"Well, you see now, here the necklace is perfect, but there is only one necklace. I feel sure that you would all rather the jewel was not spoiled, so you must draw lots and see who is to have the whole necklace—"

Nobody understood for an instant, then the four women burst out.

"Oh, but no, Mr. Lieb, I wouldn't think of such a thing, I couldn't really."

"I certainly won't give mine to anybody," said Lady Glaucoart emphatically, and everyone laughed.

"I don't want to, but I suppose one of us must be self-sacrificing." Judith felt as if she were already married to him, and helping to dispense his gifts.

The lower berth in a sleeping car is stuffy with the windows closed, and if you open the window the cold air is directly on you. It is thought that the riding public would appreciate some deflector or diffusing construction which could be applied to the open window over the usual short-hinged screen and permit the entry of fresh air, at the same time preventing it from blowing directly upon the passenger in the berth.

Some means for effectively preventing the mirror effect in show windows, the effect we all notice in passing such a window in which our image is reflected and the contents of the window are shut out of view. Naturally, the shopkeeper who works for a display in his window resents it not being seen.

President Wilson, who is an ardent golfer and also dependent on his eyeglasses, is reported as saying that he cannot play the game in the rain because of the accumulation of moisture on his glasses, which leads to the suggestion that especially devised glasses or some treatment of the ordinary lens may solve the problem.

Pretty London Girls Fight Fires While Men Fight the Enemy at the Front.

Another testimonial to the fact that the women of Great Britain are rapidly accustoming themselves to the new order of things, wherein they have taken the place in a great many walks of life vacated by the men who have gone to the front, is this photograph. In a London draper's shop the girls have taken the places of the men who composed the fire brigade of the establishment. During the drills, which are taking place daily, they answer the call as quickly as did the male members, and they are as capable of handling the hose and nozzle in a stubborn blaze as any male firefighter.

THE ITALIAN ADVANCE WILL BE RAPID

Balkan Situation Hourly Becoming More Unfavorable for Germany and Austria.

A despatch from Rome says: The Giornale d'Italia, commenting on the fact that the situation on the front remains unchanged, points out that the lull is due to delay caused while heavy Italian artillery is being mounted on important and dominating positions beyond the Isonzo. As soon as this work is completed, the paper says, the Italian advance will be rapid.

Meanwhile, the paper continues, the Balkan situation is hourly becoming more unfavorable for Germany and Austria. When Balkan intervention comes, the paper concludes, the Germanic allies will be compelled to sue for peace.

The boyish Crown Prince of Italy motored to the railway station to meet an incoming train of wounded soldiers from the front. He personally directed that a number of the men be placed in his car while he himself kept a seat and chatted affably with the men as they drove to a hospital.

An enthusiastic crowd cheered the young Prince at the station as he walked among the wounded, shaking hands with them.

agent for an American relief committee. He did not hold this pose long, but arising at his examination, made a military salute, and confessed himself a spy.

He created a sensation by announcing that Captain von Pariger had a complete outfit for forging American passports. Carl Lody, the first man to be shot in the Tower, also had one, he said. The revelations caused a stir in London, and a report was sent of it to Washington by Ambassador Page.

After his confession Rosenthal was speedily convicted, but his execution was postponed from June 15 in order to obtain more information from him. He tried to commit suicide, but was saved in time. Nothing is known of his antecedents.

GERMANS AGAIN WIN PRZASNYSZ

Occupy Town in Northern Poland on Route of Their Former Drive.

A despatch from London says: Abandoning for the moment their attempt to outflank Warsaw from the south, the Germans, probably under Field Marshal von Hindenburg, who is reported to have said that he would shortly astonish the world, have renewed their attack on the Polish capital from the north.

They have not only captured a large number of prisoners south of Koino, according to the report issued by Berlin, but have occupied Przasnysz, a fortified town of 50 miles north of Warsaw, which was taken by von Hindenburg in his great drive from East Prussia last winter, but was retaken by the Russians in their counter-offensive.

This claim is partly confirmed by the Russian official report, which stated that the Russians, in the face of strong German forces, withdrew to their second line of entrenchments.

This move on the part of the Germans has taken the military critics completely by surprise. It was generally supposed that Gen. von Mackensen would, after being strengthened, continue his attempt to reach the Lublin-Cholm railway, thus forcing the evacuation of Warsaw. But, as in all their operations, the Germans have done the unexpected. The new offensive will probably be general, and extend from the Baltic around the East Prussian border to the Vistula, west of Warsaw, for all the Russian troops in this section must be kept busy to prevent them from concentrating at the point where the Germans hope to break through.

This is the second time Field Marshal von Hindenburg has tried this. His last effort, while it freed East Prussia of the Russians, cost the Germans an immense number of men and nearly involved them in disaster owing to the muddy condition of the ground. Now, however, there are only bad roads or lack of roads to contend with, but it is possible that the Germans have built railways to their northern front, as they have done in Central Poland.

PASSENGER SHIP ATTACKED AT SEA

Orduna Escaped Fate of the Lusitania by Only One-half Second.

The Cunard liner Orduna, bound from Liverpool to New York with 227 passengers, including 22 Americans, was attacked without warning, it was learned on her arrival Saturday, by a German submarine.

Twenty miles from the graveyard of the Lusitania off Old Head of Kinsale, the Orduna escaped the Lusitania's fate by one-half a second of time or ten feet of space, the German torpedo churning the water that distance behind the liner's rudder. Then the Orduna sped away. She was followed by the submarine, which rose to the surface, manned a gun on her deck and shelled the fleeing steamer.

The attack was timed at ten minutes to six o'clock in the morning, when all but a few of her passengers lay sleeping in their berths. Aroused by stewards, the passengers dressed hurriedly and went to the upper deck, where they put on lifebelts and took their places at the lifeboats. They heard the scream of the shells and saw the ocean spit up columns of water where the shells struck. When the fire grew hot they were ordered, for their own protection, to the next deck below.

For half an hour the Orduna showed her heels to the assailant. Through marine glasses the passengers watched the dark splotch on the water's surface astern. They saw the low-lying German warship coming on with a bone in her teeth, but the Orduna's flight was faster than the pursuit, and after seven shots had been fired, without effect, the submarine gave up the chase.

ARM FRENCH TROOPS WITH A SHORT KNIFE

A despatch from London says: The Daily Mail's correspondent at British headquarters in France says: "The French are arming their troops with a short knife for use in trench warfare, thus replacing the bayonet, which, when fixed in the rifle, is too long a weapon to give a man free play in the narrow trenches."

Boots wear out faster in summer than in winter.

DEAL RUSSIANS TITANIC BLOWS

Hindenburg Forces Making Furious Efforts to Cut Muscovite

A despatch from London says: The Russian front, running from the Baltic in the north to Bessarabia in the south, a distance of nearly a thousand miles, is being subjected to violent attacks by the Germans and Austrians.

In the Baltic provinces Gen. von Buelow, who is using large forces of cavalry, has crossed the Windau River, and is moving toward Riga, and is declared to have taken 3,600 prisoners and six guns in the first battle. In the Przasnysz district Field Marshal von Hindenburg, who is making his fourth attempt to reach Warsaw, has twice broken the Russian lines, and compelled the defenders to retire toward the Narew River.

In Southern Poland, after a period of inactivity, Field Marshal von Mackensen is again on the move, and claims to have captured some Russian advanced positions which stood between him and his objective, the Lublin-Cholm railway.

Simultaneously with these attacks which are the main ones, the Austro-German armies are on the offensive west of the Vistula River, in Central Poland, and along the Dniester River, in Galicia. As was the case in the drive through Western Galicia, the Russians are fighting stubbornly, and on occasions are turning and delivering vicious blows at their opponents. But whether they will be able to hold their present lines is problematical.

ITALIAN TROOPS ARE INSISTENT

Are Determined to Carry the Bridgehead of Gorizia at Whatever Cost.

A despatch from London says: Private advices describe the Battle of Isonzo as the greatest fought as yet on the Italian front, the attacks of the Italians being almost incessant and most determined in character. The bridgehead of Gorizia has suffered greatly from the bombardment of the Italians, who seem resolute to carry the position at whatever cost in order to develop the operations on the east side of the River Isonzo. The whole front along this line is strewn with thousands of dead. The mountain slopes are also spotted with the bodies of attackers and defenders alike. The new Italian offensive seems to develop all along the front in the Tyrol, Carnia and Trentino. A new device has been adopted by the Austrians. Peaks and high slopes of the mountains have been fortified, and the men are under cover behind rocks and great stones built up all around the peaks. When attacked by great masses from below they blow up these fortified positions so that great boulders roll down on the oncoming enemy like an avalanche.

The Italians have captured two miles of Austrian trenches in the Carnic Alps, according to a despatch received from Villach, an Austrian town on the River Drave, 52 miles north-west of Laibach.

The Alpine troops, the despatches say, dragged their artillery to the heights near Roskofel, which is situated at an altitude of 6,600 feet.

The Italians also are said to have captured two important ports south of Gorizia.

ITALIANS MAKE FURTHER GAINS

Offensive Steadily Progresses Despite Desperate Resistance of Austrians.

A despatch from Rome says: Despite desperate resistance on the part of the Austrian troops the offensive of the Italian army continues, the progress, although steady, being somewhat retarded by heavy rains and the unseasonable character of the weather in the mountainous regions, where the bulk of the heavy fighting is being staged.

In the brilliant attacks of the Italian infantry recourse has been had to the bayonet, such charges proving highly effective against the resistance of the Austrians.

In the upper Val Camonica, the enemy, having advanced through the Venerodol and Brizio passes, made an attack in force against the Italian positions near Rifugio Galibaldi, but was repulsed with loss, leaving a few prisoners. The Italian troops after driving back the adversary occupied the two passes which are at a height of more than 10,000 feet.

SPY EXECUTED AT TOWER OF LONDON

Admitted at Trial That He Was in the Employ of German-Secret Service.

A despatch from London says: Robert Rosenthal, the self-confessed spy, who was arrested with an American passport in his possession, was executed at the Tower of London. He faced the firing squad bravely.

Rosenthal, who was posing as the agent of a gas mantle concern, was arrested because a letter from him to Captain von Priger, the head of the secret service of the German Admiralty, was intercepted by British secret service agents. At first he claimed to be an American citizen travelling for an American concern, and also an Telegrams for transmission to Germany, and via Germany to Austria-Hungary, Turkey and non-belligerent countries, will be accepted at the local telegraph offices. The rate from Toronto to points in Germany will be 56 cents a word, and to points beyond Germany 64 cents a word.

Such messages will go by wireless via the Sayville station, which is now operated by the United States Naval Department. All telegrams will be accepted at the sender's risk, must be written in plain English or plain German, and will be subject to censorship by the Canadian, United States and German authorities.

Martial Law to be Declared in Germany

A despatch from Copenhagen says: A private despatch from Berlin, which was passed by the German censor, says excitement is growing rapidly among the German people on account of the Social Democratic pamphlets demanding a rapid conclusion of the war owing to increasing prices of all foodstuffs. Martial law will be declared all over Germany to suppress all demonstrations.

ALL GERMAN RESERVES ARE CALLED OUT

A despatch from Zurich says: It is becoming more clear that Germany has now called up her last reserves and that every available man is being sent to the fighting line. Germans of 45 years of age residing in Switzerland have now been called to the colors. The most typical case is that of a German of 42 years, residing in Basle, who, never having been a soldier, was called on a month ago. A few days ago the family received a letter from the Russian frontier, where the man had been sent after a fortnight's military training.

BIG DAILY OUTPUT OF GERMAN SHELLS

VERY NEARLY EIGHT MILLION PER MONTH.

Tremendous Output of Ammunition is Pointed Out by David Lloyd George.

That the Teutonic allies are turning out 250,000 shells a day was one of the startling statements made by David Lloyd George in his great speech in the British House of Commons a few days ago in moving the adoption of the munitions of war supply bill. The Minister of Munitions said in part:

Superiority of Men.
"We have an undoubted superiority in men—(cheers)—in numbers—and I am assured by all those who have been at the front that it is not merely a superiority in numbers, but in the quality of men—(cheers)—and, therefore, it is purely a question of equipping them with the necessary amount of material to support their valor in the attacks which they make on the lines of the enemy. I heard the other day on very good authority—and this will give the House an idea of the tremendous preparations made by the enemy for this war, and of the expansion which has taken place ever since the war—that the central European powers are turning out 250,000 shells per day.

Eight Million Shells a Month.
"That is very nearly eight million shells per month. The problem of victory for us is how to equal, how to surpass, that tremendous production. (Hear, hear.) The problem of speedy victory is the accomplishment of that aim with the least possible waste of time. (Cheers.) Any obstacle, any mismanagement, any slackness and indiscipline, any prejudice which prevent or delay mobilization of all our resources at the earliest possible moment postpone victory. The question in the Ministry of Munitions we have set ourselves to achieve is: Can we achieve that purpose? I say that we can accomplish that object of not merely equalling the German and Austrian output of munitions, but if we are in earnest we can surpass it. (Cheers.) The central European powers have probably attained something like the limits of their possible output. We have only just crossed the threshold of our possibilities.

Temporary Preponderance.
"Germany has achieved a temporary preponderance of material. She has done it in two ways. She accumulated great stores before the war. She has mobilized the whole of her industries after the war, having no doubt taken steps before the war to be ready for the mobilization of the workshops, immediately after the war was declared. Her preponderance in two or three directions is very notable. I mention this because it is essential they should be understood in inviting the assistance of the community to enable us to compete with this formidable enemy. The superiority of the Germans in material was most marked in their heavy guns, their high explosive shells, their rifles, and perhaps most of all their machine guns. These have turned out to be about the most formidable weapons in the war. They have almost superseded the rifle and rendered it unnecessary.

Germany's Preparedness.
"The problem of victory is a problem of mobilizing our resources for the purpose of increasing the material of things with which we were confronted at the beginning of war? Germany had been preparing for years. (Hear, hear.) She had been preparing in a direction which we hardly suspected. We naturally were anxious lest she was making great secret preparations to strengthen her navy and to develop a sudden surprise attack upon us. I think on the whole there was nothing that she has done for her navy that we had not anticipated. There was nothing she had done for her navy that we were not prepared against. There has been no surprise in the turning out of any expedients of war which had not been foreseen so far as the navy was concerned. The strength developed by the submarines has been surprising; but the number and the fact that they possessed them was no surprise. That was not the case with her armies. I ventured to call attention in 1913 to the fact that in my judgment Germany was concentrating upon developing the strength of her armies and not of her navy, and I got rather a bad time. What was the fact? Germany had undoubtedly been preparing. She had been piling up material until she was ready. She was on the best of terms with everybody?"

NERVOUS CHILDREN

Hard Study and Too Little Exercise Leads to St. Vitus Dance.

There is much criticism of modern educational methods that require too much work of school children, allowing them too little time for play and preventing sufficient out-of-door exercise. When the study of music or any other accomplishment, with the necessary practice, is added the strain is increased. Under these conditions the blood becomes impoverished and fails to nourish the nerves. The child becomes restless, and twitching of the muscles follow. Sometimes the child stumbles in walking and drops what it tries to hold. Pallor, listlessness and irritability are symptoms that early show that the blood and nerves are failing to meet the demands made upon them, and that St. Vitus dance has fastened its hold upon the child.

In this condition there is no tonic can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which build up the blood, strengthen the nerves and safely help to meet the demands of the growing child. Out-of-door exercise, nourishing food, plenty of sleep with these tonic pills will cure even the most severe cases of St. Vitus dance. We offer the following proof: "Up to the age of ten years," says Mrs. Johnson, of Hemford, N.S., "my son Calvin was as healthy and rugged as any child could be. Then he began to complain that his eyes hurt him, and of pains in the head, and began to fall back in his studies at school. Then I noticed a twitching of the muscles of his face and arms, and later his whole body seemed to be in constant motion. Our family physician was called in and pronounced the trouble a severe attack of St. Vitus dance. He was under the doctor's treatment for some three months, but did not seem to improve. We had taken him from school, and were careful that nothing should excite him, but notwithstanding he grew worse, and the least start would bring on attacks of hysteria. This went on for some months until Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were brought to my attention, and we decided to give him this medicine. After using a few boxes there was a noticeable improvement, and by the time he had taken nine or ten boxes he had recovered his former good health. There has been no sign of a return of the trouble, and I can scarcely say how thankful we feel for the complete restoration of our son's health."

Parents who find their growing boys or girls becoming nervous should lose no time in giving them Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You may ward off an attack of St. Vitus dance, or if the trouble has reached that stage the Pills will effect a cure. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Whole Duty of a Soldier.

On the eve of the battle of the Marne the French officers gathered their men about the bivouacs, and in the summer night, broken by the roar of cannon, read to them the proclamation issued by Joffre. It thrilled every one with the thought that the fate of France lay in their hands. "Advance," read the order, "and when you can no longer advance, hold at all costs what you have gained. If you can no longer hold, die on the spot."

An official song-book is issued by the Lords of the Admiralty for the use of bluejackets.

ABOUT THE HOUSEHOLD

Dainty Dishes.

Blackberry Cottage Pudding.—One-third cup of butter, one cup of sugar, two cups of flour, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half cup of milk, one egg and one cup of blackberries. Cream the butter; add the sugar and egg well beaten. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together and add to the other mixture. Beat well; add the berries. Bake in a buttered shallow cake pan thirty minutes. Serve with blackberry sauce.

Blackberry Sauce.—Beat three-quarters of a cup of heavy cream and one-third cup of powdered sugar until stiff; add one cup of crushed blackberries and one-half teaspoonful of vanilla.

Cabbage Salad.—Take half a head of cabbage, shred very fine, and plunge into cold water until crisp. Drain well and put in a bowl. Make a good salad dressing of half a cupful of cream. Add a tablespoonful of sugar and one teaspoonful of salt. If you like a sour flavor, put in a teaspoonful of vinegar.

Rice Croquettes with Cheese Sauce.—Boil a cupful of rice in two and a half cupfuls of milk. If not tender, add more milk. Season with two tablespoonfuls of butter, a pinch of salt, a dash of paprika, and mix with two beaten egg yolks, and chill. When cold and stiffened mold into cones, balls or cylinder forms. Dip in crumbs, then in egg whites and in crumbs again. Cook the sauce well before adding the cheese. Serve as soon as it is melted.

Carrots.—Peel and cut in rounds, in cubes or long strips. Cook in boiling salted water until tender. Serve with cream sauce or toss the carrots in the following mixture: For two cupfuls of the cut carrots take one tablespoonful of sugar, lemon juice, a little salt and pepper. Pour into a saucepan and shake till the mixture is absorbed. Carrots and peas served together are appetizing.

Browned Chicken in Cream Gravy.—This is an excellent way to cook an old fowl. Clean and disjoint a two-year-old hen, and put to cook in a kettle containing at first only one pint of boiling water. Let simmer at least three hours over the low burner or on the back of the range, watching rather closely. As the water boils away, add more, but only enough to keep the chicken from browning. When half done season with one teaspoonful of salt and one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper. Half an hour before dinner bring to greater heat and brown on all sides, sprinkling with flour lightly as it browns. Just before serving add one teacupful of cream and let boil up once.

Gelatin Dishes.

Tomato Aspic.—Two tablespoonfuls of granulated gelatin, half a cup of cold water, three and a half cups of tomato pulp, celery stalk, bay leaf, whole clove, two tablespoonfuls of Tarragon vinegar, paprika and salt. Dissolve gelatin in cold water. Mix other ingredients, heat and add gelatin, stirring until perfectly dissolved. Strain into ring molds, place on ice and unmold on lettuce leaves, filling centre with mayonnaise to which whipped cream has been added. Or fill with cucumber, cabbage or other salad.

Beef Tongue Moulded in Aspic.—Make aspic as follows: Four tablespoonfuls of granulated gelatin, one quart of highly seasoned stock, one and a half cupfuls of cold water, juice of one lemon. Dissolve gelatin in cold water. Add hot stock and allow to dissolve perfectly. Strain and use as desired. Have a beef tongue trimmed and partly sliced. Arrange in deep pan, with garnish of egg-whites, capers, etc. Fill in with aspic and allow to chill. Unmold and serve with boiled mayonnaise.

Stuffed Tomatoes in Aspic.—Have as many peeled and chilled small perfect tomatoes as desired. Chop cucumbers and radish, add mayonnaise, and stuff tomatoes with mixture. Partly fill small custard molds with aspic. Lay in a stuffed tomato, top side down. Finish filling with aspic, and set away on individual lettuce leaves, and garnish with star of mayonnaise.

Grape Sherbet.—One tablespoon of granulated gelatin, one pint of grape juice, one pint of water, one cup of sugar, two lemons, one orange. Soak gelatin in half a cup of cold water. Boil sugar and water to syrup and add dissolved gelatin. When partly cooled add juice of lemons, orange and grape juice. Freeze and serve in sherbet cups with mint leaf garnish.

Household Hints.

If peas are a trifle old, try boiling them with a lettuce leaf and a tablespoonful of sugar in the water.

Summer bed spreads should be made of material that is easily washed. There is nothing prettier than the inexpensive dimity.

Tin is an undesirable material for a coffee pot. Tannic acid acts on such metal and is apt to form a poisonous compound.

To iron raised lace, place it between blankets. Or do not iron it at all. If not ironed it should be stretched, while wet, with a pin at each point.

A very satisfactory way to mend shirts that are worn around the collar band is to sew a narrow yoke to fit the neck and to come just below the worn place.

If the fire is running low and a quick oven is needed, try opening the oven door, filling it with cool fresh air. Then close the oven door, and it will heat much more quickly.

To remove water spots from a dress dampen it in lukewarm water. Place a piece of cloth over water spots on right side and press until both pieces of material are dry.

When making baked or boiled custard, the milk to be used should be scalded and set aside to cool. Then make the custard in the ordinary way, and it will be perfectly smooth.

To fry bacon so as to have it straight, light brown and crisp, invert a perforated pie tin over a larger pie tin, lay slices of bacon smoothly over the perforated tin and place in oven. An even brown color is obtained as the grease trickles into the plate below. This method prevents any spattering of the stove. The bacon is evenly cooked and the grease is perfectly clear for frying eggs. This method is a great advantage when one uses oil or gasoline, especially as the cooking of the bacon can be combined with the baking of muffins or other things.

Zinc is often the hardest thing in the house to clean, especially under kitchen stoves, where it becomes badly discolored. One of the simplest and surest methods is to dry thoroughly the zinc and then go over it with kerosene oil, which must be allowed to stand over night. In the morning this should be wiped with a soft cloth, and more kerosene applied. The oil eats out all the grease and dirt which adheres to the zinc and makes it white and spotless. Zinc-lined sinks or bathtubs can be treated the same way, but must be thoroughly dried afterward.

USIT

Has Removed Wrinkles For Over 2,000 Years

Since the time of Cleopatra, the beauties of the East have preserved their fresh bloom of youth and kept their skins free from wrinkles by the application of a combination of Oriental oils, the preparation of which is a secret handed down from generation to generation.

A Canadian traveler in Egypt was fortunate enough to secure the secret from an Arab. After exhaustive tests of the preparation in England, United States and Canada, the preparation has been placed in the hands of druggists everywhere under the trade marked name of Usit.

A SHORTAGE OF SHIPS.

Serious Handicap on the Lumber Trade of British Columbia.

It is evident from reports on trade conditions in British Columbia which have just been received by officers of the Canadian Northern Railway Company, that the war in Europe was not the entire cause of the business depression, from the effects of which the people in the coast province are now recovering. Representative business men from Vancouver and Victoria almost unanimously advance the opinion, that speculations of the boom period in real estate, account for the greater portion of their troubles. They add that the European conflict has had the effect of complicating conditions of trade, but contend that the slowing down of provincial commerce may justly be attributed to the economies British Columbians were forced to resort to in order to meet the payments for the real estate they had purchased long before, in the hope of obtaining a prompt and excessive profit. But it also seems from the reports, that the days of discipline have resulted in the formation of a new perspective towards business generally, and the revival which now appears to be imminent will find a people without illusions, and with a more intelligently directed courage waiting to take advantage of its opportunities. These reports to the C. N. R. are supplementary to those published recently in connection with the survey of trade conditions in Canada, which was conducted by that company.

In British Columbia, the worst effects, commercially, of the war overseas, have been experienced by the men engaged in the lumbering industry. The demand for building material from the people in the Prairie Provinces fell off sharply almost immediately after the outbreak of hostilities, and has not yet returned to its former volume. This undoubtedly adversely affected a number of smaller operators, or at least those enterprises lacking adequate backing, but the larger concerns which were well financed have been able to easily weather the re-adjustment period. At present, it would appear that the mills in British Columbia would be doing a much larger business if ships were available to move the product to its destination. A shortage of bottoms as a matter of fact, appears to be the chief handicap. While prices have eased off somewhat, the shrinkage has been taken up, possibly more than taken up by better, and what a manufacturer describes as "more tractable" labor. A remedy for the price trouble is being sought in plans for the organizing of a central selling agency, similar to that operating in the State of Washington.

The mill men on the coast say that stocks of lumber all over the world are badly in need of new supplies. If from the confidence engendered by the harvesting of a good crop, building resumes its former activity in the Prairie Provinces, and vessels are able to clear to newly developed markets in Great Britain, the West Indies, and the American Atlantic Coast States, they expect a business which will tax all their available facilities. In the meantime, it is shown that one mill in Vancouver is working overtime on new orders, which will keep it busy for a considerable period, and other lumber men are in daily expectation of orders for large quantities of building materials for reconstruction in Europe. There are evidences that the clear spruce of British Columbia is meeting with favor for the construction of aeroplanes, and several small supplies have been delivered.

The credit situation in the Province is improving, and it seems to be the general opinion that obligations have been well met when conditions are considered. Lumbermen report that their collections are satisfactory. The weaker dealers are not in the market to any extent, and the stronger firms are able to meet demands made upon them. Export lumber is sold on a basis of cash on delivery.

The Department of Agriculture for British Columbia, reports by wire that the agricultural situation is distinctly encouraging, and that weather conditions are favorable for growth. Increases are reported in land clearing, and in the areas devoted to crops of all kinds. The profits of poultry raising have been reduced to some extent owing to the high price of grain, but there has been satisfactory increase in dairying. In small fruits there is a fair crop. The selling organizations have been improved, and prices have been excellent so far. Truck farming is increasing, and the British Columbia produce is largely displacing imports from the United States. The prices for beef, pork and mutton are good and likely to so continue. There is a satisfactory increase in hog raising. The establishment of public markets is proving very satisfactory, and is reducing the cost of living. Unskilled labor at low prices is plentiful; skilled labor is difficult to obtain, and fairly good prices are paid. The report adds that comparatively little grain will be imported from the Prairie Provinces this year on account of the larger area sown. The tendency appears to be for city people to exchange town properties for farm lands, and many appear to be anxious to leave the town and engage in agricultural work. A large increase in production is looked for in the next few years.

Tea Is a War Muniton.

Tea is being used as the most portable beverage ration in the trenches in Europe. The belligerent Governments are buying immense quantities and the troops are acquiring a taste for tea that will greatly increase the future consumption. Cheap tea is a thing of the past now that the new demand has arisen, and rising prices may be expected for some time.

Calling Bismarck's Bluff.

Bismarck was conferring the Iron Cross on a hero of the ranks, and, being in a humorous mood, he said: "I am authorized to offer you, instead of the Cross, a hundred thalers. What do you say?"

"What is the cross worth?" asked the soldier.

"About three thalers."

"Very well, then, your highness; I'll take the cross and ninety-seven thalers."

Controls Liquor Sales.
Under the powers conferred by the Defence of the Realm Act the British Government by an Order-in-Council decided to take over the control of the sale and supply of intoxicating liquors in many districts where war material is being made and loaded, unloaded or otherwise dealt with. The districts affected include the city of Bristol and surrounding towns, Avonmouth, Newhaven, Southampton, Newport, Cardiff, Barry, Barrow-in-Furness, Liverpool and adjoining towns, and most of the munition and shipbuilding centres in Yorkshire.

Members of Parliament of all parties have undertaken a campaign to thank the employers and workmen in munition contracts for the work they already have done, and to urge upon them the vital importance of turning out as great a quantity of munitions the country is capable of producing.

A True German Flag.

The German flag would be a rainbow if it included all the colors of the various kingdoms, principalities or states of the German empire. The black and white and the eagle in the German flag are Prussian, and in the staff head corner is the canton, black, white and red representative of the North German confederacy, which was established in 1867.

The colors of Bavaria are blue and white; Hanover, yellow and white; Saxony, white and green; Wurtemberg, black and red; Mecklenburg-Strelitz, red and yellow and blue; Brunswick, blue and yellow; Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, green and white; Schaumburg-Lippe, blue, red and white. The colors of Waldeck are black, red and yellow; Pomerania, blue and white; Baden, red and yellow; Hesse, red and white; Hanover, yellow and white.

Will Quickly Cure Any Sour Stomach

Relieves Fullness After Meals.

"When I was working around the farm last winter, I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. P. Dawkins, of Port Richmond. "I was weak for a long time, but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels for I had to use salts or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour, and always after eating there was pain and fullness, and all the symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, and seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. To-day I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter, I am sure, proves it."

A French Boy's Pluck.

A patient in the American Ambulance Hospital at Neuilly-sur-Seine tells the following story of one of his comrades:

"We had been living in the trenches for days with the water above our ankles. At that time our trenches were only thirty-six yards away from the German trenches, so that we could hear the enemy talking and whistling and, indeed, we often called across to them."

"One day, young P., who was a hot-tempered chap about twenty-one years of age, threw down his shovel and said that he wouldn't work in such a nasty hole another moment, and that he had rather die at once from a German bullet than live another day in the trench. Anyhow, he was going out to chop some wood for a floor and let the Germans shoot him if they wished."

"Thereupon P. calmly crawled out of the trench, walked to a woodpile in full sight of the Germans, and began making planks from the wood. He worked a whole hour; for the Germans were so much astonished at his audacity, and so delighted with his pluck, that they made no attempt to stop him."

"When he had finished the needed pile of boards, P. as calmly carried them into the trench; and the men made a good floor of them."

Rumania Owes Much to King.

To King Charles, Rumania owes most of its modern development. He was one of the most progressive of monarchs. He built up an army of the first class, carried out great national works, inspired and supported an educational system, encouraged railway development, and organized the agriculture of the country so effectively that Rumania is now one of the principal grain exporting countries of the world.

BUILT A MONUMENT

The Best Sort in the World.

"A monument built by and from Postum," is the way a man describes himself. He says:

"For years I was a coffee drinker until at last I became a terrible sufferer from dyspepsia, constipation, headaches and indigestion. (The effects on the system of tea and coffee drinking are very similar, because they each contain the drug, caffeine.) "The different kinds of medicine I tried did not cure me, and finally some one told me to leave off coffee and take up Postum. I was fortunate in having the Postum made strictly according to directions on the pkg., so that from the start I liked it. "Gradually my condition changed. The old troubles disappeared and I began to feel well again. My appetite became good and I could digest food. Now I am restored to strength and health, can sleep sound all night and awake with a fresh and rested body."

"I am really a monument built by Postum, for I was a physical wreck, distressed in body and mind, and am now a strong, healthy man. I know exactly what made the change; it was leaving off coffee and using Postum."

Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum comes in two forms: Postum Cereal—the original form—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost about the same per cup.

RENOVATING BUILDINGS.

Canadian National Exhibition Authorities Taking Precautions.

It will be interesting to stockmen generally to know that the most extraordinary precautions are being taken by the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, to thoroughly disinfect all sheds and buildings to be occupied by livestock during the coming Fair, Aug. 28 to Sept. 13.

Immediately after the military authorities had removed the last of the horses housed at the grounds over the winter, a meeting of the chairmen in charge of the different branches of the livestock department at the Exhibition met and decided to at once seek Government co-operation in the work of disinfecting and cleansing the grounds.

A large force of men have since been engaged at the work of immunizing every inch of space, in which task they are using the most thorough methods. Floors, walls, ceilings, stalls and every nook and cranny that might prove a lurking or breeding-place for germs are being treated with specially prepared disinfectants of extra strength and effectiveness.

Before the livestock are housed at the grounds previous to the Fair the Exhibition Board will have all buildings inspected by the Veterinary General, who will come from Ottawa for the purpose. The Ontario Government, too, will conduct an independent inspection, and it will be a very elusive germ indeed that will be able to dodge this combined attack.

"What's on the carpet to-day, my dear?" asked Mr. Wombat, who is flowery of speech.

"More mud that Johnny has tracked in, I s'pose," responded literal Mrs. Wombat.

This is to certify that fourteen years ago I got the cords of my left wrist nearly severed, and was for about nine months that I had no use of my hand, and tried other Liniments, also doctors, and was receiving no benefit. By a persuasion from a friend I got MINARD'S LINIMENT and used one bottle which completely cured me, and have been using MINARD'S LINIMENT in my family ever since and find it the same as when I first used it, and would never be without it.

Obliging.

A servant-girl one day went to her mistress in tears, and asked permission to go home for a few days—she had a telegram telling that her mother was ill.

"Of course, go," said the mistress; "only, Maggie, do not stay longer than is necessary. We need you."

Maggie promised to return as soon as possible, and hurried away. A week passed without a word from her; then came a note by post—"Dear Miss B., I will be back next week, and please keep my place for me; mother is dying as fast as she can. To oblige, Maggie."
